OSAGE DEATH QUIZ MAY COVER RUMOR OF $10,000 BRIBE

Former Marshal, Named in Report, Will Ask for Vindication.

IS WILLING TO DROP IMMUNITY, HE SAYS

Inquiry May Cause Delay Into Alleged Conspiracy to Obtain Millions.

Guthrie, Okla., Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—Rumors circulated in Oklahoma that a $10,000 bribe was responsible for the failure of previous investigations into the alleged conspiracy of death in the Osage Indian country several years ago probably will be brought before the Federal grand jury when it resumes its deliberations here tomorrow.

Alva McDonald, formerly United States marshal for western Oklahoma, declared today that the rumors had been directed at him and he said he would demand that he be heard by the jury.

"I know that these rumors have mentioned myself and another former official of dividing a $10,000 bribe which was purported to have been taken from an attorney at Pawhuska," he said. "The other official mentioned never had a thing to do with the Osage inquiry. As for myself, I was voluntarily called in by the special government men and gave every assistance that could be given.

Would Go Before Jury.

"I should be given a chance to stop such knife work against me. It is unfair that these false rumors are going about and I can't say anything to stop them. I intend to go before the jury if it is possible."

The former marshal said he was ready to waive all immunity and that all he desires is a hearing.

Should he go before the jury it would delay temporarily the investigation of the alleged operations of a band of conspirators which is held responsible for the deaths of a number of Osage Indians and others. The government is trying to determine the truth of the theory that the victims died so that approximately $2,000,000 in Indian money might pass into the hands of the alleged conspirators.

Two indictments were returned yesterday in the jury's first report. They charge W. K. Hale, "king of the Osage hills" and John Ramsey, a cowboy-farmer with murder in connection with the death of Henry Roan, an Indian who was shot to death. Hale was named beneficiary of Roan's $25,000 life insurance policy.

Second Murder Charge.

It was the second murder charge against Hale, State authorities having charged him with the death of W. E. Smith, a white man at Fairfax. Smith, his Osage wife, and a servant girl, were killed when their home was blown up shortly after Roan's death.

Hale is a ranchman who came from Texas a quarter of a century ago and prospered. He is reputed to be wealthy and owns extensive ranch lands in the Osage country. He has for years been regarded as one of the influential men of Osage county and his broad acres and roaming herds seemed to suggest the title of "king."

Several years ago he was charged with cattle rustling but the charge was dismissed for lack of evidence.

Edwards Will Press Tacna-Arica Ballot

Arica, Chile, Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—Agustin Edwards, chief Chilean delegate on the Tacna-Arica plebiscitary commission, returned here today from Santiago. Regarding the future Chilean policy, he said: "I have returned in order to carry on with the plebiscite at all costs, since it is the firm intention of my government to proceed with the referendum fulfilling the award."

It is understood that the maintenance of law and order will come immediately under the consideration of the Chilean delegation, for they understand the gravity of the situation caused by recent disturbances.

Bandaged Ankle Wins Her Verdict of $1,000

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 10.—Miss Mildred Ricker was awarded $1,000 damages by a jury late yesterday in her suit against Harry T. Little & Son for $25,000. She was struck by a delivery truck while crossing a street.

The defendants alleged she did not exercise due care, that her injury was not serious, that a month after the accident she was seen dancing at a summer camp and in swimming. In rebuttal she denied she was able to swim and exhibited her bandaged ankle to the jury.

Alcohol Given as Cause Of Leaves Turning Red

New York, Jan 10 (By A. P.).—Alcohol, which long has been blamed for coloring the human nose with a roseate tint, is now put forth by sober scientists as the reason why leaves turn red in the autumn.

S. G. Hibben, expert of the Westinghouse Lamp Co., who has been delving into the effects of light on plants, said today that the old theory that foliage changed color and dropped off because of winter's chill touch was erroneous. He has discovered that chemical reactions in the leaves of plants of certain periods in their life cycle cause them to reject sunlight, regardless of the weather.

With the shutting out of the sunlight growth is retarded, food is stored in the roots and trunk and fermentation finally begins to take place in the leaves. In the process of fermentation alcohol is produced in the leaves, changing the color.

POLICE CLOSE STREETS

Rain, predicted for today by the weather man, is expected to clear the streets of Washington's first snow of the year.

Male Mannequins Win Applause of Berlin

Berlin, Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—Male mannequins are the latest thing in the Berlin world of fashion. At one of the best known cabarets a number of film and vaudeville artists are displaying up-to-date creations in dress suits, dinner jackets, morning coats, lounge suits and top coats, including all other essential accessories, like top hats, derbies, scarfs, shoes and fancy handkerchiefs.

Judging by the applause these exhibits have evoked, this method of displaying what is new in men's fashions has met with popular approval.

MUST ERASE ALLIED DEBT, SAYS CAILLAUX

No Economic Stability, He Writes, Until Sponge Is Drawn Across Slate.

London, Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—Writing on the financial situation in France in the new monthly publication, "The Banker," Joseph Caillaux, former French finance minister, declared France will not be able to accomplish an effective monetary reform until a solution is found for the problem of the allied debts.

"I say most positively," he continues, "that there will be no economic stability in the world so long as there remains a network of debts obliging nations to make transfers to other nations.

"Only one formula can be allowed to live: Let the sponge be drawn across the slate on which our mutual obligations are inscribed.

"Great Britain is faithful to her tradition of generosity. I am certain a change in the psychological attitude of the French will occur and that the psychology of Americans will change also."

SENATE DEMOCRATS OFFER $170,000,000 ADDITIONAL TAX CUT

Simmons Will Present Party's Plan to Finance Committee Today.

WANT SINKING FUND TO PAY PUBLIC DEBT

Would Repeal Capital Stock Levy; House Normal Income Tax Rates Approved.

(By the Associated Press.)

Tax reduction of $500,000,000 this year, or approximately $170,000,000 more than provided by the House revenue bill, was proposed yesterday in a program drafted by Democratic members of the Senate finance committee.

Senator Simmons declared the increase above the $330,000,000 reduction limit set by the House and approved by Secretary Mellon could be accomplished and still permit retirement of the public debt at the end of 32 years, the maximum time now contemplated by the Treasury.

He would pay the public debt entirely from the sinking fund created for this purpose, but would require that the cost of the sinking fund be cut by applying to it the annual receipts from foreign governments on account of war debt payments.

"Under the present law," he explained, "the $253,000,000 annually set apart as a sinking fund is raised by taxation and used for the retirement of our indebtedness, and in addition to that, the amount annually received from our foreign debtors, estimated for this year at more than $175,000,000, is likewise applied to the retirement of our indebtedness."

To Present Plan Today.

Senator Simmons will present the Democrats' program to the finance committee today when it takes up consideration of the rate schedules, but Republican members, who have a 10-to-7 majority, have indicated they would vote for the schedules written into the bill by the House, with perhaps some less extensive modifications. The real showdown on the rate fight, therefore, is not likely until the measure is considered on the floor of the Senate, where Democrats hope to draw enough support from the Republican ranks to insert some of their schedules in the bill.

Revision of the House surtax schedules on incomes between $22,000 and $100,000, as proposed by the Democrats, would increase the tax reduction on this account by $44,000,000 over that in the House measure, Senator Simmons said. The House surtax reductions were confined to rates applying on incomes between $44,000 and $100,000.

"The average reduction made in the House bill on incomes between $10,000 and $20,000 is 25 per cent," Senator Simmons said, "upon incomes between $20,000 and $100,000 is 9 per cent and upon incomes in excess of $100,000 is 50 per cent.

"The schedule proposed by the minority will provide for an average reduction upon incomes up to $20,000 of 25 per cent, upon incomes from $20,000 to $100,000 of 24 per cent and on the incomes over $100,000 of 50 per cent."

$30,000,000 Cut on Dues Levy.

Repeal of the capital stock tax applying on corporations would cut government revenue by $94,000,000, it was estimated, while repeal of the levies on admissions and dues would account for $30,000,000 more annually.

Commenting on the proposed repeal of the capital stock levy, Senator Simmons declared the tax "is peculiarly discriminatory against the weaker corporations and is distinctly a nuisance tax."

Approval by the Democrats of the House normal income tax rates virtually means these reductions will become law, since Republicans have indicated favor of these as well as the increased personal exemptions also approved by the minority.

The normal rates would be cut from 2 to 1½ per cent on the first $4,000 of taxable income, from 4 to 3 per cent on the next $4,000 of income, and from 6 to 5 per cent on the remainder of income. Personal exemptions would be increased from $1,000 to $1,500 for single persons and from $2,500 to $3,500 for married persons.

While accepting the reduction in the maximum surtax rate from 40 to 20 per cent, the plan, announced yesterday by Senator

Jury Finds Dog Guilty; Judge Imposes Death

Pikeville, Ky., Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—"We the jury find the defendant guilty as charged," was the verdict returned by a jury in court here yesterday in the case of the State of Kentucky vs. Bill, a pretty pet collie, charged with being a dog of "vicious" character.

The death sentence was imposed by County Judge J. W. Pruitt and Bill was legally electrocuted.

Bill was brought into court by the husband of his owner, Mrs. Sophia Stone, Chloe Creek. Bill sat stoically through the trial, as witnesses testified as to his character prior to his attack on a neighbor's daughter, the cause of the trial. After hearing the testimony, Judge Pruitt instructed the jury to render its verdict.

Within a few minutes after the passing of sentence, Bill was executed. His head was sent to a Lexington laboratory for examination.

W. C. DURANT INJURED IN FATAL TRAIN CRASH

30 PASSENGERS ARE HURT

Daytona Beach, Fla., Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—Ripping through the steel private coach occupied by W. C. Durant, millionaire automobile manufacturer, the locomotive of the speeding northbound Overseas Limited crashed into the rear of northbound Florida East Coast train No. 36, nine miles south of Titusville shortly before noon today, killing three negroes and injuring approximately 30 white passengers.

Mr. Durant, with injuries about the head, is being rushed to New York city in a special train. His condition is serious, the Daytona Journal will say tomorrow.

Two of the dead were servants on the Durant car, and the other was Albert Jones, fireman on the Overseas Limited locomotive.

The injured passengers have been taken in the remaining coaches of train No. 36 to St. Augustine for treatment. It is not believed that any of these are in a critical condition.

According to information at Titusville, No. 36, bound for Jacksonville, was ordered to stop 9 miles south of Titusville, in order to allow a train ahead to pass the next division point. A brakeman was sent back up the track to flag train No. 86.

No. 36, after a short delay, was ready to continue its trip, and the brakeman was called. He had just climbed aboard No. 36 when the locomotive of the rushing Overseas Limited was seen by a few startled passengers just rounding the curve behind No. 36, which was beginning to gain speed as it resumed its trip.

The rest of the program presents something for everybody; brief talks and vocal and instrumental music of a wide range are all included.

Children will be favored by stories and songs tonight. Miss Elisabeth E. Poe, of The Post staff, will relate a child's story of the White House. Edward McCandlish, well known to readers of the Bunny Tots in The Post, has a message for boys and girls. Complete program is on the radio page.

MARKLE PROPOSAL FOR HUGHES TO END COAL STRIKE FAILS

Miners, at Sunday Talk With Owners, Reject New Suggestion.

GENERAL WALKOUT URGED ON THE UNION

District Committee Says It Would Help to Speed the Workers' Victory.

New York, Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—Anthracite miners and operators after nearly a five-hour session today, failed to come to any understanding, and adjourned until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. It was the first Sunday session ever held in the long history of hard coal wage conferences.

The operators voted down a proposal for a night session offered by the miners. Two proposals were voted down, one by the miners and the other by the operators. Chairman Alvan Markle proposed, according to a statement issued, that since the parties could not agree on a contract, the miners' proposal, the operators' plan, and the Markle plan, should all be submitted to Charles E. Hughes, former Secretary of State, to consider all suggestions and formulate a plan that would be the basis for a contract. The operators voted "Yes" for Mr. Markle's proposal, but the miners voted against it. Mr. Hughes was counsel for the United Mine Workers of America before he became Secretary of State. It is understood that the miners were not opposed to Mr. Hughes himself, but looked upon the latest Markle proposal to throw all plans into a basket and have Mr. Hughes make a decision on them, as a form of arbitration.

Miners Offer 5-Year Plan.

The statement issued by the conference said the miners offered what they designated as a "revised Markle plan." The principal provisions were an agremeent for five years which could be changed by a board created under the plan. A board would be established, consisting of two miners, two operators and three representatives to be selected by Mr. Hughes, the former Secretary of State. The board would investigate and determine whether the operators can reasonably pay a wage increase. If the board should determine on an increase, it would be retroactive.

Records of miners and operators were to be made available to the board. The board would investigate, determine and recommend means for avoiding suspension of mining, and for assuring the public an uninterrupted supply of coal. The board would also investigate and recommend methods for increasing efficiency and reducing the cost of operations.

Joint Commission Provided.

Under this revised Markle plan a joint commission consisting of one miner, one operator, and a conciliator, would be created in each of the three anthracite districts, to work for greater cooperation, harmony and efficiency in the industry. The commission would have the support and cooperation of operators, district organizations and the international union.

The check-off would be limited to $14 a year. The board of conciliation created by the Roosevelt commission of 1903 would be continued to equalize wages, as provided in the agreement of 1923, and to handle matters in relation to conditions.

The operators voted down the revised Markle plan offered by the miners.

The operators voted down a resolution offered by the miners that all future sessions of the conference be thrown open to newspaper men. The miners also offered a formal motion that the meeting recess until 8 o'clock tonight, owing to the necessity of reaching an agreement. The operators proposed a substitute to recess until 10 o'clock tomorrow. This was adopted.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—A resolution calling upon the tridistrict scale committee to call a general strike of all workers employed around the mines, including the maintenance men, was passed by the general grievance committee of District 1, United Mine Workers of America, at a meeting late last night. The calling out of the maintenance men is urged as a means of hastening the end of the present

MEXICAN BANDITS SEIZE TRAIN; SLAY AND LOOT

BOOTY IS 300,000 PESOS

Mexico City, Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—A passenger train, attacked by bandits between Guadalajara and Mexico City, a majority of the passengers murdered and most of the military escort killed, is the alarming report received here from Guadalajara in special dispatches.

Between the stations of Negrete and Yurecuaro, 20 men, armed and disguised, who had boarded the train at Guadalajara, suddenly began knifing the soldiers and robbing and killing the passengers. Of the military escort, all but seven were killed, and these were seriously wounded. The train, the dispatches say, was burned with the victims. The bandits, who were under the orders of a former colonel, Manuel Nunez, then made their escape on the engine, carrying away 300,000 pesos in booty.

600 Racing Tipsters Barred From Mails

New York, Jan 10 (By A. P.).—Six hundred New York horse race tipsters have been barred from the mails in a widespread campaign to put them out of business, postoffice officials said tonight.

On orders from Washington, according to Postoffice Inspector Clarkhan, hundreds of pounds of mail to and from tipsters have been seized here, 600 tipsters have been questioned and their mail stopped. The drive, it was said, will be continued in other cities.

MILAN HEARS RUMOR OF A COUP BY CAROL

Is Said to Be Departing for Vienna, Which Will Be the Jumping-Off Place.

Milan, Italy, Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—Prince Carol, of Roumania, is preparing for what appears to be his departure from Milan, where he has been staying since the renunciation of his accession rights, to Vienna. It is considered possible that Mme. Lupescu, who has been living at the same hotel and whose name has been closely linked with his, may go with him. His aid last evening paid his hotel bill.

After a motor trip with Mme. Lupescu, Carol sent off what were asserted to be confidential telegrams addressed to Vienna.

There was considerable excitement and activity among his suite today, which caused a rumor that Carol was intending to use Vienna as a jumping off place to bring him nearer to the Roumanian crown on his own terms.

WAR DICTATORSHIP PLAN TO BE URGED BY SENATOR CAPPER

Wilbur Warns of Dangers of Universal Draft of Men and Industry.

DAVIS HOLDS SYSTEM WOULD STOP PROFITS

Speculation in Food and Munitions Would Be Eliminated, He Declares.

Shall we provide in advance by statute that in our next war the United States will fight under the direction of a virtual dictatorship?

This is the question put up to Congress by the Capper-Johnson bill providing for universal draft of man power, the mobilization of material resources and control of prices by the President. The measure is indorsed by the War Department and the American Legion.

The military affairs committees of Congress soon are to hold hearings on the bill at which arguments for and against its provisions will be submitted. Numerous labor and other organizations have manifested hostility to the measure on various grounds, among them being the contention that it proposes to set up a dangerous dictatorship in time of war.

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur is inclined to think that a constitutional amendment would be necessary to enable the President in time of war to commandeer materials at less than the market price and suggests the danger of such legislation leading to a dictatorship.

Fears For Government Safety.

"It seems to me," said Secretary Wilbur in discussing the proposed legislation, "that we ought to be very careful in our enthusiasm for complete preparedness and for the greatest and highest efficiency in the event of war not to overlook the fact that authorization of acts which destroy liberty during war may lead to a destruction of the government itself.

"You do not have to go very far away from home to see illustrations of that today. In fact, we can stay on this hemisphere. I do not want to mention specific cases. And the great difficulty the government will have in the preparation for war is to avoid doing things which will give the opportunity to men in authority to assume a dictatorship and take over the government."

"Call it a dictatorship, if you will," retorts Secretary of War Davis, "but the fact remains that it is necessary to lodge vast power in the executive to fight a war successfuly and with the minimum cost of man power and material resources. If this bill proposes a dictatorship, then we fought the last war under a dictatorship, and that was what enabled us to win. This bill simply proposes to provide for the emergency in advance, so that man power and resources can be mobilized at once on the outbreak of war and prices controlled, instead of losing valuable time by delaying until such measures could be enacted after war begins."

Senator Capper, Republican, Kansas, and Representative Johnson, Republican, South Dakota, employ similar arguments in support of the bill, which is the outgrowth of the demand by the late President Harding in his inauguration address for legislation to conscript wealth as well as men in time of war and to control prices and take profit out of war.

Control of Resources Sought.

The more the matter was studied, however, the more it became apparent that what was desired is not the conscription of wealth, not the taking of property, but the control of resources by the government to insure their most effective use in the war effort without profiteering by the individual. Hence the term "drafting material resources," employed in the earlier bill was dropped and "control" substituted. The Capper-Johnson bill provides:

"hat in the event of war declared by Congress to exist, which in the judgment of the President demands the immediate increase of the military establishment, the President be, and he hereby is, authorized to draft into the service of the United States such members of the unorganized militia as he may deem necessary: Provided, that all persons drafted into service between the ages of 21 and 30, or

WAN TODAY FACES RETRIAL IN CHINESE MURDER MYSTERY

Chief Government Witness Returns From China to Aid Prosecution.

STUDENT HAS PASSED 5 YEARS IN DEATH ROW

Triple Slaying of Education Mission in 1919 Presents Deep Enigma.

Seven years after the light of discovery was thrown into the faces of three members of the Chinese educational mission, their faces covered with handkerchiefs, lying in death in a basement, Ziang Sun Wan, Chinese student condemned to death one year later for the murder, goes on trial again this morning with the advantage on his side in his long fight for life, but the mystery unsolved and more confounding than ever.

The seven years have been quite parallel to the Biblical seven lean years to Wan. For nearly five of those years he was confined in "death row" in the District jail.

The first ray of hope that appeared for him was when the United States Supreme Court threw out his "confession" on the ground that it was obtained by third-degree methods, resulting in a new trial being granted him. Now whether the seven years shall have been seven years of grace from death, or just seven lean years of torture, will be determined at the new trial beginning this morning.

Wan has been fortunate in a way. Although a penniless outcast from his family, he has arrayed on his side the best legal talent in the United States. When the case was argued before the United States Supreme Court, John W. Davis, William Cullen Dennis, Frederick D. McKenney, James A. O'Shea, Charles Fahy and James A. Nolan, jr., appeared for him.

The case will create a rare scene in criminal court 2 before Justice Wendell P. Stafford this morning. The interest will center about the selection of the jury. But in the courtroom will be another Chinese student who has made the long voyage from Peking, China, to appear against Wan.

Kang Li, the principal government witness, finished his medical course here in Washington after the murder, and has since established a practice in Peking. He has married and has a family. He has been here since November impatiently awaiting the trial, with his practice in the hands of a "substitute," and his wife in the care of relatives.

The murder is one of the deepest of Oriental mysteries. Local police have never been called upon to untangle a crime more puzzling. The three dead men were known to be alive on January 29, 1919. At about that time, Li declares, he went to the house on Kalorama road where the members of the mission were residing, and asked to see them. He declares that Wan, who lived there, replied "no," and shut the door abruptly.

When Li, after vainly knocking at the door on January 31, crawled through the basement window, he stumbled upon the dead men, he declares.

He notified police. A revolver, known to belong to Dr. Theodore Wong, head of the mission, was found on the floor. Police first worked on the theory that it was a double murder and suicide, next that it was the result of a Chinese war.

It was learned that Wan had gone to New York. Li furnished police with Wan's address. Although he was found ill he willingly consented to return to Washington, it is said. Wan was held here incommunicado for 13 days, and was questioned hourly each day. Regarding his confession, physicians testified that he would have done anything, such was his mental state at the time.

AGENTS OF JUSTICE DEPARTMENT STUDY BAKING SITUATION

Knowledge of Whether Trust Exists or Could Be Formed Is Sought.

OFFICIALS CONFIDENT THERE IS NO MERGER

Continental Company Tells Trade Commission Monopoly Is Not Possible.

(By the Associated Press.)

The Department of Justice is conducting an investigation to determine whether there is in existence any combination of baking companies which is restraining trade in violation of Federal antitrust laws.

Despite denials of a merger of the Continental, Ward and General Baking companies, Federal investigators are looking into aspects of such a project to ascertain what would be the economic effect of a consolidation of this magnitude. The department desires, through a canvass of conditions in most of the larger eastern cities, to satisfy itself whether an actual monopoly in the baking industry is possible.

The Federal trade commission already has taken a hand in the baking situation by issuing a complaint against the Continental company, and that concern has asserted, in its response, that no merger of monopolistic power is possible. The commission has set February 8 for a hearing on the Continental complaint, in which the Ward or General companies are not mentioned.

Reports Cause Inquiry.

When reports of a $400,000,000 merger project involving the three big companies first were published, Attorney General Sargent told newspaper correspondents he knew nothing about any move in the department to determine whether a violation of the Federal antitrust law was threatened. Persistent reports that the merger was near completion, however, caused the department to interest itself in the matter, and an under-cover examination of conditions was begun.

Both the Department of Justice and the Federal Trade Commission have satisfied themselves, officials said yesterday, that no merger of the Continental, Ward and General companies had been accomplished. Justice Department records, however, were said to hold the case under the heading of a "contemplated merger," which in the future might be the basis of Federal intervention.

The investigation thus far apparently has been general in character to provide a full history of the industry for the department.

Officials, under the Attorney General's policy of silence, are unwilling to discuss what had been done except to confirm reports that investigators are at work. Inquiries by the agents in several cities have been disclosed, and these have tended to show that all details of every phase of the industry are being sought.

Use also is being made by the Department of Justice of such information as is possessed by the Federal Trade Commission. The commission has sent to Mr. Sargent two batches of reports compiled from its various studies of the industry, but just what these contained has not been disclosed.

CRABBING IN DANGER, SAYS BUREAU REPORT

Federal Experts Urge Closed Season and Curtailment in Nearby Waters.

(By the Associated Press.)

Crab fishing off the Virginia and Maryland coasts is in danger of becoming an extinct industry, it was shown yesterday in reports sent to the governors of both States and to Secretary Hoover, by the bureau of fisheries. The catch for the past year has been reduced to 25,000,000 pounds, as compared with over 50,000,000 pounds in 1915.

"If the fishery is to be rehabilitated," the report said, after detailing the facts, "the enactment of more stringent regulations is necessary."

The total catch should be reduced 30 per cent, the recommendations said, and "sponge" and "buckram" crabs should be given a permanent closed season. Increase in powers for the State commissions, it was said, for the enforcement of these and similar protective measures might bring back the productive capacity of the industry.

The affair will open with a dinner. The committee in charge of the affair is composed of H. C. Phillips, chairman; A. T. Androus, F. S. Harris, B. A. Levitan, J. C. Lombard, Mrs. N. HOUSE AND SENATE COMMITTEES FACE FARM AID PROBLEMS

Relief Measures to Occupy Attention of Groups of Both Houses This Week.

SENATE VOTE ON NYE SEATING IS EXPECTED

Woodlock and Taylor Hearings to Continue; Aluminum Inquiry Deferred.

(By Associated Press.)

While the rubber and aluminum investigations are going forward this week, both House and Senate committees will begin hearings on other important subjects.

Farm legislation will occupy the attention of committees at each side of the Capitol, while the Senate interstate commerce committee will begin consideration of the railroad consolidation bill.

While the House agricultural committee will give first attention to the administration cooperative marketing measure, it is practically certain that it eventualy will report out also some form of legislation for disposing of the exportable surplus of farm products.

With most of the major committees going ahead at full speed, the Senate will vote on the Nye case and again take up the world court, while the House will pass the interior appropriation bill and act on the foreign debt settlements and the $50,000 appropriation for American participation in the preliminary disarmament conference at Geneva.

Tax Action Expected Soon.

As the Democrats have agreed upon their tax reduction program, the Senate finance committee expects to complete the tax bill before the end of the week, and Chairman Smoot hopes to have Senate consideration started a week from today.

Since there is no possibility of a vote on the world court before that time, final decision on this question is likely to be deferred until after the tax bill has been enacted into law, probably around March 1.

Besides taking up railroad consolidation, the Senate interstate commerce committee will continue public hearings on the nominations of Thomas F. Woodlock, of New York, and Richard V. Taylor, of Alabama, to be members of the Interstate Commerce commission. Mr. Woodlock appeared in person Saturday and Mr. Taylor is to be heard today.

Continuation of the Senate inquiry into whether the Department of Justice exercised due diligence in conducting the investigation into the Aluminum Co. of America has been deferred until tomorrow, as the judiciary committee has other matters to consider at its regular meeting today.

MACNIDER PROPOSES ARMY SUPPLY PARLEY

Would Have 15 Picked Business Men Scrutinize Purchases Every 2 Years.

(By the Associated Press.)

Submission of army purchasing methods to a biennial critical scrutiny by a group of 15 business men picked from the key industries to which the War Department goes for its peacetime procurement needs, has been planned by Assistant Secretary of War MacNider. The first session of this business council, which has not yet been appointed, probably will be held in March.

The plan carries a step further the business reorganization of the procurement work of the department inaugurated by Secretary Dwight Davis when he was Assistant Secretary. It contemplates setting up permanent machinery to determine that the supply bureaus of the department—ordnance, quartermaster, air, engineers, medical and chemical warfare—obtain full value for every dollar spent. One of the tasks will be to see that the army's purchasing methods are in line with the best practice in the commercial world.

The methods of the supply bureaus in filling peace needs must be such as to lend themselves to an overnight expansion 10 or 20 fold without danger of a breakdown, in Mr. MacNider's opinion, and he hopes to assure this through the efforts of the council, together with elimination of red tape.

MISSING GIRL IS FOUND IN LONG ISLAND TOWN

Elizabeth McDonald, 13 Years Old, Discovered Wandering in Snowy Street.

Elizabeth McDonald, 13 years old, who left her home at 1927 G street northwest, January 1, with more than $200 in cash and a suitcase filled with clothes, was yesterday found cold and hungry, wandering aimlessly in the snow-filled streets of Flushing, Long island, according to word received yesterday by her foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. McDonald.

The girl was taken by police to Queens, where she was cared for by the Big Sisters, awaiting word from her parents.

This is the second time the girl has left home, according to police. November 9 last, Elizabeth left home without telling her foster mother where she was going, but the next day was located in a hotel on lower Pennsylvania avenue, in company with Alfred L. O'Neal, 18 years old, of 1805 G street northwest, who was arrested on a statutory charge.

Complex Menu Stumps Illinois Representative

Victuals is victuals to Representative Fred A. Britten, of Illinois, whether they be in a hash-house or in one of Washington's superhotels.

Mr. Britten was called upon to prepare a menu for a dinner of a group of legislative notables. The hotel submitted two menus and asked him to choose. He was requested to make a choice between "supreme de pentades lucullus" and "partridge truffes" and between "biscuits glaces au chartreuse with excellences" and "bombe nougatine with friandises."

Mr. Britten returned the menus to the hotel with a request that they be Anglicized. He added:

"Your price of $7 per plate seems quite reasonable for such a complex multiformity of dishes."

POLICE ABUSIVE, SAYS HEAD OF RAIDED CLUB

STEPP DENIES CHARGES

Charges said to have been made to the police by diplomatic representatives from nearly a dozen embassies and legations and by several prominent business men that the police squad from the First precinct used abusive language and violence when they raided the Spanish Village Night club at 1304 G street northwest early yesterday morning caused Peter Boras, president of the club, to announce through counsel that he would demand a jury trial in court today and fight charges of maintaining a disorderly house to a finish.

Boras, who was released on $500 bond on charges of maintaining a disorderly house, after giving himself up to police at the First precinct yesterday, charged that the representative of the police who let the raiding squadron in, seized Mrs. Boras around the neck and pushed her into the club's office.

Policeman Chester Stepp, of the First precinct, the first to enter the club in the raid, denied the charges of violence and the use of abusive language by the raiders.

"As far as I know," Stepp declared last night, "no abusive language was used by any member of the raiding party and I am positive that no rough tactics were used on Mrs. Boras or any one else. The raid was conducted in an orderly manner, and all were treated as ladies and gentlemen."

A party of eight representatives of a South American embassy were held temporarily by the police at the club when liquor was found in their possession, but police released them when they produced their credentials, Boras said.

"I do not fear inspection of the Spanish Village by the police," Boras said last night, "but on the contrary, I would welcome an open gentlemanly visit, but the tactics employed by the policemen making the raid and the unjust charge made against me require me to seek exoneration in the courts."

PASTOR URGES USE OF AUTOS FOR GOD

The Rev. J. E. Briggs Proposes That Owners Take the Feeble to Church.

"Let God have your automobiles. People should let their autos take them to church instead of away from it. They should use them to bring the feeble to hear God's word." These were the sentiments of Rev. John E. Briggs, pastor of Fifth Baptist church, commenting upon the talk of James Shriver, Baltimore layman, here for the convention of church stewards, who spoke on "Stewardship" at this church yesterday.

Mr. Shriver believes that divine forces work for those who give part of their time and income to the work of God.

Last night, Dr. Briggs told what he would do if he had to live his life over. He said he would refrain from thinking or speaking evil about anybody except in the interest of fairness and truth; would not make up his mind until he had heard both sides; would cultivate more the spirit of cheerfulness and that of seeing beauty in everything, would try to consecrate the small things of life to best uses; give more time to Bible reading and prayer, and live but one day at a time.

"Always and under all circumstances, I would endeavor to put first things first," he said in conclusion.

Telephone Rates Case to End Today

The telephone rate case will be concluded today before Chief Justice McCoy, in equity court. He will take the matter under advisement, and ask counsel for both the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. and the public utilities commission to furnish briefs.

The commission found that the fair value of the properties of the company was $18,576,956, and ordered a reduction in the charge for flat rate service of 25 cents a month, and an increase in calls on limited lines from 35 to 40 a month. The company contended that the fall value of the properties was $25,000,000, and that the new rates were confiscatory.

HOUSE DEMOCRATS PREPARE TO FIGHT FOR LOWER TARIFF

Coolidge Declaration Against Revision Fails to Stop Score of Proposals.

REPUBLICAN FARM BLOC SEEN AS POSSIBLE AID

Repeal of Flexible Provision, Giving Executive Revising Power, Is Sought.

(By the Associated Press.)

The party-old tariff issue has been revived in the House by a number of Democratic leaders, who have introduced a score of bills proposing downward revision of rates.

Although President Coolidge has declared against any revision of the tariff act at this session of Congress, the minority members are pinning their hope for action on a possible coalition with some members of the Republican farm group.

Spokesmen of the farm bloc have openly threatened to join in a fight for a downward revision of tariff schedules unless farm relief legislation is enacted.

Representative Hull, of Tennessee, former chairman of the Democratic national committee and a member of the House ways and means committee, which would have to consider any such legislation, has introduced a resolution to place the House on record in favor of tariff reduction. In addition he also has introduced several amendments proposing specific cuts in duties.

Oldfield Plans Amendments.

Supporting Mr. Hull, Representative Oldfield, of Arkansas, also a member of the ways and means committee and chairman of the Democratic congressional committee, has advanced a series of amendments seeking reduced rates on a number of specific articles. Representative Wheeler, Democrat, New York, also has introduced a bill for a reduction in the import rates on food products.

The revision proposals thus far introduced provide for:

Repeal of the flexible provision allowing the President to revise the rate schedules as much as 50 per cent upon the recommendation of the tariff commission. The President has used this provision in only a few instances, notably to increase the tariff on wheat by the maximum amount.

Would Repeal Tire Levy.

Reduction of the rates on aluminum, woolen products, cotton textiles, iron, steel, sugar, molasses coal importations from Canada live stock and poultry products, and repeal of the 10 per cent tariff on rubber tires.

Repeal of the eleven provisions in the tariff law permitting imposition of the penalties on countries having a nondiscriminatory tariff in excess of that imposed by the United States. These provisions apply to certain classes of timber, brick, printing paper, cement, coal, gunpowder and explosives.

In the Senate, Chairman Smoot, of the finance committee, which would consider tariff legislation, and Senator King, Democrat, Utah, have introduced resolutions proposing an investigation of the administration of the tariff commission and operation of the tariff act.

Meanwhile, Democrats in the House, where tariff legislation must originate, are carrying on their fight in debate, although some Democratic members, as well as Chairman Green, of the ways and means committee, and other Republican leaders, have declared against opening the tariff act for revision at this session.

GROWTH OF NATION DEPENDENT ON HIGH WAGES, SAYS GREEN

America Cannot Hold World Markets on Low Scale, Asserts Union Chief.

INCREASE OF CULTURE DECLARED LABOR'S AIM

Equity and Fair Dealing, He Asserts, Must Be Basis of Demands in U. S.

Chicago, Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—Upon the maintenance of a high standard of living and a high standard of workmanship depends the nation's further adancement and industrial expansion, said William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in addressing the Chicago forum today. He spoke as a member of the Baptist Church and not as a labor leader.

"We take great pride in the industrial supremacy of America and call it an essentially American characteristic," he declared. "We can not hope to gain our share of the markets of the world through the imposition of low wages. We can only achieve greatness in these endeavors by virtue of our ability to conduct the affairs of labor and management in such a way as to produce manufactured articles of high quality in large quantities, through the medium of the labor of well-paid, highly trained, efficient workmen."

Program of Labor.

"Organized labor is committed to a definite, concrete program" he continued. "It will use its influence and economic power in the promotion of the material, spiritual and moral welfare of its membership and the great mass of the people. It is irrevocably committed to the maintenance of high wages and high living standards. If given the opportunity it will cooperate earnestly and sincerely in all efforts to promote efficiency in management and high standards of American workmanship.

"In advancing the material interests of the workers and their families dependent upon them, organized labor is loking beyond and above this. It seeks to attain a higher spiritual and cultural development. Through the medium of high wages, shorter hours of employment, and healthy environment we seek opportunity to satisfy the longings and the yearnings of the human heart and soul for the enjoyment of higher and better things. This ideal can not be reached where depression and poverty reign. It can only be attained where the industrial sky is bright with the glow of fair dealing, justice and freedom.

"The wage earner of today is more efficient and produces more than did the wage earner of ten or twenty years ago.

Basis of Labor Demand.

"Labor is basing its demand for high and still higher wages upon reasons that are clearly basic and freedom. It lays claim to a just and equitable share of the products of industry. It contends that labor's reward shall not be merely enough to meet the requirements of the family budget, but that, in addition, it shall be representative, in full measure, of labor's contribution to industry.

"This shifts the whole wage basis from the places where it has been erroneously placed, namely, the cost of living, a living wage or a saving wage. All of these bases are too intangible, too indefinite and too susceptible to conflicting interpretations.

"The developments of modern industry have inevitably placed the basis of wage demands and wage theories upon the eternal principles of equity, justice, fair dealing and frankness."

DR. PIERCE HOPES THE BERLINS MAKE "OUT ALL RIGHT"

Ellen Mackay's Marriage, Traffic, Rabbi Wise and Sherrill Discussed.

GREAT UNION OF PEOPLE HOPED FOR BY PASTOR

First Congregationalist Minister Urges Shunning Liquor; Wants Laws Obeyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Berlin have the good wishes of the Rev. Jason Noble Pierce, minister of First Congregational church.

"I hope it will come out all right," Dr. Pierce said in his sermon last night, referring to their marriage. "Irving Berlin loves and marries" was a subtopic of his talk, "Religion and Practical Questions." Others were "Rabbi Wise on Jesus," "Red, Amber and Green," "Col. Sherrill Surprises Cincinnati," and "Abraham Lincoln's Creed."

Discussing the Berlin wedding, Dr. Pierce spoke of Berlin and his music; praised the opportunities of America which permitted the rise of the contracting parties' ancestors; expresed some concern over the reported rapidity of the courtship and intimated regret that there had not been a religious ceremony in connection with the wedding.

"I am holding no brief for Irving Berlin. I have seen him; heard his music—yes, I will repeat the word 'music!' I know nothing about either of them. I have no 'inside dope,' but once where I was preaching there was an organist who belonged to the same Masonic lodge as Berlin, who said he believed he had met few men of finer character, warmer friendship and straighter life than he.

Speaking of Berlin's music, Dr. Pierce criticized his attempt to syncopate classics, but added that any man who could write out of his army experience "Oh, How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning" is deserving of promotion.

Praising the courage of Rabbi Wise's statements about Jesus' historical identity, he said: "I look forward to a great joining together of all people—Catholic, Protestant and Jew—not on some statement of creed, because we will always have different creeds, but on the essentials Jesus taught; on the understanding we are all God's children."

Like Col. Sherrill, the pastor asked that drinks be refused and laws be kept for the sake of others. "He that loveth God should love his brother also" was part of his text, one condemning selfishness, violator of love's law; one expressed in Lincoln's creed, "With malice toward none, with charity for all."

ARMY BAN ON MASONS IN DENMARK RESENTED

FASCISTI ASSAILED HERE

Copenhagen, Denmark, Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—A government decree forbidding military and naval officers from being members of the order of Freemasons is warmly resented by the officers. They demand to know whether the decree applies to King Christian, who like his father, King Frederick, is an ardent Mason.

(By the Associated Press.)

Under the title "Freemasonry's Plight in Italy," the Scottish Rite headquarters, in a publication yesterday, declared Premier Mussolini had practically destroyed the order in that country.

"Unhappy and deplorable, to say the least, is the situation of the Masonic fraternity in Italy," the article said, "and the facts in the case are almost incomprehensible to the average citizen of this country.

"Twelve of the fifteen Masonic temples throughout Italy and even the headquarters of the supreme council of the Scottish Rite Freemasonary in Rome have been attacked and damaged, the records and equipment smashed, destroyed or carried away, riots started and even murder committed. The bitterness and animosity against Masonry has increased, owing to shrewd propaganda charging it with being a political and secret organization instead of a fraternal one, which it truly is, and whose object is charity and universal brotherhood."

The article gives a list of discriminations it says are practiced against Masons, adding that Mussolini "is the man who has created a government which, pleading poverty, agrees to liquidate its debt to the United States beginning with small payments bearing the rate of one-eighth of 1 per cent interest."

RAY BURNER SAVES 63 PER CENT OF FUEL COST
On Local Office Building

1270 New Hampshire Ave. N.W.,
Washington, D. C., Jan. 6, 1926.

Ray Engineering Company,
1130 Woodward Building,
Washington, D. C.

Gentlemen: Here are the actual figures on oil that I have burned with my Ray burner in my building at 10th Street and New York Avenue N. W.:

Between October 15th, 1925, and the date of this letter I have burned 1,328 gallons of oil at a cost of $70.71. This building has three stores on the ground floor and six offices on the second floor. The normal coal consumption for the same building would not be less than 2 tons of soft coal per week. On that basis the coal would have cost me at prevailing prices $192.00 (based on a cost of $8.00 per ton).

In other words,
THE RAY BURNER HAS SAVED ME AT LEAST $122.00 THIS YEAR so far, to say nothing of the saving effected last year.

The burner is in perfect condition. The cost of service has been entirely negligible and I look forward to many years more of this same high-grade service.

I am entirely satisfied with my Ray burner and would not sell it for ten times what it cost me if I could not get another.

Very truly yours,
E. M. DULIN.

New Night Club Edition Of Celebrated "Vanities"

As Morris Gest converted the Century theater into a cathedral as atmosphere background for the presentation of "The Miracle," so Earl Carrol has, temporarily, turned Poli's into a night club for his third edition of the "Vanities." A novel idea, and a novel performance, with novelty being the paramount feature.

To inject the proper tone, they have torn out the first six rows of seats, covered up the footlights, built steps down to the orchestra, and set this space aside for dancing—what with the regular dining tables scattered here and yon, and the audience taking part in the dance before the first curtain and during the intermission.

The club idea was predominant last night. Several kindred spirits in the audience became so clubby, in fact, that they were on the verge of breaking up the show. There were more than the usual first night delays. It is a big cast, and carloads of scenery are carried; but all the explanations offered by Mr. Charlie Irwin, an erstwhile vaudevillian, scheduled to "explain the idea," failed to carry; and so there were cat-calls from the balcony, and a lot more rowdy-dowdy stuff that got the night club idea over in good style, though somewhat out of order.

Of course, what it all amounts to in the long run is glorified vaudeville—and there are many old favorites from the revue field who display their talents. Featured is Lester Allen, of the late lamented "Florida Girl," which had its premiere here as "Oh, You." Some of this material is saved from the wreckage and used again in the present performance. There are some sketches, too, that have a familiar tang; old-timers twisted about a bit, yet made to serve the purpose. There are, too, a few risque sketches that might well be left out altogether.

It was to be expected, of course, that Mr. Carroll would display some of his ladies of the ensemble in the costumes that nature first gave them—bear skins—and so there was no disappointment on that score. However, it was all done very beautifully, and with a certain amount of artistry—so that the police officials may let the case rest on its merits.

There are some adept comedians assisting Lester Allen, among them old Dave Chason, who is always good for a laugh, and Jack Norton. The former Follies beauty, Allyn King, seen here time and time again in stock, and out, has what might be termed the leading feminine role—and there are dancers in the persons of Nellie Breen and Eileen Carmody, and a host of others too numerous to mention.

All told, Mr. Carroll has assembled a novelty in the way of entertainment that is not without its fun and foolishness, and yet not so good as the second edition of "Vanities." It should be working better by tonight. JOHN J. DALY.

METROPOLITAN

Leon Errol, who last entertained Washington "movie" fandom in "Sally," is back at the Metropolitan this week in a picture that is just as good as, if not better than, the lately lamented "Sally."

In "Clothes Make the Pirate," the versatile Ziegfeld star has added another laurel to his collection, and his interpretation of the meek New England tailor is one of his best.

"Clothes Make the Pirate," a film adaptation of Holman Day's novel of the same name, endeavors to portray what happened to a timid little Boston tailor, with a complex for piracy, when he was mistaken for a bold, bad, buccaneer, and put in command of a pirate ship. The handling of the theme is clever, and the acting of Mr. Errol, including his well-known unsteady legs, practically makes the picture what it is. Of course, there is really excellent acting by Dorothy Gish, who interprets the part of Errol's shrewdish wife. Other important roles are assigned to Nita Naldi, as the vamp; James Rennie, as the lieutenant; Edna Murphy, as the sweetheart; George Marion, as the hard-boiled egg, and others of lesser note.

The "Pirate" offers fine photography for those who go in for the technical part of the "movie," but for others, who like their comedy and lots of it, the picture holds a greater charm.

The subsidiary screen attraction is "Fair but Foolish," which sums up any criticism that could be made about it. Fox News is also on the bill.

PALACE

Bespangled and ungowned like a fashion show at its peak, Mae Murray gives us much of herself, both histrionically and otherwise, in Christy Cabanno's "The Masked Bride," which packed 'em in at the Palace yesterday. The title is presumably derived from the assumption on the part of the devoted lover that the feminine of the species could not be both bad and beautiful. There are no masks otherwise visible from the front.

The story is built around a beautiful girl, who dresses like a million dollars and lives among the thieves, apaches and sewer rats of the naughty part of Paris. She dances for a living and loves Antoine, who is a successful member of the light-fingered gentry.

It appears that the prefect of police, which is Paris for police commissioner, takes his millionaire friend from Chicago down among the thieves' dives on a visit. Of course, the Chicago millionaire falls for the pretty lady, which wouldn't be hard for any male, even if he weren't from Chicago. Thereafter it's only a question of time. The lady quits stealing before she had even got thoroughly started, and marries the Chicago millionaire, who buys off the second-story man with a paste diamond necklace.

The story is not even good hokum, but the most hard-boiled will have to admit that Mae Murray is nice to look at and that Francis X. Bushman still wears his dimple. Also Mae does some good dancing. Her apache dance was well worth while and her acting fits in well with her loveliness. It was good also to get a look at our old friend Frankie Bailey, whose legs in the old Weber and Field days received much favorable comment even on Broadday. A comedy called "Cuckoo Love," featuring Glenn Tyron; a Pathe Newsreel and Topics of the Day completed the entertainment.

RIALTO

"The Last Edition" at the Rialto yesterday is about the best newspaper story we have seen on the silver sheet for a long time. A story of modern times, scenes from a real newspaper office, a thrilling fire scene, and several melodramatic moments, "The Last Edition" stars Ralph Lewis in a picture all his own. Aaron Hoffman as the cub reporter (played by Leigh Willard) and Frances Teague as his sweetheart, Polly McDonald, both show fine interpretation of their lines, especially in the intense moments of the story.

"The Last Edition" concerns a scoop by the cub reporter of the story of the arrest of the son of the assistant foreman of the press room, Tom McDonald (Ralph Lewis), on a charge of bribery. When the cub reporter telephones the story from the police station, the entire procedure in the newspaper office is shown on the screen—from the city editor receiving the information, through the copy desks, the typesetting machines, on the presses—and to the street. It is when Tom McDonald reads one of the first copies that he shows some real "spirit" in his attempts to have the presses stopped and the edition "killed." In the meantime the other counterplot of the story works around to trouble in the boiler room, where later the boilers explode at the moment when Tom McDonald stops the presses by wrecking them with a wrench.

The cub reporter finally solves the police case against young McDonald, and everything ends happily.

"The Last Edition" is really a humdinger from the first subtitle to the final fade-out.

The comedy "Oh, Buster" was as amusing as two children and a clever dog can be. Rialto News Events was the other film feature.

Mischa Guterson this week introduces a timely travesty "Broadcasting," with a company of eight players—including the announcer of "Station PUNK." The call letters hardly apply to the little skit, because there are several good numbers—those by Romeo Guaraldi, and the boy vocalist, Manny King. Both of these called for a number of encores.

Mischa Guterson's orchestra selections all through the performance were especially fine, and the rendition of "The Blue Danube Waltz" by Strauss received considerable applause.

STRAND

Heading the program at the Strand this week are eight Kikuta Japs, magicians and equilibrists, in "Oriental Wonder Workers." The jugglers and balancers give a splendid exhibition of their wares. Two young Japanese women pass the wand with great cleverness. Two performers toss and catch their fellows on their feet with excellent ability.

Sam Lazar and Josh Dale present an Ethiopian travesty entitled "The Bagooma Hunters," a black-and-white skit with humor injected into it. The first scene is the bagging of the Bagooma. The second scene is classical and jazzy music played on a accordion, violin and an unknown instrument.

Other features on the program are Stella Tracey and Elwood Joy, two popular musical comedy stars in "Bits of Broadway." Rey, Conway and Thomas in "Two Fellows and a Girl," and Anita Diaz presenting her monkeys in a series of merry capers.

The photoplay feature for this week is a dramatic romance called "The Unknown Lover," with Elsie Ferguson, a dramatic play of a young spendthrift who meets the right girl and marries. His father disowns them and leaves them without a cent. The man ruins his health trying to earn a living, but fails. His health and money gone he leaves home, but comes back a year later to find that his wife has combined with his rival and he is president of the firm.

Closing features on the program are orchestra pieces—"I Never Knew," by Fiorito, and exit march, "Five Foot Two, Eyes of Blue," by Henderson.

CRANDALL'S TIVOLI.

Cecil B. De Mille's production of "Hell's Highroad" is the major attraction at Crandall's Tivoli theater the first two days of the present week. The comedy for the first bill of the week is an Imperial, "Strong For Love."

COLUMBIA

Valentino is at the Columbia this week. Catherine, the other great one, in whose Russia the scene of "The Eagle" is laid, doesn't count for so much, though the admirable Louise Dresser gives us a fine and plausible picture of her. Indeed, the court of Catherine is the background for only a small part of the story, and history has counted so little with the producer that many of the costumes are distinctly of the nineteenth century, though the empress, according to our encyclopedia, ended her career in 1796.

The story of "The Eagle" is the ordinary bundle of romantic adventures, spiced with love, revenge, and gallantry. Valentino is a young lieutenant whose dashing figure takes the czarinas eye, and who flees the court when she begins her amorous advances. Following her charming practice, Catherine places a price on his head as a deserter. Lieut. Vladimir becomes an outlaw, sworn to vengeance on a rascally braggart who has seized his paternal estates, but unfortunately he falls in love with his enemy's daughter. In the guise of a French tutor he visits Kyrilla's castle, completes his love conquest, and foregoes revenge. Then Catherine's soldiers capture him, and he would have been shot if she hadn't relented.

Our hero is suave, graceful, and impeccable as always. Mascha, the heroine, is beautiful and well acted by Vilma Banky.

There is a comedy, and the Pathe Review includes some fine views of Rasmussen's travels in Arctic America.

NEWMAN TRAVEL TALKS

Selecting Norway and Sweden as his subject yesterday afternoon, E. M. Newman began a series of five consecutive lectures that will be given at the National theater on Sunday afternoons and nights. Beginning with Stockholm, the Swedish capital, scenes were shown by both motion pictures and colored slides of the residential and business sections and public buildings with now and then a glimpse of an interior beautiful in its simplicity of design.

From the capital we were transported to the smaller towns and hamlets where the costumes are more picturesque, somewhat suggestive of those worn by the Hollanders, especially those of the women. Also we see the peasants at their daily tasks. While in Dalarna we are graciously permitted to take a peep into the studio of Anders Zorn, the distinguished portrait painter, etcher and sculptor.

Going north, Abisko, the Swedish national park, is entered and passing the arctic circle we become acquainted with how the Laplander lives and watch a migration to more fertile valleys. Thousands of reindeer participate in this and are called upon to swim a wide body of water.

Entering Norway through Narvik, we travel up the coast to Hammerfest, the northern outposts of Europe and at one time a great whaling port. After watching the inhabitants fish for cod, the scene passes to North cape, where at a height of 9,000 feet above the water we get a marvelous view of the midnight sun. Starting south, Mr. Newman takes us through the smaller towns as well as larger cities of Norway and then shows us the unrivaled beauty of the Norwegian fjords. After intimate glimpses of Bergen, we cross the mountains to Oslo, the capital formerly known as Christiania. Here we see the royal palace and other buildings, as well as the business section. The former home of Ibsen, with the room in which he did his writing left unchanged, is offered our inspection, and then a view of the little cemetery in which he was buried.

AMBASSADOR.

Leon Errols in "Clothes Make the Pirate" opened at the Ambassador yesterday for a three-day run, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. This adaptation is Leon Errols' first appearance on the screen. The news of the day and an organ selection close an entertaining evening.

EARLE

Kate Smith, well-known Washington entertainer, is being featured at the Earle this week. She took the audience by storm yesterday with her Charleston and "Shimmy" numbers. Several song numbers, one a variation from her usual "blues" songs, also gained great applause.

Myer Golden's song and dance revue, "Masterpieces," a beautifully costumed act with splendid scenery, is the headliner this week. The act is worthy of its place on the bill. It comprises four numbers in which a series of stage pictures are enacted by singing and dancing artists. One number, "In Spain," stands out particularly because of its georgeous scenery and well executed dances.

Jane Barber and Jerome Jackson in "Nothing Serious—Just Mirth and Comedy" gave a good song and dance act, sprinkled with clever repartee. Bill and Genevieve in a four-way act, singing, dancing, cycling and talking, made a hit. The Diehl Sisters and McDonald in "Artistic Comedy" also were good. The sisters execute good dances, and McDonald bridges over the intervals between dances with snappy monologue. Their Cleopatra dance was especially well received.

This week's photoplay is "The Wedding Song," starring Leatrice Joy and Robert Ames. The story is the old tale of the beautiful crook "lady" who reforms because she falls in love with the intended victim. Follows a lot of pathetic confession and, after some travail, the usual victory of true love. The orchestral and film features completed the show.

MUTUAL

Ray Read certainly did crash through with a knockout last night at Jack Garrison's Mutual theater with his "Speed Girls."

"Ray's" show, without any scintilla of a doubt, is the best burlesque on either circuit. To say that Mr. Read is an inimitable comic is really putting it mild—he is great, and his style is peculiarly distinctive, unusual and characteristic.

The attraction is entertaining all the way through, but what is probably the "master" act is a courtroom scene in which Ray himself acts as the judge, trying the case of a murdered taxicab driver. Before any evidence in the case is heard it is dismissed by Ray on the grounds that the killing of a taxicab driver is no crime—but a pleasure—and, following objections by the prosecuting attorney, introduction of evidence is permitted, but terminated, however, with the same directed verdict.

Mr. Read is supported by Nellie Nice, a very clever prima donna, and a sterling cast, including a chorus of 20 syncopated jazz queens from Broadway, whose colorful costumes and clever dancing lend the final touch to mark the show a real "knockout."

GAYETY

"Happy Hooligan" comes to life for a few moments at the Gayety this week and then the show turns into a good revue. Joe Yule, who plays "Happy," tires of his Hooligan make-up and displays himself as a contortionist, comedian, dancer and singer. Joe Yule, jr., 4 years old, appears for a few too-short moments, in order to show the house that papa hasn't a corner on the versatility in the Yule household. The youngster makes "wise-cracks," dances the Charleston and sings a "mother" song.

Lola Pierce is the female lead. She is pretty, has a good voice, dances well and makes the audience cry for more. Thelma Harris, blonde, petite and young, displays artistry in a specialty dance number.

Andy Martini wears the most original comic make-up in the show. His line is as funny as his face. George Crabbly has little to do except appear in time to "shoot up" a restaurant. Sid Gold uses his voice to good advantage. Grace Wasson is an excellent acrobatic dancer. Mabel White doesn't get an opportunity to display her real wares until near the end of the show when she impersonates, in a realistic manner, an inebriated wife. There is a well-trained chorus.

KEITH'S

Hal Skelly, in the role of a singing sap, heads a more or less robust bill at Keith's this week. The former musical comedy star is assisted by Peggy Hope and Eunice Sauvain, two good reasons for Skelly's sobriquet of "The Chump."

Miss Hope, a little half-pint of a miss whose head just about strikes Skelly's money pocket, sang and danced her way into a surprising number of encores. The act is well balanced with songs, dances and wise cracks.

York and King, substituting for Ada Reed and George Windyact, who were unable to appear, entertained with a drole comedy number.

Harry Lang, with his trick mustache, presents a truly funny number in "Who Is Your Boss," in which he is assisted by Bernice Haley. Lang's whistling and his take-off on a Greek counterman are especially entertaining.

Ota Gygi, the violinist, comes back to town with some colorful scenery, and with Margaret Severn, a dancer, and Tim Crane, a tenor. Miss Rae Bonstine accompanies at the piano.

Bert Levy, an old favorite at the Robbins rendezvous, returns after a long absence and gives one of his inimitable art entertainments. He also sounds out sentiment on the prohibition question, with a result that would be anything but pleasing to Wayne B. Wheeler.

The Twelve Royal English Dancers, a bevy of shapely belles from London, appear in a dance number that is refreshingly different. Will Burns and Jimmy Burchill are seen in "Tunes, Tickles and Taps," and Ed and Lee Traver do much to justify the building of "Paragons of Physical Endeavor."

PRESIDENT

"Uncle Sam's Follies," starting its second week at the President theater, came into its own last night. The "Follies," a musical and dance revue, staged under the auspices of the District Federation of Federal Employes Unions, has a world of talent in it and, by adding "pep" to its numbers, has developed into a corking good show.

Harlan Randall and Everett Hardell have surprisingly good voices, and in future productions of the "Follies" should be given the chance to show their powers.

Plenty of comedy is afforded by Wilbur Smith, Dick Nash, George Levy and George Hunter. Goldie Grainger and Louis Smith, with the latter's selections, render pleasing numbers.

To pick out those who please would require too much space. The entire cast offers the numbers with vim and vigor, adding to the glories of the producers, Al Stern and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hoffman.

CENTRAL.

"Enemy of Men" is the film feature at Crandall's Central theater the first two days of this week. Harry Langdon is the pictured comic through today in "The White Wing's Bride."

California State Society to Meet

The California State society will meet tomorrow night and elect officers. The meeting will be at the Interior auditorium. President Arthur M. Fell will make an address. There will also be a program of musical numbers by John J. Campbell, manager of the Departmental Players.

Among the entertainers will be Miss Helen Gilcrest, Arthur A. Stone, Philip Hayden, Miss Lenora E. Hill, Miss Helen Iaeger, Miss Catherine Wolf, Miss Katherine O'Brien and Lewis Cole.

HIGH TEA
LOW TEA

ORANGE PEKOE can be superfine tea or distinctly inferior tea. It all depends on whether it is grown high in the mountains or in the lowlands. The higher it is grown, the better the tea.

Asking for Orange Pekoe and hoping to get good tea is almost like asking for meat and hoping to get filet mignon.

Ask for the tea you want by name.

Ask for a ten cent package of Ridgways Orange Label Tea. You will get a wonderful blend of teas grown high in the mountains of India, Ceylon and Java. This blend combines the delicious fragrance of Orange Pekoe with the full rich flavor of the fully matured Pekoe leaf. It is superior to any straight Orange Pekoe which can be sold at a popular price.

THRIFT REFLECTED IN RAPID GROWTH OF NORTHEAST BANK

Organized in 1917 by Small Group, Deposits Now Are $1,500,000.

L. P. STEUART HEADS YOUNG FINANCE FIRM

Christmas Savings for 1925 More Than $200,000; Houses Postoffice.

The thrift of the residents of northeast Washington has been reflected by the rapid growth of the Northeast Savings Bank, which, during the past four years, has grown from a small savings bank into one of the city's staunchest institutions.

In 1917 a small band of northeast citizens, realizing the immediate need for additional banking facilities for a growing neighborhood, petitioned and received a charter for the Northeast Savings Bank. Quarters were taken up at Fourteenth and H streets northeast and the doors thrown open for business.

But lean years were ahead for the little bank, whose total space was less than that now taken up by the postoffice in the present institution, and whose "force" consisted of a cashier and combination book keeper and teller.

Steuart Named President.

The incorporators refused to be discouraged, however, and a new board of directors were elected with L. P. Steuart, northeast business man, as president.

From then on the little bank began to flourish. Depositors began to come in at such a rate that new quarters were deemed advisable and in 1921, the bank, with total deposits of more than $300,000 moved to the northeast corner of Eighth and H streets northeast, considered the most valuable business corner in the northeast.

It was feared at first that this move was unwise, inasmuch as the Northeast Savings Bank's new quarters were directly across the street from a branch of the American Security & Trust Co., which had been established for more than twenty years.

Time soon told, however, for the bank began to increase its business. From its former staff of two employes, the personnel has enlarged to eight and present indications are that several more employes will be taken on.

Deposits, $1,500,000.

Deposits increased during the past four years from $300,000 to more than $1,500,000, and depositors more than trebled in number. As most of the deposits are made by the working class, it was pointed out that the people of Northeast Washington are, on a whole, very thrifty.

The total deposits in the Christmas Savings fund during 1925 was more than $200,000, according to George F. Hoover, second vice president of the bank. When it is shown that the weekly deposits in the Christmas fund run only from $1 to $5 a week, Mr. Hoover explained, a fair idea of the number of citizens saving under this plan can be obtained.

The Northeast Savings Bank, according to Mr. Hoover, is the only bank in the country to his knowledge that has a classified postoffice in it. Caleb Pennington is the postmaster and the office does an unusually large amount of business, adequately caring for the needs of this section of the Northeast.

Hoover Is Optimistic.

With increasing evidence of thrift among the citizens of northeast, the institution has an optimistic outlook for the coming year, Mr. Hoover declared.

The Northeast Savings Bank last year granted an 8 per cent dividend besides a bonus to its employes from 5 to 10 per cent of their salary, it was pointed out. Besides, a $20,000 surplus was noted.

Officers of the bank are L. P. Steuart, president; Charles R. Talbert, first vice president; George F. Hoover, second vice president; W. Reginald Lewis, cashier, and James B. Flynn, counsel.

The board of directors of the institution consists of the following: James H. Brodnax, William H. Ernest, James B. Flynn, Henry E. Glotzbach, Percival Hall, George F. Hoover, Herbert R. King, W. Reginald Lewis, Isaac Narcisenfeld, Charles H. Potter, Kennedy F. Rea, Michael R. Ready, Guy T. Steuart, Leonard P. Steuart, Charles R. Talbert, John H. Thomas and John T. Vivian.

Rev. Kyle Booth Talks At Ingram Memorial

The Rev. Kyle Booth, of the Ingram Memorial church, Massachusetts avenue and Tenth street northeast, spoke yesterday morning on "Jesus Stands in the Jordan."

At the evening service Dr. Booth spoke on the "Elements of Prophecy," in the prophet Samuel. He pointed out that the conception of God was adequate to the needs of the people. Samuel was not himself a predicter of coming events, but a messenger of God to meet the present needs.

Officers of the church will be elected and annual reports will be given at a meeting on Thursday evening. This meeting will be preceded by a family dinner at the church at 6 o'clock.

PEDESTRIAN IS HELD UP; ELEVEN PLACES ROBBED

Thief Hurls Brick Through Window to Steal Two Pairs of Trousers.

UNIVERSITY MEETS LOSS

One holdup and eleven robberies were reported to police yesterday.

Andrew Green, of 227 G street southwest, was held up and robbed at the point of pistols by four colored men shortly after midnight at Four-and-a-half and C streets southwest. They took $7 and a gold watch, valued at $35, from him. The men disappeared in an alley.

While waiting on a customer, Clarence W. Suthard, manager of a garage at 2424 Eighteenth street northwest, saw an unidentified white man run from the office. Investigation showed that the cash register had been robbed of $10. The man disappeared in a waiting automobile.

A thief threw a brick through the show window of a clothing store at 229 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, owned by Jacob Moss, and took two pairs of trousers before being frightened away by several men who heard the crash of glass.

A bank book and $190 in cash were stolen from the room of Clay Edwards, of 3117 M street northwest, by intruders, who, according to police, gained entrance to the house with a duplicate key.

Smashing a rear window in the gasoline station at 4515 Conduit road northwest, intruders last night made away with accessories valued at $20.

Engineering instruments valued at $70 were stolen from the drawing room at Catholic university during the Christmas holidays, according to a report made to police yesterday by Thomas Hall Locrose, of 40 Rhode Island avenue northeast.

Thieves last night took a rug 9 by 12 feet from the lobby of the Rodman apartments, Connecticut avenue and Rodman street northwest, according to Raymond Barnes, janitor. The rug was valued at $25.

The real estate office of Thomas P. Brown, at 615 Four-and-a-half street southwest, was broken into and ransacked yesterday morning, but nothing was reported as missing.

OLD BREWERY VATS LEAD TO DISPUTE OVER SCHOOL SITE

Seller of Land Declares Vast Underground Vaults Are Not "Appurtenances."

DISTRICT HEADS AVER THEY MUST BE MOVED

Would Mean Excavation of Entire Lot, Myers Says, Refusing to Do So.

A misunderstanding over the interpretation of the word appurtenances has created a controversy between the engineering department of the District and Charles E. Myers, contractor, 649 Maryland avenue northeast, as to just how much of the old Washington Brewery Co., in F street between Fourth and Fifth streets northeast, Mr. Myers is under contract to remove.

The site was purchased from Mr. Myers by the District for the erection of the Stuart Junior High school, provided for in the five-year building program. Under the arrangements of the purchase, Mr. Myers was to remove the buildings, machinery and appurtenances.

The buildings and machinery have been removed, and, Mr. Myers contends, all appurtenances thereto. But the engineering department has discovered what it considers still more "appurtenances" in the form of a maze of subterranean vaults, somewhat similar to the tomb of King Tut or the catacombs of Rome, beneath the buildings that have been removed.

Mr. Myers has been given four extensions of time to remove these "appurtenances," it was reported at the District building yesterday. The last extension expires January 15.

Would Have to Excavate.

In reply Mr. Myers states that if he had known that he would be expected to go beneath the surface of the earth to remove "appurtenances" he would never have sold the site to the District. He declared the vaults were constructed for cooling beer in the days before cold storage.

He declares that such are not appurtenances, and that he will not remove them. He said:

"I sold the site to the District in order that the community might be benefited. It was to have cost the District an additional $150,000 to condemn buildings and provide a site for the school elsewhere.

"I made a very considerable sacrifice in order that the District might have the place. They were after me for it. And it is very unjust to expect me to dig those old vaults out. They reach under Fourth street. I would have to excavate the whole lot. Besides it will require a steam shovel. To provide a steam shovel and do this work would almost mean bankruptcy for me, considering the sacrifice I made in selling it. But the District could knock the tops off at a cost of less than $2,000. The hill will require smoothing, anyway."

Thus the case rests.

RADIO CONCERT BRINGS CHURCH ENGAGEMENT

"The Hill Billies" Play Tonight for the Columbia Heights Christian Congregation.

Inspired by the performance of "The Hill Billies," a group of seven east Tennessee, North Carolina and Virginia "fiddlers" and all-around musicians, in their concert recently over WCAP, L. W. Riggs, 517 Kenyon street northwest, has arranged for their appearance tonight at 8 o'clock in Columbia Heights Christian church, 1435 Park road northwest.

Mr. Riggs listened to the concert over the radio. He called WCAP. The announcer informed him where he might find the group, and gave him the name of one of the performers from east Tennessee. The Rev. Harvey Baker Smith, pastor of the church, announces that the public is invited to tonight's performance.

The mountaineers will give old songs in vocal, violin, banjo and guitar music. All will be played by ear. The players are champion "fiddlers" from their communities. Charles Bowman, of Johnson City, Tenn., is said to have won 28 out of 32 "fiddling" contests. Albert Hopkins, of North Carolina, is director of the group.

Rev. C. L. Overstreet In Southeast Pulpit

The Rev. Charles L. Overstreet, of New York, secretary of the Eastern district of the general council of the Presbyterian church, spoke on Stewardship last night at the Metropolitan Presbyterian church, Fourth and B streets southeast.

At the 11 o'clock communion service, the Rev. Freeley Rohrer, pastor of the church, preached a short sermon on "Now Is the Accepted Time."

BOOSTERS OF EAST ASK BETTER PAVING AND NEW BUS LINES

These Improvements Will Remove Last Obstacle to Growth, Says Leader.

R. R. FAULKNER SEES POWER IN UNITED BODY

Declares Association Will Back Projects Only When Vote Is Unanimous.

A concerted effort to secure appropriations from Congress for the building and improvement of streets of the eastern sections, and at the same time to obtain better transportation facilities, is the first plan of the recently organized East Washington Boosters association, it was announced yesterday.

The new organization has not yet settled down to business, Robert R. Faulkner, chairman of the publicity committee, said yesterday. But with a membership now of the majority of the citizens' associations, and certain promise that the remainder of the citizens' groups and other organizations will shortly enroll, the association bids fair to become in a short time a new force in Washington affairs, he declared.

There are principally two reasons for the creation of the organization, it is said. In the first place, the advantages of East Washington are believed worthy of a coordinated "boost" at the hands of its citizens. Secondly, the faster these sections have grown, the further the appropriations from Congress for improvements and actual necessities have fallen behind.

Declares It "Coming" Area.

The citizens who established the association are convinced that east Washingtgon is the "coming division of the city," Mr. Faulkner said. The plan to secure better streets and more streets includes the widening of some, the cutting through of others and the creation of streets in many sections. In the way of better transportation facilities, the association will endeavor to obtain bus lines and extensions of existing lines.

Both the need of streets and better transportation is felt most in the outlying and recently developed sections, Mr. Faulkner said. He declared that the only objection ever expressed toward moving into East Washington is the fact that these needs exist. But when these things are realized, as the association intends they shall, residents in the eastern sections will be able to reach the business section much quicker and more easily than residents of other sections, he said. That is true now of those who have automobiles, he declared.

The association intends to discuss and pass upon questions that affect individual communities and the eastern sections as a whole. The association will indorse a project as a body only when assent is unanimous, Mr. Faulkner said. Otherwise, it will be a getting together of those groups who do indorse the project, enabling them to take cooperative action. As the association sprung from associations of East Washington, visiting each other and expressing joint views, so will it continue to work, with the added advantage that the work of the groups will be simplified under the common bond of organization, he declared.

SENATE DEMOCRATS URGE MORE TAX CUTS

Simmons, would increase the reduction voted by the House for incomes between $22,000 and $100,000.

Repeal of the taxes on capital stock, admissions and dues made in the demand of additional reduction in passenger-automobile taxes was not touched in the plan on which they agreed.

Cuts in the normal income tax rates and the increased personal exemptions of income taxes provided in the House measure were accepted and no reference was made to the inheritance tax, publicity of income tax returns or any of the other rate schedules.

In making public the plan, Senator Simmons announced that it represented the views of Democrats only on the specific items mentioned. "Other important matters in the bill will be dealt with as they are reached," he said, indicating that some of the minority members will fight for other changes in the House measure.

Woman, Stabbed, May Die.

Grace Gilbert, 28 years old, colored, of 84 Myrtle street northeast, was stabbed, probably fatally, during a quarrel yesterday at 1006 First street northwest. She was taken to the Freedmen's hospital. Harry Hardy, who lives at the First street address, was later arrested and charged with assault with a dangerous weapon.

COMMUNISM IN MEXICO.

Communism is going forward with its devilish work in Mexico. It is driving that country and the United States into a controversy which may develop into a knockout fight between communism and republicanism in Mexico.

In 1922 President Harding proposed to President Obregon that a treaty should be drawn up in which Mexico would agree to amend its constitution so as to afford protection to foreign life and property, and that thereupon the United States would recognize the Obregon government. Obregon rejected the proposal. Then President Harding sent a commission to Mexico, which conducted negotiations with a Mexican commission with a view to according recognition to Obregon after obtaining assurances that foreign life and property would be protected. The Mexican commission placed an official interpretation upon the scope and meaning of proposed legislation to give effect to Article 27 of the constitution, and this interpretation, constituting a pledge by Mexico that it would not make its laws retroactive, was accepted by the American commission as an assurance that American property rights would be protected. Claims conventions were agreed to, and President Coolidge extended recognition to the Obregon government on August 31, 1923.

Gen. Calles succeeded to the presidency of Mexico in 1924, and placed communists in strong places in his administration. Since that time the communist influence has been at work tearing down the agreement under which the United States recognized the Mexican government and resumed diplomatic relations with it. The communists, either with President Calles' consent or over his objection, have succeeded in enacting land and mining laws which are retroactive, and which, if enforced, will take away the property rights of Americans in Mexico.

This has been done in the face of the warning uttered by Secretary Kellogg last year, in which he gave notice that the Mexican government was on trial and that "the United States will continue to support the government in Mexico only so long as it protects American lives and American rights and complies with its international engagements and obligations."

A vigorous protest has been made by Ambassador Sheffield against the confiscatory legislation in Mexico. The text of the note has not been made public, but no one can doubt that it is of such a nature as to bring to an issue the attempt by Mexican communists to destroy the property rights of Americans. Mexico must back down from the position it has taken, or the United States must adopt effective means of protecting its citizens.

If the government of Mexico were in the firm grip of Gen. Calles, there would be reasonable hope of an amicable adjustment. But he is obviously unable to check the communists who are hurrying the country to destruction. The elements which really control Mexico are so ignorant, so imbued with Russian communism, and so unscrupulous in pursuing their aims that they will probably persist in the attempt to take away American property and thus precipitate a clash with the United States.

A respectable portion of the Mexican people detests the communist movement and would overthrow it if opportunity afforded. Many influential army officers are disgusted with the communization of the national army. It is quite possible that the communist excesses will drive the Mexican people into revolt, in which case Calles would be succeeded by an executive willing to fulfill international obligations, and capable of doing so. If the Calles administration should proceed with its confiscatory plans, despite the American protest, it would be the duty of the United States to withdraw recognition, sever diplomatic relations, and interpose no obstacle to a movement by the Mexican people to set up a responsible republican government.

Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly, dictionary editor, has found that a well-schooled physician, minister or lawyer has a vocabulary greater than that attributed to Shakespeare. The poet's range of words included 23,000, while the highly-trained professional man must know how to use 25,000 or more, and the average business man gets along with 10,000 or less. Woodrow Wilson in writing three of his books used 60,000 distinct terms, but when he delivered his first seven speeches he made use of only 7,000 different words. The average person knows from 3,000 to 10,000, while the college graduate acquires more than 20,000. But how many can say so much in so few words as Lincoln did in his Gettysburg speech?

"AMERICA DRAGGED IN."

Those senators who are urging American adhesion to the world court on the ground that the court "has nothing to do with the league of nations" may not be very grateful to Raymond Fosdick, the internationalist, who served for some time as undersecretary of the league. In an article celebrating the sixth anniversary of the league Mr. Fosdick "spills the beans" as follows:

> It is from these small and uncertain beginnings that the league of nations has grown to its present proportions. Every year adds to its effectiveness and prestige. Internationally speaking, nothing can be done without reference to it. The Locarno treaties were built into it and the new conference for disarmament is part of it. More and more each year, too, the United States is being dragged into the circle of its influence.

But the international court is not connected with the league and is entirely independent of it! Although the league created the court and maintains it, and although the court is the judicial department of the league and the political adviser of the league council, senators have the nerve to tell their colleagues that the court is not under the influence of the league.

Why not drop this mendacious talk? Why not accept Senator Bruce's frank and truthful statement that the court is a part of the league system?

Mr. Fosdick may find that he is a little too emphatic when he declares that "internationally speaking, nothing can be done without reference to the league." The adjustment of relations between Mexico and the United States, for example, may be accomplished without reference to the league. At any rate, apparently determined to safeguard American interests in Mexico without calling upon the league or the league court for assistance.

A neighborhood is made "good" by the presence of people who are soaked for the privilege of living there.

NATURE'S SWEET RESTORER.

The Mellon Institute of Industrial Research has selected twelve students who are to do nothing during a period of years but submit themselves as exhibits in an investigation into the causes and necessity for sleep. The twelve students are now living together in one house, "using specially constructed beds to which are attached instruments recording every change in posture." Dr. Johnson, who has charge of the experiment, has contrived an instrument by which he thinks he can obtain a record of the mental alertness of the subject. "This is used to determine the effect of fatigue on efficiency, too much time in bed, and effects of loss of sleep."

It is shrewdly suspected that Secretary Mellon is behind these experiments, and that the real object of the investigation is to ascertain how much longer some of the claims resting in the office of the comptroller general may be expected to remain in a state of somnolence. In connection with these experiments it may not be out of place to call upon Mr. Thomas A. Edison, who is understood to have solved the problem of existence without sleep. Mr. Edison is recognized as the foremost inventor of the century, and his evidence and advice on the subject of somnolence might give added value to the investigations by the Mellon institute, inasmuch as he has long claimed that humans pass too much of their time in bed.

Mr. Coolidge is an unusual President. He uses applesauce only for dessert.

AMERICA'S BANKING POWER.

The combined banking power of all banks in the United States June 30 last, including 8,072 national banks, 20,769 banks other than national, the 12 reserve banks and estimated figures for 437 non-reporting private banks, was $60,469,400,000, exceeding the amount June 30, 1924, by some $4,022,000,000.

The banking power of the country consists of the capital, surplus funds, and undivided profits, and certain classes of deposits of all banks, with the addition of national and Federal Reserve Bank circulation.

Of the total banking power June 30, 1925, national banks contributed $20,641,800,000, or 34 per cent; banks other than national, $35,092,000,000, or 58 per cent, and Federal Reserve Banks, $4,745,000,000, or about 8 per cent.

This means that the banks and credit institutions of all kinds are able to sustain a national business credit at one time of more than sixty billion dollars. This is a little less than one-fifth of the national wealth, and about equal to the estimated national income.

No such banking power has ever been known before in the world's history.

Once the army was divided into regiments and things like that, instead of hostile blocs.

ELIMINATION OF WASTE.

Waste in material and in labor is recognized as one of the greatest blights on American industry. The subject is discussed in every gathering of economists, and many plans are suggested to remedy the evil. Still industrial waste continues. Occasionally, however, a practical reformer arises and demonstrates in a practical way his own theory without "hiring a hall" in which to tell his fellows what they already know.

Bearing out this assertion is the case of a sign painter of Washington. This sign painter apologized for his failure to deliver a sign on the day promised by saying: "Yesterday was clean-up day and I had forgotten that when I promised delivery." Asked to explain his meaning, he said: "In our business we use great quantities of gold leaf After a letter is blocked out it is covered with a coating of glue, on this glue is laid sheets of leaf gold. When dry the sign is brushed off and fine particles of the gold fall on the floor. The floor is carefully swept. Once each quarter these sweepings are sent to the assay office in Philadelphia, where they are refined. The returns are divided among the employes and on "clean-up day" the men take a holiday. That is the custom in every sign shop. What do the returns amount to? Oh, from $5 to $20 for each employe."

When the new mint was built in Denver there were installed in the basement big vats into which the water from the wash basin in the coinage rooms is drained. When this water settles it is siphoned off and the residue is dried and saved. Whenever there is a shortage in the bullion account this dried residue is refined and the result makes up the shortage.

In South Omaha the superintendent of a big packing house had his curiosity aroused by the activities of men who were busily engaged near the mouth of a creek which emptied into the Missouri. Investigation discovered that the creek had been dammed and that the owners of the dam were skimming the top of the water every morning. Further inquiry developed the fact that these enterprising citizens were cleaning up $30,000 annually from the sale of the fats which they skimmed from the waters of that creek. The packer thereupon built a settling tank into which all his floor washings were drained. The skimmings, which followed, resulted in annual additions to the receipts of the plant of about the amount which the independent skimmers formerly acquired. But those skimmers are still skimming and while they do not earn as much as formerly they still obtain excellent returns upon their investment.

MUSSOLINI'S PROGRAM.

Benito Mussolini, so far as known, has never claimed to be a direct descendant of either Julius or Augustus Caesar. But the dictator of modern Rome seems to aspire to a place in the sun equal in prominence to that of either of the pre-Christian emperors. Romulus, the founder of that empire, according to tradition, made his early home in the den of a wolf—

> "Cast the bantling on a rock;
> Suckle him with a she-wolf's teat."

Mussolini, equally rugged and of obscure origin, now decrees that Italy shall have a new birth of glory and that the somewhat faded "grandeur that was Rome" shall be restored on a scale of magnificence that will make the world bite the finger of astonishment.

Nor is the rejuvenator disposed to be satisfied with an empire of marble and stone. He, like great Julius, wants an army behind him, and to this end, according to late advices, he has set out to train an army, beginning with every male citizen now 8 years of age or over.

Mussolini may be willing to join with the rest of the world in limiting armaments, but he will not permit Italy to fall to the rear when it comes to men trained to bear arms. Every bambino, as soon as he reaches the mature age of 8, is to be ordered to prepare himself to defend his country. Italy, under the Mussolini program, will have a fighting force of valiant soldiers as soon as the new military training program is under way.

The revival of the Roman empire, the aggrandizement of imperial Rome, and the maintenance of an army composed of every male citizen constitute an ambitious program, in view of the fact that Italy is running on the strength of a $100,000,000 loan from J. P. Morgan & Co. But Mussolini evidently does not intend to be criticized for lack of ambition.

The new mayor of New York, James J. Walker, product of Tammany Hall, who announced before assuming office that he intends to "clean up" and make the big city a model municipality, must get much satisfaction out of the casualty records on his first day. It is said that New Year's eve was the wettest in the history of the town, and yet not a single mortality was reported.

Love is the quality that enables a man or woman to have confidence in a liar.

When a country isn't worrying about its soul, you may be sure it is making money.

One way to earn money without quitting college is to marry it.

The Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By Will Rogers

The Worst Story I heard today was told to me by Mr. John Trotwood Moore, of Nashville, Tenn. I told you one of Mr. Moore's one time, but this is another one. He is keeper of the Archives and History in the State Capitol of Tennessee. He is a pleasure to meet if there ever was one. Oh Boy! what a typical Southern Gentleman! You love to hear him talk, not only the words sound good, but they make mighty good sense.

He wrote that well remembered Article in the Saturday Evening Post, giving the REAL life of Andrew Jackson. I never read a story in the Post I enjoyed more than I did that one. I am just laying for some more on some other of the great Southerners. Mr. Lorimer of the Post saw what was in him right away and grabbed him up for several Articles. He tells stories to you and you never tire of listening. Most of them are on the colored tribe.

Two men went into a Restaurant and one said to the colored Waiter, "Boy, bring me some ham and eggs. Eggs fried, cup of coffee and some rolls."

"Bring me the same," replied the other man, "but eliminate the eggs."

"Yessir, yessir."

In a moment the waiter come back, leaned over confidentially to the man that had ordered last, and said, "We had a bad accident just afore we opened up dis mornin', and Sir, do you know de handle of de 'liminator got broke off, so you better take yours jus' like his, fried."

PRESS COMMENT

Americanism.

Philadelphia Inquirer: Americanism—Paying $18 a ton for $6.50 Connellsville coke and kicking about the price of English rubber.

Small Jobs.

Portland (Oreg.) Spectator: Some persons think the job near at hand is too small for them. Here's Gov. Pinchot telling President Coolidge how to run the country, while Philadelphia has the bad eminence of being the worst-governed city in the Union.

Blood Pressure.

Philadelphia Inquirer: Still another good test of blood pressure is to move quietly out of the way of a truck whose driver has opened his exhaust whistle just as he bore down on you, and not feel any desire to yank him off his seat and wipe up the street with him.

The Coldstream Guard.

Brooklyn Eagle: London's professional chorusmen object to having Coldstream Guard soldiers take away their jobs, working off hours. They are turned down cold by the authorities. "They look like men" is the apology of the producing managers. And this is clearly adding insult to injury.

Fair Play.

New York World: From France comes the forecast that since Mlle. Lenglen is in poor physical condition, Miss Helen Wills, should a match be arranged, will have a good chance to defeat her. This may be good news for patriots, but it will not do for sportsmen. A technical victory is a hollow victory at best. If there is to be a match, let it come when Mlle. Lenglen is in condition. Then, however it turns out, we shall know that the best lady has won.

Children on Street Cars.

Baltimore Sun: Pittsburgh joins the cities where the right of a child to ride free on street cars is determined not by his age but by his height. This is a simple standard and decisions under it are easily made. To provide the maximum satisfaction to the car-riding public, however, some inventor must prepare a weighing machine for platform use. With the aid of these platform scales, so to speak, the conductor might be able to determine which children are too heavy to ride on their mothers' laps. It is neither age nor height, but the use of seating space which the cash customer would like to see paid for.

Different.

Wilmington Every Evening: A fellow in South Carolina killed his wife the other day in a quarrel over some turkeys; which is different from the usual news report, which is that the wife killed the husband in a quarrel over some chickens.

Savings and Interest.

New York Sun: The Bank for Savings reveals the interesting history of its Account No. 738. It was started in 1819 by a young man who made a first deposit of $10 and a year later a second deposit of $5. Since then the account has slumbered, waking only when interest was added quarterly. Now it has grown to $2,392 and the heir lets it sleep.

This is all very well as an illustration of the wonders of interest. But it does not speak so well of the original depositor. Why did he stop with two deposits? If he had put $10 in the bank every month for 17 years and let capital and interest work for his heirs, the balance would now amount to about $200,000.

Of course, under the law, a savings bank can not carry an account so large, but that would be the right sort of ancestor.

Mixed Juries.

Philadelphia Inquirer: A New York magistrate, Jean G. Norris, comes out with the suggestion that juries should be composed of six men and six women in the hope that "masculine sentimentality" would be offset by the latter. We've rather been expecting something of this sort, but its materialization comes as a shock all the same. What the men of this generation seem to need is more of that sterner stuff of which women are made.

Ritchie and 1928.

New York Evening World: The presidential boom of Gov. Ritchie is to be launched in January at a dinner "to be attended by 24 governors." Assuming that the 24 will materialize, how many can deliver their State delegations? That's the rub!

The Strategy of Life

By GLENN FRANK

I HAVE just reread Dr. Simon Flexner's address before the 1920 Congress of American Physicians and Surgeons on methods of meeting the menace of recurrent influenza epidemics.

I lay the pamphlet down with the conviction that if we could deal with the inefficiencies of our personal careers and our public affairs as wisely as Dr. Flexner suggests we should deal with influenza, we should be the masters rather than the victims of events.

Here a few deductions that may be drawn from his address:

First, disease must be dealt with at its source.

The Good Samaritanism of medicine must rush about treating cases while an epidemic is on, but the statesmanship of medicine must remove causes if an epidemic is to be prevented. And the whole art of effective living begins with the habit of dealing with causes rather than effects. It is easier to swear or sulk over failures of personal projects or public policies than to recognize and to remove the causes, but failure like disease must be dealt with at its source.

Second, the cause of disease may lie far from its breaking-out point. Boston may have Bombay to thank for an epidemic. Mr. Wilson reminded us that the roots of the world war went down into all the obscure soils of history. A personal failure invariably goes down into all the obscure soils of a man's mind and character. We have very few national problems that do not have world implications. And the efficiency or inefficiency of a single day's work is related to the soundness or unsoundness of our whole character and training. The cause of failure may lie far from its point of appearance, in some obscure corner of our characters.

Third, we must attack disease continuously in the long period before the acute or epidemic stage is reached.

I said the other day in this column that we live and work too much under the spell of the immediate. The time to break a strike is twenty-five years before it is called. The time to stop a war is a century before it is declared. The time to insure success and to prevent failure in our personal careers is in the long period of preparation for our job.

Fourth, as the world moves faster than ever before, so disease moves faster than ever before.

The faster the tempo of life in a country, the swifter will an epidemic extend. We must act quickly if we wish to protect life. We have no time to waste in dabbling with quack nostrums. Whether it is a matter of scientists dealing with disease or statesmen dealing with discontent the times require prompt and preventive statesmanship. And for the individual the race of our modern life is swift. We must recover from our lapses into inefficiency with alacrity or we lose ground we shall never regain. A stage-coach career is out of place in an express-train age.

We need a few Simon Flexners of politics, a few Alexis Carrels of industry.

MISSING PERSONS.

According to the figures collected by the bureau of missing persons, the number of people who went astray in this city and for a while were recorded officially as "lost" in the year 1925 constituted an army 20,388 strong, says the New York Times. The police found or otherwise accounted for more than 98 per cent of these wanderers and only the small remainder succeeded in disappearing—if that was their purpose.

Those who hear the nightly reports of missing persons broadcast by WNYC know how often the description is followed by: "Mental condition, poor." That is the most frequent cause, but there are also a lot of runaways, including many little children, and more numerous boys and girls, moved by nothing worse than the spirit of adventure.

There are tragedies not a few in this list of disappearances, and probably in every one of them there is anxiety for somebody, usually for whole families. It would be interesting to know the motives of those who really ran away—how many of them were evading social responsibilities, how many were in fear of the police, and how many merely were wearied of the monotony of life as they found it at home.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Automobile Fatalities.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: How many pedestrians have been killed by automobiles in the District of Columbia since January 1, 1925? On investigation it will be found that 90 per cent occur in the residential districts which are not properly policed. Only last week a little girl was run down in the northeast, and as usual it was an unavoidable accident.

If you damage another machine you are fined or jailed, but if you run down a pedestrian and kill him you will be let free. It is hard to understand the way the law is administered when it values property more than human life.

JOSEPH M. OWENS.

Immigration and World Court.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In a circular issued by the American Foundation, New York, in behalf of our country's adherence to the world court, I find the following, apropos of the court's "advisory opinion" on the Tunisian nationality question: "The court said that whether a question was purely domestic was essentially relative, depending on the development of international relations."

If this is so, how would the court regard our problem of immigration—as an "essentially relative" matter? For an overwhelming majority of Americans, the question of immigration is absolute, positive, and our present interests concerning it are, unhappily, irreconcilable with the interests of much of the rest of the world.

But it will be said, we are going into the court with a reservation under which we refuse to be bound by any opinion of the court unless it concerns a question submitted to it by the United States. This arrangement suggests the homely comparison of a man who enters a card game with the "reservation" that he can quit playing any time he gets a hand he doesn't like, and then begin again whenever a good hand turns up. If the cards can be dealt against us, why not stay out of the game altogether?

TALCOTT MINER BANKS.

PEOPLE OF MADAGASCAR

The peoples of Madagascar have long furnished a fascinating mystery for ethnologists and archeologists, says the Detroit News. They are of extremely mixed cultures, inclusive of three apparently main elements—Bantu Negroes from Africa; the Hovas of Malay stock, and a fringe of Arabs all along the coasts, the descendants of the Fatimite caliphs, who were driven out of Arabia and Egypt in the eighth century.

These three elements are subdivided into fifteen or more main tribes, which in turn are divided again into smaller partially distinctive groups. There are also hints of a pygmy element among the populations.

Madagascar, incidentally, is the only spot in the world where lemurs, believed by evolutionists to be the parent stock of both monkeys and man, are still numerous.

Bal Boheme Tonight.

The flavor of a foreign carnival scene which is to characterize the Bal Boheme of the Arts club at the Willard tonight has strongly attracted many members of the diplomatic corps in Washington; and the patroness list likewise includes prominent women in official society. Additional patronesses are Signora de Telles, Mme. Samy Pasha, Mme. Kazemi and Mme. de Teran. Of the cabinet, Mrs. Dwight F. Davis, Mrs. Wilbur, Mrs. Jardine and Mrs. Sargent have consented to serve as patronesses, and among notable Washington hostesses are Mrs. George Barnett, Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook and Mrs. Edward Stafford.

All the boxes have been taken. Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Leisenring, the former being the president of the Arts club will have in their box Mrs. Lasalle Pickett, Mrs. William Hamilton Bayley, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Crowther and Dr. and Mrs. William J. Mallory. Other prominent people in Washington will wear specially designed costumes.

Mrs. Wadsworth is a member of the Washington committee of the American Foundation for the Blind. Miss Keller is touring the country under the auspices of the foundation in an effort to arouse interest in the blind of the nation. She is devoting her life to raising a $2,000,000 endowment fund, the interest of which is to be used in helping blind people to become economically independent.

Miss Keller and Mrs. Macy will tell some of the more intimate aspects of their work during the afternoon. A musical program has been arranged by Edwin Grasse, the eminent blind violinist, and Mrs. Ida Hirst-Gifford, the New York pianist. Assembly Ball January 27.

The Washington Assembly which is scheduled to occur on Wednesday night January 27, at the Mayflower is a subscription ball, by invitation of the board of governors only, as was the custom in former years here; and it is planned to make this representative and patriotic gathering an annual event in Washington. As there are necessarily a limited number of invitations, those who apply for membership must be placed on a waiting list pending possible vacancies. The charter members of the new organization were invited last spring, and the charter membership list, closed July 1.

It is to be essentially an "Old Washington Ball" but representative of the official, diplomatic and social life in the National Capital, so utterly different from any other city in America. There will be, for instance, an old-time supper served at tables, in the big dining room, and in the wide corridors at the Mayflower. Old-time minuets are being arranged by Mrs. Walter Tuckerman and Mrs. Theodore Douglas Robinson, two sets for young married couples and two sets for debutantes, only thirty-two dancers in all.

Boxes are being engaged by prominent people, but a few choice boxes yet remain. Mme. Ekengren, who is chairman of boxes, announces that the box of honor will be occupied by a small but distinguished group of guests of the committee.

As the Washington Assembly is a costume ball, all members are asked to wear a costume of any period or kind, although this not in any way obligatory. It is hoped that gentlemen who prefer not to wear costume will wear a decorative ribbon, a hunting coat or uniform.

WASHINGTON TOPS LIST FOR FOOD PRICE GAINS

Costs Here Are 72 Per Cent Higher Than They Were in 1913.

NEW YORK IS SECOND

Washington is leading the country in increased cost of foodstuffs, prevailing at present over prices current in 1913, according to figures made public yesterday by the bureau of labor statistics of the Department of Labor.

Although there has been a decrease of 1 per cent in prices of foodstuffs during the four-week period from November 15 to December 15, 1925, it was shown that the price of foodstuffs in Washington is still 72 per cent above 1913 figures.

In spite of the decrease during the month period, foodstuffs increased in Washington 8 per cent from December 15, 1924, to December 15, 1925. The increase during the past year, however, was not near as great in Washington as in other cities.

Increases in Atlanta and Cincinnati were 13 per cent, and in Omaha 12 per cent. Only three cities out of 26 accounted for has smaller increases than Washington. These were Omaha, 7 per cent, and Dallas and Salt Lake City, 4 per cent.

Washington has had one of the smallest decreases during the past month. Louisville and Portland, Maine, have had decreases during the four-week period of 3 per cent.

The bureau has maintained a survey of prices in 51 cities since 1913. New York is second to Washington with a 70 per cent increase since 1913, while Salt Lake City is last in the list with 40 per cent.

"Resolved, that in order to wage our struggle effectively and to bring our fight to a quick, successful termination, our district scale committee be urged to call a general strike in the anthracite region, including all maintenance men, thereby making it impossible for the scabs to continue to produce coal for market under the guise of maintenance work; and be it further

"Resolved, that we convey to our scale committee once again the assurance of our support in our aggressive fight to the finish for all our demands and that we reaffirm our decision to reject absolutely the operators' proposal for arbitration."

126 MEMBERS RECEIVED IN HOLY NAME BRANCH

Admissions to Society Are Made at St. Joseph's Catholic Church Services.

SOLEMN VESPERS SUNG

Following solemn vespers and solemn benediction yesterday evening 126 new members were received into the St. Joseph's branch of the Holy Name society. The services were held in St. Joseph's Catholic church, Second and C streets northeast.

The vespers and benediction services were sung by Mgr. P. C. Gavan, pastor of the Church of the Sacred Heart, assisted by the Rev. John Dowling, pastor of the Holy Name church, and the Rev. Franz Schneweiss, pastor of the Church of Our Lady of Perpetual Help, Anacostia.

The discourse was given by the Very Rev. Edward Fitzgerald, of the Dominican house of studies, Catholic university, who spoke on the "Christian Family." Father Fitzgerald said that the Christian family should model itself after the holy family, and try to live by the same ideals and love for one another.

The new members were received by Father Fitzgerald and the Rev. Joseph Kennedy, assistant pastor of St. Joseph's and spiritual director of the St. Joseph's branch. Music for the services was rendered by the St. Joseph boys' choir. The Rev. Edward P. McAdams, pastor of St. Joseph's, and other prominent Washington Catholic clergymen were present at the altar during the services.

A smoker and social reception will be given in honor of the new members Saturday night in the St. Joseph's parochial school hall, Second and C streets northeast.

RAIN TODAY LIKELY TO WASH SNOW AWAY

The warmer weather curtailed coasting activities. Police reported every available hill thronged with young and old, but the rise of the mercury and heavy traffic cut their enjoyment short.

Street car and bus traffic was only slightly hindered by the snow. Buses between Baltimore and Washington and other points were somewhat delayed, however.

Over 2,000 persons coasted on Scott hill at Soldiers home yesterday. There were no restrictions in either age or sex. Sedate fathers were seen guiding delighted infants down the half-mile track, while screaming girls were pursued by youths.

Thirteenth street from E to F streets northwest was closed to traffic last night due to its slippery condition. After one of the large buses of the Washington Rapid Transit Co. had made the slope sidewise, police of the First precinct were stationed both at E and F street to direct traffic.

Automobiles skidded up and down the street after dusk had settled and the snow had changed to ice. Police at first decided to place sand on the street. None was available, so they decided to close the street.

Police were also stationed at Thirteenth and Florida avenue, Nineteenth and Florida avenue, Sixteenth and Kalorama road northwest and Tenth and F streets northeast at the top of steep hills, directing traffic from the danger zones.

"HOME, SWEET HOME"

Is Better Than

Worthless Stock

A greedy, scheming, unscrupulous stock salesman had observed Mrs. G. and her efforts to care for her family.

At that time he was offering stock in an invention which he claimed would revolutionize the motion picture industry.

He approached Mrs. G. and suavely painted a picture of future wealth and happiness. He pointed to large fortunes which others had acquired through inventions.

Mrs. G. mortgaged her home and rushed to the salesman to buy stock. Two years went by and she had received no dividends. The company had many excuses.

Finally, in desperation, she came to the Bureau. It developed that this man, with others, had promoted and sold stock in over twenty companies, hardly any of which had proved successful. Mrs. G.'s investment is probably worthless, and she is unable to meet the mortgage on her home.

MARKETING EXPERTS REVISE SCHOOL WORK ON COOPERATIVE PLAN

TREATISE IS INTENDED FOR USE OF TEACHERS

Meeting Is Preliminary to the Fourth National Conference Here This Week.

With a view toward having cooperative marketing taught in the public schools of the nation, former Governor Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois; Aaron Sapiro, attorney for the cooperative marketing associations, and a score of other cooperative experts and school teachers, met in the Shoreham hotel yesterday and read and revised a text book that they are preparing for use in the schools.

Mr. Lowden presided as chairman of the joint committee of cooperative experts and teachers that are preparing the book. This is one of the many group meetings of the cooperatives, preliminary to the four-day session of the Fourth National Cooperative Marketing conference that opens at the Lee house tomorow morning.

Book Chapters Prepared.

The department of rural education of the National Education association decided to prepare the text book at a meeting in Indianapolis last year. Since that time the committeemen had prepared different chapters for the book and these were read, revised and discussed at the meeting of the committee yesterday. The purpose of the book is to give farm children a sympathetic understanding of cooperative modes of agricultural life, which the committee believes to be the permanent type of farm aid for the future. According to the committee, their motives are in part as follows:

"Farmers can not get the money to support good schools, except as they get it out of their crops.

"They cannot get it out of their crops until they cease dumping them individually at a loss, and begin to market them collectively at a profit.

"Cooperative marketing develops more rapidly and more soundly where young farmers have been first educated to understand it. The proper education of the youth before they become members reduces the strain on membership contract, and on local morale."

The last sentence gives the real motive of the cooperative text book in a nutshell.

Farm Experts Present.

Among the nationally prominent farm experts who attended the meeting were Charles L. Christensen, of the cooperative marketing division of the Agricultural Department; E. G. Nourse, chief of the agricultural division of the Institute of Economics; Mrs. Kathryn Cook, of the United States bureau of education; Kenyon L. Butterfield, president of the Michigan State Agricultural college at Lansing, and Frank Evans, of Chicago, secretary of the American Farm Bureau federation.

The meeting of this committee was closed, but general sessions of the four-day conference, starting tomorrow, will be open to the public. All sessions will be held in the Lee house, Fifteenth and L streets. Judge R. W. Bingham, of Louisville, Ky., publisher and owner of the Louisville Courier-Journal and Times, as chairman of the National Council of Farmers' Cooperative Marketing Associations, will preside over the general sessions of the convention. Two hundred and fifty accredited delegates have made reservations at the local hotels to attend the conference, and that many more visitors from this city and Virginia and Maryland are expected to attend.

Mr. Lowden will be the principal speaker at the annual banquet of the conference Wednesday night at the Lee house, and Judge Bingham will be toastmaster. The conference will close Friday, with committee reports and election of officers.

Secretary of Agriculture William M. Jardine will address the conference Thursday morning on "What the U. S. Department of Agriculture is Doing and Going to Do for Cooperative Marketing." Other prominent agriculturists on the program for addresses are Premier J. E. Brownlee, of Alberta, Canada; Aaron Sapiro, J. C. Stone, president and general manager of the Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative association; William H. Settle, president of the Indiana Farm Bureau Federation; Carl Williams, editor of the Oklahoma Farmer-Stockman; V. R. Dharwarkar, of Bombay, India, superintendent of the cotton cooperatives of that country, and Dr. Macy Campbell, of the Iowa State Teachers college, Cedar Falls, Iowa.

WAR DICTATORSHIP PLAN TO BE URGED

such other limits as the President may fix, shall be drafted without exemption on account of industrial occupation.

"Section 2. That in case of war, or when the President shall judge the same to be imminent, he is authorized and it shall be his duty when, in his opinion, such emergency requires it—

"(a) To determine and proclaim the material resources, industrial organizations and services over which government control is necessary to successful termination of such emergency and such control shall be exercised by him through agencies then existing or which he may create for such purposes;

"(b) To take such steps as may be necessary to stabilize prices of services and of all commodities declared to be essential, whether such services and commodities are required by the government or by the civilian population."

Davis Holds Plan Necessary.

In his annual report, Secretary of War Davis said that such legislation is necessary to give effectiveness to the plans drawn up by the War Department for the mobilization of industry in time of war. The existing national defense act takes only a step in this direction by providing that the Secretary of War can fix the prices of articles needed for the army. The President under existing law can, through the Secretary of War, control transportation and give priority to war needs.

"In all our war plans," said Secretary Davis, "we have tried to keep in mind the general principle that if we are ever again forced into war there will be no slackers and no profiteers. The national defense act, of course, divides in a sense the responsibility for this planning. It places the responsibility for military plans on the general staff, and the plannig of industrial mobilization on the Assistant Secretary of War. But in order to make definite plans the staff should know what to rely on in the way of the number of men to be called or the way in which they will be called and the Assistant Secretary of War should know what controls will be given to the President, the commander in chief, over industry. We are assuming, of course, that there will be certain definite controls, such as the power to fix prices vested some place.

"It seems to me that there are certain reasons of policy which make it advisable to have certain definite controls set out before the declaration of war. There is the argument in regard to the fixing of prices, that if wars are brought on by munition makers, as some people claim, the fact that there does exist in the government the authority to fix prices will do away with that inducement.

Would Eliminate Profiteer.

"There is also the argument that the power to fix prices would do away with the possibility or probability, at least, of speculation in certain munitions before the outbreak of war, and it seems to me there is a third point in regard to that, particularly in regard to the fixing of prices and that is the importance of stopping the vicious circle of rising prices before it starts. In other words, if you have to wait two or three months in order to pass an act of Congress giving somebody the right to fix prices, perhaps your prices are extended to a high level and you are starting under that handicap. If you have the authority which will go into effect on the declaration of emergency, of course, the authorities which have the right to fix these prices can start with the present levels and without this fictitious circle before it gets started.

"There are various other controls that might be established and we are working on the theory they will be established in time of war, either before the war starts to take effect upon the outbreak of the emergency, or after the war starts, certain controls which we feel are essential. Control of raw materials, for example, is a very serious matter. Certain essential raw materials which are lacking in the country; control of transportation, control of power, the control of fuel, control of food, control of various industries, price fixing, priorities, all of these various controls which we feel are essential in order to carry out our plans."

RABBI LOEB SPEAKS ON SPIRITUAL LACK

Calls It "Weakest Point in American Life" in Synagogue Address.

"Spiritual Unpreparedness, the Weakest Point in American Life," was Rabbi J. T. Loeb's subject in an address at Ohev Sholem synagogue Friday night. The rabbi said it was an evident and existing evil among Jews and Gentiles alike in this country. Much of his sermon dealt with young people who, he declared, presented both a Christian and Jewish problem.

Dr. Loeb asserted that it was a sad but admitted truth, that the average American youth is thrust upon the community entirely unprepared so far as spiritual training is concerned and, viewing the situation as a whole, considered it is time to sound alarm.

"If we really love our youth, and we are seeking their well-being," he concluded, "we must endeavor to inculcate in them the principles of religion, beginning in earliest childhood, as did our forefathers."

MODISH MITZI

Something to Do on Monday

By Jay V. Jay

Monday, of course, is no sort of day at all. Mitzi feels this so keenly that she thinks she'll go out and buy a hat. There's nothing that raises Mitzi's morale so quickly as to buy a hat. Not that the fur-trimmed hat she is wearing is at all out of date. Just that a new hat is—new.

There's something reminiscently classical about this. The Mercury wings probably. Mitzi as a herald Mercury, now lighted in the hat department, admires the crown and wings of felt, the brim of silk and thinks she could do worse than buy it—even if she can't afford it.

Still, one hat is enough to raise Mitzi's spirits, and here is this one. It has the decided flare off the face that many new Paris shapes are showing. It is of black felt and black grosgrain ribbon and is called "The Pirate Hat." It has many smart variations, all new.

Most tams are informal affairs. Here is a hat that keeps the essential comfort of a tam, but makes it smarter and more formal than tams usually are. It is a felt shape, its creases carefully folded in and held flat by a double band of ribbon across the crown. This, this is the end of Mitzi's quest.

WIVES OF TOMORROW

—By FRANCES M'DONALD—

Parents, Please Read.

DEAR MISS M'DONALD: I have been reading your articles for quite some time, and I am now coming to you for advice and your opinion on an overwhelming problem of my own—one beyond help, no doubt.

After you have read this you may conclude that I am what I believe is titled "bad." But truly, Miss McDonald, I am not. I slipped, yes, but oh how I have paid in remorse and regret for my fault. So please try not to think of me as thoroughly disgusting. I have always wanted to be good, but slipped—I do not know why. Now, for my story.

When I was just 17 I met a young man about the same age, and we went together and seemed to enjoy the same things, both of us being rather quiet and old-fashioned. We did not and still do not belong to the jazz age. He is a fine chap—Yes, I can say that even now, for he was young, too, and we both failed to realize what we were doing. We did not go all the way to the bad, but Miss McDonald, it hurts so and makes me shudder when I think what we did and how we spoiled our great love. We both fought the evil that was rising in us, and I believe we would have won. But in the meantime his mother and my mother got together and started what turned out to be a successful campaign to part us. When my mother started the ball rolling to break us up, his mother immediately kept it rolling. In my anger at the thing my mother was doing, I said things I have since been unable to forget—and what is worse, I decided that only my sweetheart counted.

The fight I had waged ended—and so did the innocence of our love. We were both in school then. His mother threatened to send him out on his own to shift for and educate himself (he was then just starting to go to college) and said frightful things about me and goodness knows what. At any rate, she succeeded in parting us. But, Miss McDonald, he was not bad, he was not and is not that kind. I was his only girl. You will laugh at what I am going to say, for after what I have told you, I know it sounds pretty empty, but he truly is not dishonorable. He was like myself, weak and so young. But I am sure he is seething with remorse and regret almost as much as I am. After we parted I had a dreadful nervous breakdown, caused by my misery and anguish over losing the one I loved. Later I tried to commit suicide by poison, for in my weakened physical condition and my terrible mental agony of remorse and sorrow, there seemed only one way out. My conscience gave me no rest. But my attempt like my life was a failure and only resulted in more humiliation and more talk. I tried to go out. But always before me was the terrible thing I had done. I would always say to myself after going with a chap and having a good time, "Yes, but would these people associate with you if they knew the truth?" I was ashamed to look my girl friends in the face, for they were all pure, sweet, lovely girls as I had been. I knew if they knew the truth they would not associate with me. And yet, I can't, oh, I can't, even now, go with men or girls who are wrongdoers and evil thinkers. I can not drink and smoke and let men become familiar and say vile things to me, even though I did slip and am, perhaps, if not worse, than those who do these things. Finally I met a young man who was honorable, clean cut and everything a man should be. He proposed and being by then about desperate I said "Yes." But I soon realized I would have to refuse, for I could not tell him the truth and I could never marry him unless I did—and besides, I realized I could never love anyone but my own sweetheart.

About a year later my own boy came to see me. And now he is coming frequently (never staying at my house, for he is not welcome there. My mother is furiously jealous of him and that is why she started the proceedings to break us up). We go riding and walking. He never commits himself any more. He says he likes to be with me but does not say he loves me, only that he likes me a lot. And he does not try to take advantage of me. I can see he is still a little weak, but he does not try to force himself on me, and I really believe he is trying his best to be honorable and do what is right. But, this is my question. Why does he come to see me if he does not care any more? And if he does care why do you think he won't tell me? Could it be because his people hate me (neither his people nor mine know of our downfall). And my mother hates him just as thoroughly. I can not understand him. He tells me how much he enjoys being with me, and that I have been so good to him. For I never have reproached him or told him it was all his fault. I can't, for I feel I was just as much to blame, if not more, for I should have withstood him. I have heard women say it is the woman's fault because women are naturally stronger than men morally. Please, Miss McDonald, try to understand and believe we are not rotten at heart, but two souls struggling to do what is right. It was a case of loving too well on both sides, I think.

I won't ask you to print my letter, but, oh, please answer it; please tell me is my life really "ruined" as it is called. Will this man never care for me again—even though I dare not let another care for me? If you will just give me an answer, I'll look for that and try to profit by it. I can not understand him and don't know what to do, so please advise me. I love him, Miss McDonald. I can not help it, for I know he is not a cad at heart.

I have gotten to the place now where I rarely ever go out except by myself. So you can imagine the lonely life for a girl of 24. Is it possible to come back in the eyes of our Heavenly Father after falling by the wayside? I do hope it is, for I have carried a sore and sorrowing heart so long. LENORE.

Poor child! I wonder why you expected me to think all those horrible things about you? Not I. I know too much about parents to blame their children for the misery that children today are enduring. And you have surely known misery the past six years. But, Lenore, the past is not what counts. Most of the tragedies of life are caused by the habit of looking BACK-ward instead of FOR-ward.

Won't you begin NOW, poor child, to think of the Lenore you are going to be when you are 30 rather than of the Lenore you were when you were 17 or 6 months? You have gone through a terrible experience for any child to know—but some children go through scarlet fever, too. And sometimes scarlet fever leaves them afflicted sadly—and sometimes it does not—depending upon the HELP they get during their siege. It is much the same with other things that afflict the young—the uninstructed, unprepared, unhappy YOUNG today. You have not received much help, Lenore—have you? Well, you are going to pull through just the same. And all that you are going to carry with you from the past is the STRENGTH that you have managed to wrest from past WEAKNESS. You will never repeat your mistake. And I hope you will marry the boy. You see, I, too, believe that he regrets as bitterly as you. He is avoiding any avowals because he is not yet financially able to make the only avowal a man of honor in his position can make. When he asks you to marry him, you may feel that he has outgrown past weakness. Mere love-making on his part would be but an added affront to you. And he senses this. If you really still love him you can only wait—and help him to become the man you wish him to be. Convince him of YOUR character, and he will build his accordingly. I see lots more in your FUTURE than in your PAST, Lenore. Live up to my high hopes for you—and write me often.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

—By DR. W. A. EVANS—

THE HABIT OF WALKING.

DR. FRANK STUBBLEFIELD, superintendent of the Southern Illinois hospital, is a hearty, hale, vigorous man, in spite of his more than 70 years. Many of his charges have criminal records. Many of them are under his care because they have committed murder and have been held mentally irresponsible. Some will have to be executed without further delay should Dr. Stubblefield pronounce them mentally responsible. He has charge of the physical and mental health of more than 200 people.

When asked his formula for keeping healthy in spite of the fact that he lives on borrowed time he gave the credit to walking. He has a pedometer, and he uses it. This instrument shows that he has walked 2,700 miles this year. He is given to long country walks. He makes use of the same method in keeping his charges well. The institution is set in a large yard, around which is an unscalable wall. The inmates are required to walk around this yard. They are in the open air. Definite walking stunts are set for individual men and they are required to do them daily.

It is said that men in jails had rather work than remain idle. Some of them use strategy to get laid up from work, it is true, but there are just as many who plead for opportunities to work. Even those who get excused from hard, manual labor frequently ask for jobs that will keep them occupied. Rarely is a man so foolish as to scheme for the privilege of remaining idle in his cell continuously for months or years. All of this is true, in some measure, of inmates of hospitals for the insane. Dr. Stubblefield solves the problem by requiring the inmates of his institution to walk long distances daily in the open air.

And now for another picture.

This morning I saw a frail, delicate looking physician going to his work. That work requires him to stay in a heated, poorly ventilated office from nine in the morning until five in the afternoon. He comes to work on a train which lands him less than one mile from the office. I do not know what his habit is, but this morning he took a bus at the railroad station and rode to a point within two blocks of his office. The sun was shining brightly. The weather was fine. And there remained some minutes before the time for work to begin.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

Cleopatra and Antony.

DURING his first visit to Egypt, Julius Caesar met a princess whom he thought as lovely as might be. Her name was Cleopatra, and she was the 17-year-old daughter of the Egyptian king.

A year after that visit of Caesar, the king of Egypt died. Before he passed away, he made it known that his country should be ruled by Cleopatra and one of her younger brothers.

The next four years did not pass smoothly in Egypt. The young queen was kept from having an equal share in the power, Caesar learned of the fact, and led an army to Egypt. There he defeated the enemies of Cleopatra, and won power back for her. With another of her younger brothers, she became the ruler of the country.

This time Caesar was more charmed than ever by the fair young woman, and he was glad when she made a journey to Rome. While she was there, Caesar was stabbed to death by men who said they did not want him to have so much power over the Roman empire.

After the death of Caesar, the power was seized by three men. One was a nephew of Caesar. Another was Mark Antony, and the third was Lepidus. These three divided power over the Roman world. In the year 41 B. C., Antony was in Asia Minor. He sent an order to Cleopatra to appear before him, to answer the charge that she had murdered her brother.

Years before, Antony had seen Cleopatra at Alexandria, and later at Rome. Perhaps it was only an excuse when he called her to trial. Perhaps he wanted only to behold her beauty. At any event, she came; and legend tells us that she arrived in a barge pushed forward with silver oars.

Antony was as much charmed as Julius Caesar had been. Instead of punishing the queen, he followed her to Egypt. A year later he broke away from her company and returned to Italy. Three years passed, and the spell of the East carried Antony away from Rome again.

CLEOPATRA.

Cleopatra joined him in Asia Minor, and the two made plans to rule the world together.

Fate ruled against those plans. The nephew of Julius Caesar sent a fleet against Egypt. To meet the enemy, ships lead by Antony and Cleopatra moved out to sea. The battle began off the west coast of Greece. The queen grew fearful of defeat and ordered the vessel which carried her to turn and flee. Antony had been made weak by the love of this woman. He fled after her in another vessel. The rest of the ships suffered defeat.

Antony and Cleopatra took their own lives. The story that Cleopatra died by the bite of an asp may be true, but the proof is not certain.

Q. Do the children in Egypt work, too?—Marian McGovern.

A. According to the latest census report there are in Egypt 216,000 boys and 32,000 girls who attend school. This makes a total of 248,000 children at school. There are in Egypt now 1,900,000 children who do not attend school, most of whom are working on farms or in small factories.

Japanese Daily Shows Progress of Printing

Chicago, Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—The evolution of the art of printing is oddly and graphically shown in each issue of the Dai-Nippon, Japanese daily newspaper published here. Printed by hand, it has a circulation of 500.

There are 50,000 characters in the old Japanese alphabet and some 20,000 in the simplified writing vocabulary. That is why three-fourths of the Dai-Nippon's news is in the complicated characters of the two alphabets, laboriously drawn by stylus on a stencil.

The remainder of the news is half in English and half in the new roman-letter Japanese, both transcribed on the typewriter.

Love Confessions of Famous Men

JOHN HOWARD PAYNE'S UNREQUITED LOVE.

THE writer of the immortal "Home Sweet Home" was one man in the cast of a triangular love episode. The other two were Mary Wollstonecraft, the young widow of the poet Shelley, and

MARY SHELLEY.

Washington Irving, American's famous writer.

Payne loved Mary Shelley, but he found that her heart was more occupied with Irving. On the other hand Irving was not in a receptive mind because a Philadelphia girl, Matilda Hoffman, whom he had dearly loved, died and left him inconsolable.

Eventually Payne told Mary Shelley that he loved her, and this declaration he made in the following terms.

".....A flash, as it were, and at a time and place of which you can form no idea, gave me a thorough impression of all which I have since found confirmed, of the beauty of your heart and intellect. I then knew nothing of you, but what I had heard about you as a child, excepting what had been misrepresented, so that I had the satisfaction of taking up my impression entirely unswayed. I afterward read all you had written and read much in your praise. I met you afterwards and left with a determination not to trust myself to the danger of your acquaintance—with a wish, if you can understand such a wish, to pay you the same homage as I would the memory of one whom I had loved, but whose form, were it to appear, would only perplex me.

"I did not meet you again and presumed too much on my courage, forgetting that the rein once given to the sexes they are apt involuntarily to spurn the curb and gallop over the prescribed boundary. The error was perfectly gratuitous. I told you I knew my danger and could laugh at it. I am afraid now that the laugh is not on my side.

John Howard Payne

Payne was an actor, dramatist and writer of librettos for comic operas. He left nothing of any great imporatnce and would hardly be known today were it not for his poem, "Home, Sweet Home," which was written for an English opera called "Clari, the Maid of Milan," and set to music by Sir Henry Bishop. The song is a perfect union of words and music, both being of equal importance. But Payne's part in the composition must be put above Bishop's, for the latter derived his melody from an old Italian song.

JUST FOLKS

—By EDGAR A. GUEST—

A PREFERENCE

I think that I would rather see
My children happy at my knee,
My neighbors' smiling faces when
I start from home or come again;
A garden small, but mine to claim,
Than rise unloved to wealth or fame.

I think that I would rather own
The fellowship of those I've known,
Their good opinion and their trust,
Than win by many a cruel thrust
The pomp and riches of a place
Which only knows the fawner's face.

True peace is born of little things,
The song the brave canary sings,
Glad little memories of the past
Which seemed too trivial to last,
But brighter glow throughout the years
As symbols of our smiles and tears.

We write our lives, where'er we dwell,
On those who love and know us well.
Strangers may cheer us from afar,
But neighbors see us as we are.
I'd rather have my worth be told
By happy hearts than glittering gold.

RAISE IN BANK RATE TO STABILIZE CREDIT AT A HIGHER LEVEL

Financial District Sees Benefit in the Federal Reserve Action.

INDUSTRY STILL UNDER INVENTORY-TAKING LULL

Activity in Steel Trade Likely to Regain Normal Pace in Few Weeks.

New York, Jan. 10 (By the Associated Press).—Business expansion with its attendant demands for greater credit accommodation last week reached the point where the Federal Reserve Bank of New York felt justified in advancing its rediscount rate from 3½ to 4 per cent. This action was given added significance by the deliberate policy of the bank, which delayed the change through a period of rising bank rates elsewhere and tightening money conditions until the increase in borrowings at this center threatened to impair its position.

Working on the supposition that a well defined rate policy has been followed by the Federal Reserve Banks, the financial district is convinced that considerable good has been accomplished by the developments of the past two months. The first upward revision inaugurated by the Boston bank early in November, and quickly followed by interior banks, undoubtedly tempered stock speculation and diverted money from this channel into the country's trade. Greater borrowing pressure as a result was thrown on the New York bank, which, by bringing its rate into alignment with those of other reserve banks, is expected to stabilize general credit operations at a higher level.

Lull In Many Lines.

Actual developments last week failed to give a true picture of the real business situation. In many lines the lull resulting from holiday suspensions and inventory-taking still prevailed with manufacturers throttling activities preparatory to outlining production and sales policies for the new year.

Simultaneous readjustments were under way in the financial markets which were flooded with returning money called into use at the end of the year. This gave an appearance of ease to the broad demand for credit and indicated that any determination of the real trend would have to await the natural processes of correction.

Activities in the steel industry are not expected to regain their normal pace for several weeks. New business began to taper off late in the year, but mill operations have been maintained at a fairly high level and are now only slightly below the preholiday mark. The weekly trade reviews reported a prevailing view that the maintenance of production on the present scale would meet all midwinter demands of the consuming industries. Although pig iron production failed to keep pace with the record output of steel ingots in 1925, more furnaces are being blown in.

Demand for Steel Still Heavy.

The potential demand for steel from important consumers, such as the automobile manufacturers and the railway equipment industry, remains large, although buying has been temporarily retarded by the holiday curtailment. Price readjustments which took place in the motor field with the beginning of the new year gave promise of stimulating sales.

So many records were established by the railroads in 1925 that the carriers might conceivably find it difficult to make favorable comparisons during the current year. Yet an auspicious start has been made by most roads, with several executives predicting that new levels of postwar prosperity would be attained.

The opening of the year in the textile industry found goods moving rather slowly, but with all signs pointing to improvement in the seasonal demand for all kinds of fabrics.

Freight Loss Claims Lowest in History

Claims resulting from loss and damage to freight shipments while in transit on the railroads of this country during 1925 were the smallest, compared with the volume of freight handled, of any corresponding period on record, according to a report filed today for that period by the carriers, to the freight claim division of the American Railway association.

Loss and damage claims paid during the year approximated $40,000,000, a decrease of about 16.75 per cent under the corresponding period of 1924 and a decrease of approximately 19 per cent under 1923. The reduction is credited to better packing by shippers and more careful handling by the carriers.

Lower Austria Bonds To Be Offered Today

J. & W. Seligman & Co. and F. J. Lisman & Co. are offering today an issue of $2,000,000 of secured sinking fund 7½ per cent gold bonds of the Province of Lower Austria, secured primarily by the real estate tax, and secondarily, by other taxes of the province. The annual yield of the specific pledge of the real estate tax is $1,327,000.

The bonds are priced at 98½ and accrued interest, to yield over 7.60 per cent. The issue has been officially approved by the lower Austrian legislature and by the Austrian federal government and it is a direct obligation to the Province of Lower Austria.

New York's Rate Increase Held No Blow for London

By S. S. FONTAINE.

New York, Jan. 10.—While British banking opinion professed surprise at the action of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York in raising the rediscount rate, and some concern, the action embraces no elements that should cause apprehension or disappointment, for they are in the main reassuring. They register the confidence of our financial mentors that Great Britain is able to stand alone after a protracted period of convalescence from the ills of war, and the conviction that the free flow of the fluids of credit has been actually, not theoretically, established. And if our British friends think twice, they will realize that this new discount policy has been fixed, not perhaps by mere coincidence, during the presence in New York of a governor of the Bank of England itself. It is, perhaps, technically true that there has not been an agreement of any sort, tacit or otherwise, that their discount policies synchronize as closely as possible. The abstinence from anything approaching a compact has probably been suggested by the expediency of avoiding an invitation to congressional demagogues to twist the Lion's tail, or arousing political clamor and clatter in other quarters. From a common sense standpoint, as well as one of mutual interest and defense, such a hard and fast agreement would be a wholesome thing. It would be beyond the range of the criticism of broad and disciplined minds.

But the British expectation that the advance in rate will cause the repatriation of a large amount of American funds that has been attracted abroad by the 5 per cent London rate will probably be realized. And that will cause no disturbance in the international balances of a permanent character since it merely represents the shifting of nomadic money that is mostly attracted by employment of a speculative character. Its return home, therefore, seems to forecast the creation of a very large fund here that will be available for demand loans. So, the increase in the Federal reserve rate is a precursor of easy rather than tight money. That the directors were not moved by any motive of precaution, but rather by consideration of ethics of sound banking practice in relation to an outlook for very encouraging business expansion during the coming twelve months, is suggested by a comparison of the bank's petition now and when the preceding increase was made. It is pointed out by an authority that when the rediscount rate was increased from 3 per cent to 3½ per cent on February 27, 1925, the total ratio of the New York Reserve Bank stood at 69.6 per cent, compared with the present ratio of 80.1 per cent. Total earning assets of the bank stood at $416,409,000, compared with the present sum of $263,358,000. The total earning assets are the figures to look at in getting a picture of reserve bank credit outstanding.

The total discounts on February 27, 1925 stood at $226,927,000 compared with the present $181,307,000. As already stated, total gold reserve at New York now stands at $980,825,000. This compares with $857,611,000 on February 25, 1925.

* * * *

Misconception of the motives of the Federal reserve directors in the making of their policies on the part of speculative Wall street is no greater than its ignorance of the methods by which these measures are shaped. These have been thus described recently to the young man who reports these events for the financial columns of the World by a director of the bank:

"When the twelve directors of the New York Federal Reserve Bank take their seats around the big mahogany table they find at each of their places ten cards covered with a varied assortment of lines and containing such information as chart students best appreciate. The ten cards give a vivid picture of world business and credit conditions and close-up views of trade and monetary affairs in the United States and Great Britain.

"The Federal reserve rate is a routine matter of discussion at every weekly meeting of the bank's directors. After the ten cards have been scrutinized and the general effect of a chance rate thoroughly debated the directors may decide to ask the Federal reserve board for permission to raise or lower the rate. This permission is not always granted—sometimes it is only given after a debate among Federal reserve board members in Washington, which accounts for the delay of an hour or more, despite direct wire connections, in making such announcements.

"The deck of cards, the changing pictures of which mean so much to business and speculation, contains such information as the volume of trade, measured by car loading, collections and related data. They show the trend of commodity prices, mirror such trends as call and time money, and give detailed movements of daily, weekly, domestic and foreign trends. The cards also show the earning assets of all the Federal Reserve Banks as well as those of the local institution.

* * * *

"The cards also yield valuable information about the present condition of Great Britain. They show, for instance, the trend of prices, unemployment, and trade generally in Great Britain, and present a detailed picture of the London money market.

"After this data has been digested the Federal Reserve Bank directors consider such questions as: what rate will encourage commerce and business? Is trade going ahead too fast or does it need stimulation? Are speculative activities blocking the progress of business and commerce? When such questions are answered the Reserve Bank board attempts to put the rate at a point where it will prove most beneficial to all rather than to a few groups.

"The Federal Reserve rate generally is half way between the 90-day bill rate and commercial paper. The rate is always compared with the lowest yielding bill which the Reserve Bank holds. These general policies of the Federal Reserve system has tended to make call money higher and time money or credits used in business enterprises lower.

* * * *

"When the rate is too high member banks may find it profitable to reduce their borrowings or when it is low they may augment their borrowing, but in general, and contrary to popular impression, banks do not like to be in debt and frequently resort to other measures, such as the selling of their security holdings, to keep out of debt.

"Federal reserve banks are not operated primarily for profit, as in the opinion of some of their critics think they should, but rather to stabilize credit conditions. Their largest customer is the United States government, which in the New York bank alone requires the service of more than 200 clerks to handle its banking transactions.

"The New York bank handles about 36,000 separate government checks daily averaging a value of $4,000,000. The same bank cashes government bond coupons, redeems Treasury notes and certificates, transfers funds for the Treasury to all parts of the country, and buys securities in the open market for such government agencies as the veterans' bureau or the alien property custodian or other departments which have funds to invest."

MUCH MONEY WAITING FOR NEW BOND ISSUES

Little Real Apprehension Felt Over Increase in Reserve Discount Rate.

MORE FLOTATIONS DUE

New York, Jan. 10 (By the Associated Press). — Readjustment of bond market operations to an unexpected increase in the local Federal reserve discount rate to 4 per cent last week altered the investment outlook as presented at the beginning of the year. The immediate effect of the change in the bank rate was the adoption of a more cautious attitude by that section of the financial community inclined to make heavy commitments in bonds.

The failure of any serious selling pressure to develop was attributed to the fact that Wall street long ago accepted a change in the rate as inevitable. When the New York bank, however, remained adamant in its refusal to follow the higher rate policy of the rest of the country through a period of tightening credit conditions, it was expected that the advance would be delayed until the trend of 1926 trade had become more clearly defined. The bank's action just as signs of easier money appeared on the horizon therefore created considerable surprise but little real apprehension.

The movement of Liberty Bonds, normally sensitive to changes in monetary conditions, reflected the market's sentiment. The demand for these issues, which had shown indications of returning life with the turn of the year, quickly tapered off and prices sagged to lower levels. Other investment obligations felt a mild slackening of buying interest.

Before the rate change was announced, trading activity was liveliest in semispeculative convertible bonds, particularly those of railroad and oil companies in which special developments have been pending. Gains in these issues, however, were soon reduced or canceled. Money remained in abundant supply, however, affording some degree of support to the general run of bonds.

Another factor now contributing to the ebbing interest of bond speculation, is the competition from new financing. The first week of the year saw more than $77,000,000 in bond issues brought into the market compared with only $22,000,000 in the closing week of 1925. Investment funds also were attracted to the $55,000,000 National Cash Register stock offering. Heavy oversubscription of both stock and bond issues attested to the large amount of money awaiting employment.

Several foreign flotations as well as domestic corporation financing are expected to reach the market in time to catch the high tide of the January reinvestment demand. A midcontinent oil merger may bring $50,000,000 in new securities, while an Italian hydroelectric loan has been tentatively placed at $20,000,000. Loans of $40,000,000 or so are under consideration by South American countries, including Uruguay and Chile.

Associated Gas and Electric System
Founded in 1852

Stability

One of the most far-reaching declines ever experienced by American business occurred in 1921. The volume of manufacture for all lines of industry in the United States in that year was 32% below that of 1920.

For the electric light and power industry, however, the decline in K.W. hours output was only 6.8%. During the same period the output of electricity by the Associated System decreased approximately 0.6%—a negligible amount and only about one-tenth that of the electric light and power industry as a whole.

Despite this slight decline in the output of electricity by the Associated properties, the gross earnings increased 7.3% and the net earnings 35.3%.

The stability in the electrical output and in the earnings of the Associated System may be attributed to the fact that the properties serve numerous medium sized business enterprises rather than a few large ones. The proportion of residential customers, whose use of electricity is constantly increasing, is large; the communities served are old and well established, and mostly of moderate size.

We invite inquiry regarding opportunities for expanding your business by locating in territories served by properties of the Province of Lower Austria

Secured Sinking Fund 7½% Gold Bonds

Dated December 1, 1925 Due December 1, 1950

Interest payable June 1 and December 1. Principal and interest payable in New York at the office of J. & W. Seligman & Co., Fiscal Agents of the Loan, and in Vienna, at the Niederösterreichische Escompte-Gesellschaft, in United States gold coin without deduction for Austrian Taxes.

Redeemable at the option of the Province as a whole or in part on any semi-annual interest payment date to and including December 1, 1926, at 105, thereafter to and including December 1, 1927, at 104, thereafter to and including December 1, 1929, at 103, thereafter to and including December 1, 1931, at 102, thereafter to and including December 1, 1933, at 101½, thereafter to and including December 1, 1935, at 101, and thereafter at par, in each case with accrued interest to the date of redemption. Callable at par for the sinking fund (calculated to retire the entire issue at or before maturity).

CENTRAL UNION TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, TRUSTEE.

Coupon bonds in the denominations of $1,000 and $500, registerable as to principal.

Information regarding the Province, these Bonds and the security therefor is given in a letter to the undersigned signed by Buresch, Governor of the Province of Lower Austria, copies of which will be furnished on request. This information is summarized in part as follows:

These bonds are the direct obligation of the Province of Lower Austria, which surrounds the Federal District of Vienna. They are to be specifically secured by pledge of the provincial real estate tax (yearly current yield of which is over 7 times the amount required for service of this loan) with provision for automatic specific pledge of certain additional taxes specified in the Trust Agreement (a) to an extent sufficient to maintain the yield of the pledged taxes at 4 times the amount required for service of the loan and (b) in case the Province pledges any taxes for any purpose other than this loan then to an extent sufficient to maintain such yield at 10 times the service of the loan. For the year 1924 these additional taxes yielded $3,844,000, or approximately 22 times the service of the loan. As additional security the Province will create a mortgage on real estate valued at $2,000,000, registerable in case of default. The Province has never defaulted on any of its obligations.

The proceeds of this loan are to be used to finance additional investment by the Province in the Lower-Austrian Hydro-Electric Power Company (Newag) of which the Province and the City of Vienna are principal shareholders.

(For the purposes of this statement, conversions of schillings into dollars have been made at par of exchange, 14⅛ cents to the schilling. Austrian currency, stabilized in November, 1922, has since been maintained at par.)

All offerings are made when, as and if issued and received by us, subject to prior sale and subject to the approval of our counsel in New York, Messrs. Cravath, Henderson & de Gersdorff, and our Austrian counsel. Interim receipts of J. & W. Seligman & Co. or temporary bonds will be deliverable in the first instance.

Price: 98½ and accrued interest, to yield over 7.60%

J. & W. Seligman & Co. F. J. Lisman & Co.

I WANT A $15,000
SALES MANAGER.
There are plenty of $5,000 to $7,000 sales executives in Washington, but one of those rare men really worth $15,000 a year is essential to this opening: the manager selected must have the vision to recognize, both for himself and his sales force, one of the most extraordinary opportunities in present-day commerce; he must have the energy, the human experience and the man-building capacity to organize and hold approximately a hundred salesmen; hours will mean nothing to him; he will be a dynamic speaker, an exceptional salesman himself, a real leader of men, and will take his place with other highly paid territorial executives in what is probably the fastest growing operation in its field; a tough job is involved; success in it actually requires the qualities stated above; if you have them, a letter that will prove it will be welcomed and held in confidence. WASHINGTON: MONDAY, JANUARY 11, 1926. 13

PALACE BASKETERS BEAT DETROITERS, 40 TO 29

G. U. Quintet In Action Tonight

To Launch Campaign With Mt. St. Mary's as Opponent.

Freshman Five Meets Devitt Prep in Preliminary.

By JUNO KINERK.

THE Georgetown varsity basketball team will make its debut of the season tonight in Ryan gymnasium with the Mount St. Mary's five, of Baltimore, furnishing the opposition. The Hilltop freshmen team also will pry open its season's schedule, meeting the Devitt Prep tossers. The preliminary game will start at 7:30 o'clock and the varsity game about an hour later.

Although little is known of the strength of the Mount St. Mary's tossers, local fans still remember the formidable game the St. Mary's football team gave the Hilltop gridders by scoring 13 points to Georgetown's 19, and, consequently have a high respect for their basketball team. This defeat still rankles in the craws of the Batlimoreans and they are coming here intent upon avenging themselves by a decisive victory over the local court squad.

Coach O'Reilly has a different idea, however, and is particularly anxious for his charges to get started with a win. He has refused to make any predictions as to the outcome of the game, but will put a well-drilled team on the floor, one that he feels will carry Georgetown to its share of victories.

SINCE early December the Hilltop coach has been sending his squad through its paces regularly. While handicapped by having only one regular, Capt. Gitlitz, available for play this year, he has gotten together a likely looking bunch of candidates and has developed a classy outfit to take the floor tonight.

Pairing with the reliable Capt. Gitlitz at guard will be George Vukmanic, of gridiron reknown. Vukmanic is an ideal roving guard. He

New Blood in Distance Races

□□□ WILL ENTER POST RUN □□□

Is Vital, Bill Kennedy Asserts

FROM "Bricklaying Bill" Kennedy, sixty-odd-year-old marathoner, of the Cygnet Athletic club, veteran campaigner of distance running and a participant in every race of importance ever staged in America, comes a plea for the introduction of new blood in the sport. Kennedy writes an old friend, Mike Lynch, of the Aloysius club, in his effort to create new devotees of the marathon. He says:

"Just a few lines, as its about time to start thinking of the coming marathon circles. I wish you would take an active part in starting the ball rolling in your section for the development of runners. Keep at it, Mike, get them out. We must have some new blood. It's up to you to do your bit in your section. What is the date of The Washington Post modified marathon?"

A simple but sincere plea for the preservation of marathon running as an American sport. Bill Kennedy and Mike Lynch, thrown together in an inevitable bond of friendship as they loped side by side in many a distance grind, are made of the stuff that demands sports only for sports' sake. They were among the pioneers of marathoning in America and are ready to act as the saviors of the game.

KENNEDY earned his soubriquet, "Bricklaying Bill," in his early days as a marathoner. Plying his trade as a bricklayer, Kennedy, nevertheless, found time to enter every race of importance staged on the Atlantic seaboard. As a member of the Cygnet Athletic club, of East Port Chester, N. Y., Kennedy was one of the most popular entrants in the annual Boston marathon, the feature distance race of the country.

The entry of Kennedy in the Boston Marathon always was the occasion of columns of publicity for the veteran runner whose demise as a distance performer was predicted freely fifteen or twenty years ago. In the races through the streets of Boston, the silver-thatched bricklayer was the cynosure of all eyes and was accorded the greatest demonstration of any individual in the race.

The third annual Washington Post Modified Marathon, on February 22, again will draw the entry of Kennedy. The East Port Chester bricklayer was a participant in each of the former two distance events conducted by The Washington Post and in a field of almost 100 he finished sixth in 1924.

Since the announcement of The Washington Post's third annual marathon a perceptible wave of enthusiasm has been evident among the devotees of the sport. Queries for more detailed information have been received in numbers. Entry blanks for the event are to be distributed soon.

ST. CYPRIANS PLAY TONIGHT.

The St. Cyprian tossers will play a double-header tonight, meeting the L'Overtures and Community teams tonight, with the first game starting at 7:30, at Thirteenth and C streets southeast.

Cooper Wins Coast Golf Prize

Youthful Texan Earns $3,500 by Victory; Von Elm Second.

Al Espinosa, Kirkwood Tie for Third; Divide Money.

LOS ANGELES COUNTRY CLUB, Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—Youth held its sway in the greatest golf tournament ever held in the West when thousands watched Harry Cooper, youngest professional in the tournament, take away the first prize of $3,500.

This 21-year-old English lad of the Tenison Park Golf club, Dallas, Tex., was the favorite through the three days' play in the $10,000 event. He went through 72 holes of golf with a total of 279 strokes, carding for each eighteen holes the following: Par on the south course, 70; 68, four under par on the north; 74, two over par, and 67, five under par, on the north course, over which the final 36 holes were played.

George Von Elm, Los Angeles amateur, another dapper youth, full of pep but not quite possessing the vigor and self-confidence of Cooper, ambled in second, with a card of 282, taking the honors but passing over the $1,500 purse, not wishing to turn professional.

Al Espinosa, Chicago, and Joe Kirkwood, New York professional, with cards of 285, split the $1,500 second and $1,000 third prize.

WILLIAM CREAVY, Oklahoma City; Willie Hunter, Santa Monica; Macdonald Smith, Great Neck, N. Y., and John Golden, Paterson, N. J., with scores of 290, divide the next four prizes, $750, $500, $350 and $350. Bobbie Cruickshank, Oklahoma City, and Vic Dalberto, Los Angeles, with 291, each take $200.

Prizes of $100 each went to the folowing: John Black, Wichita, Kans., 292; Phil Taylor, Victoria, B. C.; Joe Lally, El Paso, Tex.; Al Watrous, Grand Rapids, Mich., and William E. Mehlhorn, Chicago, 294 each; Fred Morrison, Ojai, Calif; Joe Turnesa, New York, and Jack Hart, Fresno, each with 295; Ernest Martin, Corona, Calif., and John Rogers, Pittsburgh, with 296 each; George Kerrigan, Pasadena; Frank Walsh, Appleton, Wis., and Harold Sampson, Burlingame, each with 297.

Galleries of about 2,000 followed Cooper today as he toured the final 18 holes of the three-day tournament.

Perfect weather throughout the tournament offered opportunity to all players to show their best form.

Skeeters May Train At Petersburg Again

Petersburg, Va., Jan. 10.—The Jersey City International league baseball club, which had its training last spring in this city, where it spent several weeks, will probably come to Petersburg again next spring to train.

W. H. Donnelly, business manager of the club, has written to Dan Hollenga, business manager of the chamber of commerce, in regard to the club securing McKenzie Street park, where it showed its practice games last year. Mr. Hollenga has replied that it can be secured on the same terms as before.

Nevers Out for Week As Result of Injury

Jacksonville, Fla., Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—Ernie Nevers, fullback from Leland Stanford university, was resting easily tonight in his room at the Mason hotel. Examination today confirmed the report of the physicians at the field yesterday that he had torn ligaments in his back when downed on an attempt to hurdle the line during the game with the New York Giants. The Giants won, 7 to 0, from Nevers and his Jacksonville all-stars eleven.

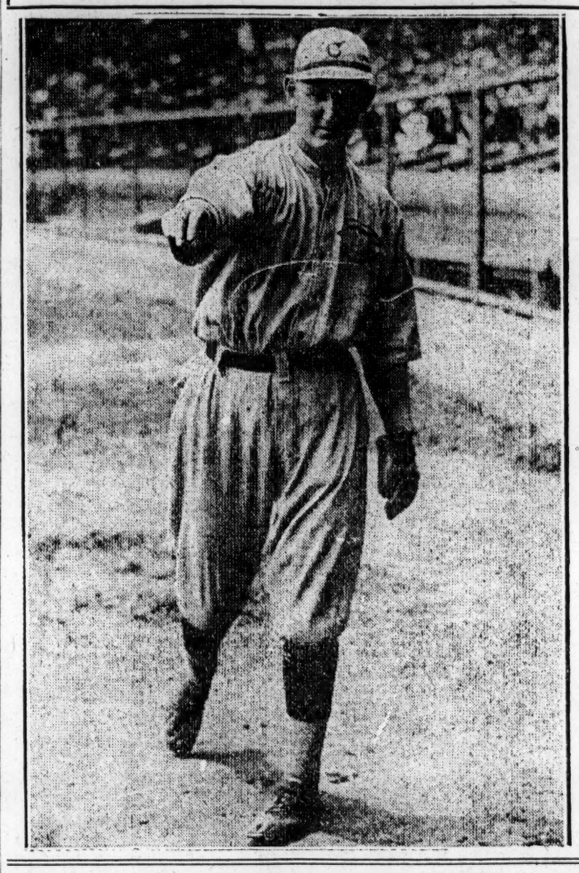
Nevers will not be able to play again for at least a week, the attending physician said.

English Speedboats Will Compete in U. S

New York, Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—England has accepted the challenge of Carl G. Fisher and D. P. Davis, of New York, for the Duke of York 1½-liter speedboat trophy in July, the American power boat racing commission announced today. Harry Greening, of Hamilton, Ont., will compete for Canada, and French and Italian entries are expected. This will be the first appearance of American speedboats in British major events in more than five years.

Three craft, less than 18 feet long, probably the smallest ever built for racing in America, are under construction. They are to be fitted with engines of the type developed in the Indianapolis automobile speed races.

JOHN M'GRAW HAS BOLSTERED THE GIANTS' pitching staff by the acquisition of Jimmy Ring, of the Phillies. Ring will be seen in a New York uniform as a result of the trade which has sent Jack Bentley and Wayland Dean to the Philadelphia Nationals.



Crop of Lightweight Boxers

□□□ THEIR FRIGHT NEEDLESS □□□

Eagerly Avoiding Each Other

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—After a year of messy but inconclusive competition for the title Benny Leonard abandoned, the new class of lightweights has developed a small squad of nominees who seem to be very good fighters, but who also seem to be afraid of one another.

The lightweight tournament of last winter only brought out a champion pro tem in the blocky person of Jimmy Goodrich. And Jimmy lately passed the doubtful honor along to the aged Rocky Kansas, who is not long for the ring and doubtless hankers to be hit on the chin for a modest consideration so that he may retire again.

Judging by the claims and casual announcements of the managers of the rising youths of lightweight dimensions, these youths have great reason to be afraid of one another. There is this Phil McGraw, who resigned a promising career as fly-swatter in a Greek lunchroom in Detroit to become a fighter. His manager says he is glad Benny Leonard has retired because he always admired Benny Leonard and would be much pained to see him peeled alive by Phil McGraw.

THEN there is Stanley Loayza, the Chilean, whose manager says he is always afraid Stanley will let himself out and hit somebody with all his might. He implies this would be fatal to somebody and distasteful to Stanley Loayza and himself, who are a bit strait-laced about homicide.

Of course, fight managers have been known to overemphasize the talents of their fighters and it may be these managers have needlessly frightened one another.

But the fact remains that the lightweight championship, which would be a bargain at $250,000, is eagerly being avoided by half a dozen pretty good fighters, some one of whom may have the essentials of a Leonard or a Wolgast in his system.

Phil McGraw is afraid to fight Stanley Loayza and vice versa. Sammy Mandell seems disinclined to fight anybody and Sid Terris blows a police whistle whenever any one speaks of Sammy Mandell.

Ted Morgan, a Westerner, recently licked Mike Ballerino and came into a little prominence as the new holder of the so-called junior lightweight championship, but that is only a so-called championship. Morgan has made no haste to establish warlike relations with McGraw, Loayza, Mandell or Terris.

THEN there's the forty-fifth Dundee of the ring, the one from Rock Island, Ill., who calls himself Mike Dundee. He isn't fighting any of the select set of lightweights, so, obviously, somebody is afraid of somebody, or vice versa.

Loayza probably would have won the lightweight tournament last year and the class would have been adorned with a more or less authentic champion by now but for an unfortunate accident. He was fighting industriously one night, when he complained of a pain in his ankle and the examining physician told him he had a very rare infirmity, a cauliflower ankle, and Stanley had to retire until the malady was cured.

Leonard may have had some thought o freturning to the ring after a time and dealing harshly with the upstart generation of lightweights, but if so he has other intentions now. Leonard weighed approximately 150 pounds when he sang his sentimental mammy number and retired. He weighs considerably more today, and it would be unfair to ask any of the present group to fight both of him.

Stecher Is Willing To Grapple Lewis

Denver, Colo., Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—Ralph Mondt, matchmaker for the Denver American Legion Athletic association, announced yesterday that he would bid $30,000 for a match between Joe Stecher and Ed "Strangler" Lewis to be held here next summer. Mondt proposes to stage the match in the University of Denver's new athletic stadium, which seats 30,000 persons.

Dodge, Neb., Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—Anton Stecher, brother-manager of Joe Stecher, heavyweight wrestler, when advised tonight of the desire of matchmaker Ralph Mondt, of Denver, for a match between Stetcher and Ed "Strangler" Lewis, said that as soon as Mondt can sign Lewis, Joe will sign.

ZBYSZKO'S MOTHER DIES.

New York, Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—Stanislaus Zbyszko Cyganewicz, well-known wrestler, who returned to New York Saturday after visiting his mother in Krakow, Poland, was informed by cable today that she had died while he was crossing the Atlantic.

Montgomery Is Fined $1,626 for Ring Foul

Hollywood, Calif., Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—Sully Montgomery, heavyweight boxer and former Centre college football player, has been fined $1,626.98 and suspended indefinitely by the California athletic commission for fouling George Godfrey, negro boxer, in their bout in Los Angeles last Wednesday. Announcement of the penalty imposed was made here tonight by Seth Strelinger, chairman of the commission.

The fine is more than $1,000 higher than any previous fine imposed by the commission and represents half of Montgomery's purse for fighting Godfrey.

Ft. Myer Wins At Soccer, 4 to 0

Reserves of German-American Club Are Beaten in Snow.

Franco Hero of Game, Counting Two of Team's Goals.

By RICHARD S. TENNYSON.

PLAYING on a field completely blanketed with snow, Fort Myer soldiers and the German-American Reserves staged the only Washington Soccer league game yesterday in which the Fort team triumphed, 4 to 0. The game was played on the barracks field.

In spite of a small attendance the players put up a spirited battle, seemingly unmindful of the snow that crept down necks and shoes and of the fact that the eyes of the spectators were not intently focused on the game at all times.

To retain one's footing was a feat that the most skilled Alpiner hardly could have performed and none of the players being even second rate Alpiners, many quarts of snow were digested. Play was unavoidably rough and as a consequence Olando, the great little outside right of the Soldier team, went down for the count, or several counts, as it were, since he was not revived until reaching the hospital, but recovered sufficiently to return to the game in the second half.

The first five minutes of play was confined to the middle of the field and it was not until Olando got away with a brilliant individual run that the Reserves' defense was penetrated. A short bully ensued near the German goal and it required a brilliant save on the part of F. Loeffler to prevent an early Fort score when DeMott sent a great shot at the goalie.

France broke the ice when he received a center by Olando and scored high into the net. At this stage of the game the soldiers were pressing hard and the Germans were putting up a spirited if not entirely successful defense. Barges, DeMott, Franco and Linn were leaders of the attack.

The second score resulted from some clever passing on the part of Barges and Franco. The clever dribblers started from midfield and when about fifteen feet out Olando sent a low shot by Loeffler for the second score.

Ellis figured prominently in the third and final score of the period when he blocked a German boot in the soldier area and tapped it along until in position to pass to Barges. The latter sent a terrific drive through to score.

THE Reserves played a far superior game in the second half. The halfbacks kept the ball well up the field and the forwards worried the Fort backs considerably, Jones being forced to the limit to prevent a marker.

Gus Heller, star German forward, made several great tries, but Jones saved with his brilliant performances. Franco climaxed a day of brilliant playing when, near the close of the game, he hooked one through the German goal for the final score.

The Reserves' one bright spot of the fray was the brilliant performance of F. Loeffler at goal. He made numerous great saves, and if his work of yesterday continues, league teams will not find it so easy to run up big scores on the "little" Germans.

Net and Lynch Draw Big Gallery

Former C. U. Star Presented With Cup by Admirers.

First Half Is Close, Palace Stepping Out in Second.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

THE installation of a cage and the fact that Ed Lynch, former Catholic university all-around athlete, was a member of the visiting Detroit team drew about 2,500 fans at the Arcade last night and a great battle was furnished, the Palace tossers winning 40 to 29.

The Brookland university was well represented and its yells in honor of its great alumnus would have made the uninitiated think he was at a college game. Before hostilities started Lynch was presented with a handsome loving cup by his C. U. admirers.

While the new net undoubtedly sped up play, it also was responsible for considerable roughness due to players charging for the ball when it hit the webbing. At times, the affair had all the aspects of a football game but, as the fans did not figure in it, they seemed to enjoy it.

THE affair was a thriller from start to finish, with Capt. Kennedy, Glasco and Saunders starring for the locals on attack, and Grody, as usual, proving a stonewall on defense. Clark led his team, caging a quintet of double-deckers, several of which were long ones. Just before the fracas ended, Kennedy sank the longest shot of the night, when he sent one through the ropes from almost under the Detroit goal, the ball not even hitting the rim.

The visitors, representing the Pulaski post of the American Legion, started off like sharpshooters, caging three 2-pointers in the first five minutes of play. They maintained a lead until a pretty one-hand shot by Saunders knotted the count at 11-all. It was all-even at 12 and again at the 14-point mark, the Laundrymen finally ploughing ahead to 18 to 16 as the halfway mark was reached.

On the resumption of play, the score continued close for only a few minutes. Then the Palace five stepped on the gas and, although its lead at no time was particularly large, the result was never in doubt.

Lynch, the C. U. hero of the occasion, played a whale of a defensive game and was responsible for several points scored by his mates, due to his brilliant passing, but he was unable to ring up any on his own account.

Although the Laundrymen's schedule does not call for them to appear here until January 24, they will not idle by any means, as a hard schedule of exhibition games has been booked. Tonight they play in Dover, Ohio, while tomorrow night finds them in Oak Harbor.

Manager Sugarman overlooked Wednesday night, but has scheduled games for the remainder of the week in Fort Wayne Thursday, East Chicago Friday, Warren Saturday and at Detroit Sunday. The following week will see them at Columbus, Lancaster, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Geneva and Rochester, with Chicago opposing them here for a Sabbath offering.

BEAUTIFUL FLOWER TODAY'S BEST, ASSERTS COLLYER

Hullo Called Special of Clockers

Red Head, Overnight "Tip," to Win Second Race on Program.

By BERT E. COLLYER.

WASH DAY! While the gumbo prevails it is a good thing to let well enough alone. I mean just that, and unless you're solid ivory from the shoulders up you will await more propitious conditions.

For the opening spasm I am stringing with the smart filly BEAUTIFUL FLOWER, which showed a bang-up second last time. She is well schooled and I know the stable fancies her. JENNIE DEAR and CIRCUS LADY both drew outside positions, thus having a shade the worst of the break. CAROLINE CARTER is said to be a fast one.

RED HEAD from the Baker stable was the hottest kind of an overnight "tip." True, they have RITTER named to go, but the latter had a bad fall last time out and I would duck him today. HIKE is well placed and is expected to spill the frijoles.

BOTHER stands out as a real good thing—if such can be termed—when track conditions are such as they are. That last effort of his was a crackerjack. NOEL, CANYON, MABEL C and JOHN Q. KELLY are closely bunched.

HULLO, fresh and good and a superiod mudder, is the clockers' special in the fourth, and has been going great guns in morning trials. Stable very sanguine of winning, such is the comments appended. BILL O'FLYNN accused of being a "battery" horse, does not show the smart dash, as before the scandal broke. LAD O' MINE has a package up for this kind of going, while LADY BOSS is always dangerous in the mud. Tab the ring action closely on THE WINFREY trick. Her work has been nothing to brag about.

DOUGHNUT stands out five points in the fifth when they drop the foo-foo powder on this bird's tongue he swnigs a werry werry wicked hoof. SETTEE and SISTER SUE for what is left. The latter is a superior mudder.

ST. DONARD, whose last race should be tossed out, and WILKES-BARRE, in the closing dash, bring the gab to "finis" for this bright January day. Special Wednesday—Third race at New Orleans I will have a special. I said the third race Wednesday!

NEW ORLEANS.

First race—Beautiful Flower, Jenny Dear, Circus Lady.
Second race—Red Head, Hike, Exchequer.
Third race—Bother, Noel, Canyon.
Fourth race—Hullo, Bill O'Flynn, Lad Omine.

Discus Toss Pulls Game Out of Fire

By AL DEMAREE,
Former Pitcher New York Giants.

ONE of the most sensational and daring shots ever attempted on a basketball floor once turned defeat into victory for Norman Elliot's Illinois Wesleyan quintet. Elliot, later the big star of the national champion I. A. C. quintet of Chicago, was one of the greatest basketball players who ever bulged the twine of the basket. A big, muscular blond, light on his feet, swift and powerful, with a deadly eye for the hoop, he was able to travel all over the court and shoot goals from any distance or angle.

In this game Elliot's team was a point behind, seconds before the final gun. Elliot was clear down to the opponent's basket when he took the ball off the bank. It was too far down the floor for a regular two-hand arch shot and there was not time to dribble or pass the ball to advance nearer the goal.

In the fraction of a second Elliot grasped all this detail and chose a daring course. He drew back the ball in one hand, as though to pass, and instead swung his hand around like a discus thrower and let the ball go, high and far. It looped near the ceiling, speeding true and swift toward the distant goal, where it descended to rattle through the ring with a blow that jarred the backboard and threw the hundreds of spectators into a frenzy.

The game was over before the new toss-up at center could be made, and Elliot had achieved the most sensational play possible in basketball, a play comparable to the no-hit game or homer with bases loaded in baseball, the 90-yard return of kick-off for winning touchdown in football or the "ace" in golf."

D.C. CUE TITLE EVENT ENDS THIS WEEK

Dent Leads Field and Has Fine Chance to Win.

MORRIS DENT, with seven victories and no defeats, is leading the field in the District championship pocket-billiard Grand Central parlors. The affair tournament being staged at the will end this week with Henry Roorke, in second place, having but a faint chance of catching the youthful leader.

All of the three matches scheduled for this week have an important bearing in the race. Tonight, Dent meets Joseph Crowley, Elk entrant; tomorrow night will see John Jackson opposing Clive Richmond, while the Wednesday bout will be the feature of the week with Dent and Roorke crossing cues.

THE latter's only chance of getting a crack at the title and the handsome prize which goes with it, is for Crowley to beat Dent tonight and for Roorke to do the stunt himself Wednesday.

In this case the two would be tied for first place, and Referee Cox will stage a two-night play-off on Thursday and Friday. A victory in either match will give Dent the title.

Tomorrow's match will decide whether or not Richmond gets fourth place or ties with Bartelmes. Jackson, who holds high cluster with a 39, is cueing in rare form now and his victory over Richmond would prove no surprise to his followers.

Indians Need Another Slugger to Put Team In Front, Speaker Says

CLEVELAND, Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—The baseball team that will represent Cleveland this year will be little different from the 1925 squad because, says Manager Tris Speaker, "Cleveland had a far better ball club than it showed in 1924 and 1925."

Tris issued the warning that the Indians are likely to hurdle three or four teams in the 1926 finish.

"We had a lot of tough luck and played considerably bad ball," said Speaker, "but we have had two seasons of it and I have every reason to believe we will get squared away in 1926.

"We need only one more big wallop at the bat to help out Joe Sewell, George Burns and myself. Between the three of us we accounted for 270 runs last year. If Charlie Jamieson does the things I expect of him, we'll make things hum this year."

The Sportswoman

By DOROTHY E. GREENE

THE Washington Women's Basketball league is no more!

At a specially-called meeting of that body which was held last night at the Marjorie Webster school, the eight clubs which make up the league voted to accept the resignations of the officers and dissolve the organization until Tuesday January 26, when a meeting will be held at the Webster school at 7 p. m., to decide on the future of the league.

Last night's meeting was called as a result of the action taken last week by the Metropolitan Athletic club, when they allied themselves with the National Amateur Athletic Federation and under that platform could no longer play for a championship. This action of the "Mets" and their subsequent resignation from the W. C. circuit brought local basketball sentiment for the N. A. A. F. to a head and resulted in the friendly dissolution of the organization.

Miss Marjorie Webster, president, opened the meeting and offered her resignation together with those of Miss Margaret Craig, vice president, and Miss Gladys Mills, secretary.

MISS WEBSTER stated that the officers felt they could no longer head an organization which sponsored a city championship and all the ill-feeling which goes with the fight for a title, because they had indorsed the principles of the N. A. A. F. and were in sympathy with its program for women's athletics.

In the discussion which followed sentiment for the N. A. A. F. policies crystalized in the motion which dissolved the league, deferring further action to the 26th when Miss Lillian Schoedler, executive secretary of the women's division of the N. A. A. F. will be in the city and can assist in the reorganization. Practically without exception the eight clubs were in favor of a reorganization under the local group of the N. A. A. F., of which Miss Grace Keefe is temporary chairman. Under this plan basketball affairs would be executed by a committee.

All club members who have questions which they wish Miss Schoedler to answer at the meeting should write them and address them to Miss Keefe at 1869 Mintwood place.

All league games will be played as scheduled pending the outcome of the January 26 meeting.

HIGH CHAMPS IN SERIES DEBUT

Central to Play Tech Tomorrow; Eastern Meets Western.

By WALTER HAIGHT.

THE debut of Central's representatives, 1924-25 champions, will feature the second of the District High school basketball double-headers to be staged tomorrow afternoon at the Arcade, starting at 3:30 o'clock.

For their initial appearance the Mt. Pleasant tossers have drawn their old rival, Tech. The other clash will find Eastern and Western paired.

Central carries into the series something entirely new to high school basketball — the professional style of play. Coach Burt Coggins is not, however, experimenting. His charges have demonstrated the possibilities of the system with a most successful preseries record.

The style consists of the whirling of the players in a series of lightning-like short passes designed to find an opening in their opponent's defense and a block play, with Earl Moser, the big guard, as pivot, and MacDonald and Banta as the "cutters."

UNFORTUNATELY Tech is not in the possession of the important essentials of size and experienced players to give the Central offense a severe test. The Manual Trainers exhibited little more than their traditional fighting spirit in bowing to Eastern Saturday.

Eastern will enter its second game favorite to defeat Western by a comfortable margin. Coach Guyon's combination, in addition to being a veteran one, has size and a keen shooter in every position. In Western's first game, which it lost to Business, the Red and White appeared formidable only in spots. Unless the week-end has been one of miracles in Georgetown, Western will have done its best if it holds the Lincoln Parkers to a respectable score.

Giving an ear to those who relish prophecies on the series outcome, it seems that the series has been arranged for the sole purpose of determining the best of two teams—Eastern and Central.

While at this time those fives rank head and shoulders above the others, high school basketball in the past has always proven an uncertainty in the extreme and it would be well to bear in mind that the contests are decided in actual competition.

Episcopal High Names Laird as Court Coach

Alexandria, Va., Jan. 10.—William ("Bill") Laird has been appointed head basketball coach at Episcopal High school to succeed H. T. Sanborn, former Washington McKinley Tech coach, who has resigned to accept the position of head coach at the University of North Carolina, Southern conference champions for the past three seasons.

Laird starred at Episcopal High for four seasons as varsity forward and later went to the University of Virginia, where he served three years on the varsity and played his first year in Virginia on the freshman team.

The Episcopalian cagers will get into action again Wednesday afternoon, playing Eastern High school of Washington, D. C., on the local's court. The contest has been set to start at 3:30.

Tank School Defeats Camp Holabird, 33-10

Fort Howard, Md., Jan. 10.—The Tank school today defeated Camp Holabird, 33 to 10, in the opening game of the Third corps area basketball championship series. The superior teamwork and shooting of the Tankers was responsible for the overwhelming score. Brown and Hodson, the Camp Meade forwards, were responsible for more than twice as many points as were made by the Quartermasters. Schorn put up the best game for Holabird. The contest was greatly marred by much unnecessary rough play and heckling.

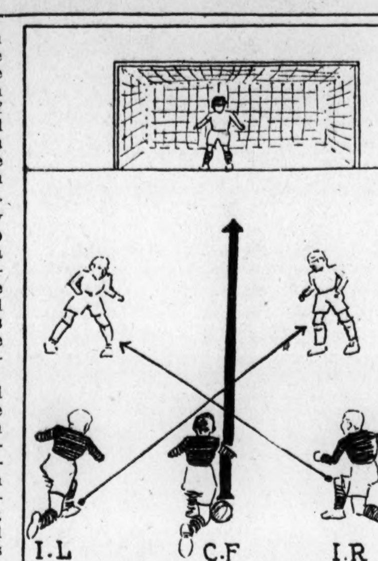
SOCCER SCIENCE

By a Former Coach in the British Army
A LESSON FROM U. S. FOOTBALL.



Soccer coaches in the United States have gained much from the principles of American football. The rules of interference developed to its highest degree in the great Yankee game can be applied with great success to soccer.

Here is a little play which can be used to make interference for a goal shooter. It is advisable to have the three men involved practice this play as much as possible, since its success lies in perfect timing.

The center forward has the ball with the two inside men with him. A shot is possible if the charging opponents can be taken out. If the center forward attempts to pass, much time is wasted and an opportunity is afforded the opening backs to come up.

The play starts with the inside left crossing in front of the ball and meeting the charging opponent. The inside right cuts in the opposite direction to take out the other opponent. The center forward will thus be afforded a good opportunity to shoot.

The two inside men should cross in front of the ball almost simultaneously, inside left moving a little in advance of his team mate.

The play is confusing to the opponents and will mask the center forward while he is setting himself for a shoot.

GUARD FIVES FACE BUSY WEEK

District Quintets Are Booked to Play at Hyattsville.

HYATTSVILLE, Md., Jan. 10.—A formidable group of opponents will be met next week by regular and reserve basketball teams of Company F, national guard, on the armory court here.

Tomorrow night the Independent Athletic club and Elliott Athletic club tossers, both of Washington, will invade the guards' court, the former five engaging the soldier regulars in the main attraction and the Elliotts taking on the doughboys' reserves in the preliminary tilt.

Thursday night the Park View Athletic club and the Royce Athletic club combinations, a couple more Capital City teams, will appear here. Park View and Company F's "big" five will meet following a clash between the Royce tossers and the militia "seconds."

PULLMANS of Washington will furnish the opposition for the soldier regular five here Saturday night and the Woodside M. E. five and the Company F Reserves will hook up in the preliminary setto.

Next Sunday Company F's first five will visit Camp Humphreys, Va., for a return game with the combination representing that post. The Hyattsville soldiers pointed the way to the Camp Humphreys lads here last Thursday night, 26-to-14.

HATCHETITES ENTERTAIN RICHMOND

G. W. Tossers Hope to Add Another Scalp to Their Belts.

SPURRED on by its victory over the Johns Hopkins team Saturday night, the George Washington basketball team will again take the floor tonight intent upon adding another victim to its list. The proposed victims are the Richmond university tossers. The game will be played on the George Washington court at 8 o'clock.

The Richmond outfit is more or less of an unknown quantity hereabouts, but may upset the calculations of the ardent Hatchetite rooters, who feel that the local machine is capable of steam-rolling through the majority of its opponents, and are confident of a win tonight.

THE showing of the Hatchetites Saturday was quite gratifying. In addition to displaying a consistent attack, the local five also showed that it is a strong defensive team.

Brown, Hill, Kendall, Wallace and Banton form the regular lineup, and all starred against Hopkins. The Reserves, headed by Sapp and Allshouse, also played skillfully, and undoubtedly will get into action in tonight's fracas.

Shoot Leaders Enter Pinehurst GunTourney

Pinehurst, N. C., Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—Mrs. J. C. Wright, of Atlanta, who last year led the field in the midwinter trapshooting tournament, will be among the entrants here tomorrow when the shoot starts. "Steve" Crothers, of Philadelphia, who won the national championship last year; Frank Troeh, of Portland, Ore.; Mark Aerie, Champaign, Ill., and Martin McVoy, of New York, well known marksmen all, are expected to arrive tomorrow morning. The tournament will last all week. The 16-year midwinter championship of 160 targets is scheduled for Wednesday.

Northwestern Five Looking for Action

The Northwestern Seniors would like to arrange a game for Wednesday evening with some senior or unlimited team having a gym. The Northwesterns also desire other games, with Park Views, DeMolays, Ellicot City and Warrenton being especially challenged.

is fast, handles the ball cleanly, can shoot well and is a strong defensive player. Georgetown opponents will have a hard time breaking through this pair to get within easy scoring range of the hoops and will be obliged to try most of their shots from a respectable distance.

Nork and Donovan are the probable starting forwards. Both of these lads are dead eyes for the basket and are clever dribblers and accurate passers. They get their shots off fast and can hold their own defensively. The pivot berth is a toss-up between Johannes and Tomaini, and more than likely the job will be alternated between them.

The Hilltoppers are also strong in reserve strength. For relief forwards O'Reilly has Flavin and Griffin, who are practically on a par with the regulars. Ryan and Hickey form a capable and efficient pair of substitute guards.

YANKEES BOW TO STANTON FIVE

Plaza Team Surprises With 32-26 Victory at Arcade.

THE Stantons, from the Union Station Plaza, knocked the Yankees loose from a winning streak of twelve games, handing them their first defeat of the season by a 32-to-26 score, in a preliminary to the Palace-Detroit game at the Arcade last night.

The game marked the first ever played in Washington on a net-inclosed floor and was one worthy of that distinction. A bedlam of action from start to finish, the final minutes of the struggle found virtually every person present on his feet, as the Stantons, led by Joe Sweeney, put the game beyond reach of their rivals.

Outweighed and conceded but little chance to win at the start of the game, the Green Boys, with their fighting spirit, won the hearts of practically every fan.

The Yankees stepped out in front at the beginning and held a small margin until just before half-time, when the Stantons fought their way to a 16-to-14 advantage.

IN the second half the lead changed hands seven times amid some of the most ferocious basketball ever played here, 3 points being the largest advantage either club gained. Then came the Stantons' final spurt and victory.

While every green uniform contained a boy who contributed every power at his command to win, Joe Sweeney and "Sally" Hanback were the outstanding players. Sweeney played a dazzling floor game and contributed five field goals and eight foul shots out of ten tries.

Hanback, a stubby guard, was a thorn in the side of the Yankee offense. He broke up play after play and held Deinhart, former Notre Dame center, to a single field goal.

Harvey Ingley was the only consistent scorer from scrimmage for the Yankees. He accounted for four baskets. Deinhart proved accurate at the foul line, making good eight of ten tries.

Cardinals Win Easily Over St. Joseph Jrs.

Displaying a fast offensive and an impenetrable defensive, the Cardinal Juniors had little trouble defeating the St. Joseph Juniors by a 30-to-10 score in a preliminary to the Eagles-General Tires game yesterday. The teamwork of the winners was the outstanding feature, although Anderson, of St. Joseph, scored all his clubs' field goals. The Cards meet the St. Mary's Juniors in the Alexandria armory tomorrow night.

CONVENTION HALL AWARDED WASHINGTON PIN MEET

Cycle System For Events Adopted

Decision on Name Halts Consolidation of Two Bodies.

Apr. 12 Is Date Set for W. C. D. A. Event This Season.

By W. CHARLES QUANT.

THE Washington City Duckpin association at its regular meeting held at the Raleigh hotel yesterday morning adopted a cycle system to determine the place of the rolling of their annual spring tournament each season. The 1926 event will take place at the Convention hall alleys, opening on Monday, April 12, with teams, doubles, singles, and all-events champions to be decided.

The Convention hall establishment was selected for first position in the cycle, inasmuch as it is the newest alley in the District and it always has been the policy of the bowling public to want to try something new. The 1927 tournament will be rolled on either the Coliseum drives or at King Pin No. 1. The choice of alleys in this case will be decided by a toss of a coin in the presence of "Pop" Halley and "Bill" Wood, managers of the respective houses. The loser of the toss will be awarded the 1928 event.

The resolution adopted also provided for any new establishment that might be erected in the future that would be large enough and properly equipped for the holding of such a large affair. In this case the new house would join the cycle and take its turn in getting the annual pin set-to.

THE meeting also brought out a thorough discussion on the subject of consolidating the Washington City and Capital City associations. After several lengthy arguments on the part of the Washington City directors and the officers of the Capital City association, who were in attendance, it was evident that both associations are aiming for the same purpose—serving the bowler.

It was brought out in the course of discussion that the Capital City association was formed by a group of bowlers, who were former members of the Washington City duckpin body, but who had had some differences as to the conduct of the business affairs of the latter group.

It was admitted, however, that with the adoption of the resolutions as to alleys and an entire new administration controlling the affairs of the Washington body, that the conduct of the affairs may be such as to be entirely in accord with the wishes of the Capital City group.

Despite this, the latter objects to being merged into the Washington City body under that name, but suggests a new name. The Capital group is even willing to have the same officers that are now in power in the Washington City body retain their offices in the proposed new body.

It is on the question of a name point that a consolidation now seems to hang. The Washington City club does not see why it should change its name. It argues that it was organized in 1910 and has been active for the past 15 years. It also contends that out of respect to the pioneers of bowling in the District, namely, George Cox, George Eiseman, Harry Krauss and "Pop" Halley, who organized this body, that its name should continue to stand.

WITH the issue having been boiled down to this point an appeal was made to both sides to consider the matter carefully that furtherplans for a united body might be made when the Capital City association holds its annual meeting in the near future.

In an effort to further the desires of the bowlers for a single governing body, John Blick, vice president of the Capital City association, extended a special invitation to Henry Rodier, the Washington City leader, to attend the former's meeting, when held, and air the differences before that body as they were aired before the Washington group yesterday.

With the plans for a consolidation so nearly completed, another resolution was adopted suspending plans for the holding of the annual individual tournament this season so that the efforts of all might be bent on bringing greater harmony among the maple pin followers.

IN THE PRESS BOX WITH BAXTER

IT is considered probable that the American Medical association at its next meeting will bring charges against the New York Boxing commission as a whole and the Duke of Muldoon individually to determine by what right the commission and its most colorful member engage in the practice of the medical profession.

The charges grow out of the recent diagnosis of Mickey Walker's infected toe made by the Duke of Muldoon and concurred in by his fellow commissioners. The Duke of Muldoon as physician-in-chief and expert on toes, including toe holds, gave it as his opinion that Walker, welterweight leader of the prize-ring industry, would be unable to fight Tommy Milligan because of the condition of his toe.

He reached this conclusion despite the fact that Walker possessed a certificate from his doctor that the toe was in first-class shape, capable of supporting the owner thereof in the prize ring. The Duke of Muldoon did not even have to look at the toe to reach a different diagnosis. The Duke merely said that a toe which had been too ill to permit its owner to take part in a charity bout could not have recovered in less than a month.

MATTER OF ETHICS: GOTHAM BOXING HEADS AROUSE PHYSICIANS

The action of the Duke of Muldoon is, of course, considered to be highly unethical by the members of the American Medical association. Not only was it in conflict with the decision of a licensed practitioner, but the manner in which the Duke of Muldoon reached the verdict, without even looking at the toe, is regarded by the medical profession as an additional insult. The profession insists that it takes a doctor of experience to make a long distance diagnosis such as this.

It is not likely that the New York Boxing commission will pay any attention to any action that may be taken by the American Medical association. The commission has paid no attention to anybody from the time of its creation. At various times it has disregarded its own rules and consistently violated the law of logic and common sense. The New York Boxing commission may even suspend the American Medical association for a period of six months if the physicians are not careful.

The only fear in the minds of the members of the American prize-ring industry is that the crop of European fighters will run out.

There seems to have been no increase in the criticism relative to college players turning professional since Ernie Nevers signed with the Browns. Why not?

HAVING been warned in advance by its colleague, Jack Daly, that as an actor William Tilden was a good tennis player this column restrained any feverish inclination it may have had to contribute at the box office for the privilege of seeing the national singles champion as a thespian.

Some curiosity remained, however, so when the opportunity arose Mr. Tilden was asked if he found it more embarrassing to make his first entry left center or whether his initial Davis Cup match gave him the greater thrill.

According to Mr. Tilden, his debut as a trooper was made easy because of his experience as a tournament tennis player. Mr. Tilden is of the belief that a good tennis player must have a certain flair for dramatics. He advanced the theory that in tennis it was necessary to hold the spectators with much the same bond that must exist between a player and his audience.

It is not in this column's province to decide whether Mr. Tilden is able to carry the bond of the tennis courts to the stage. The theory, may, however, explain some of the peculiarities of Mr. Tilden's game. He delights in letting a match go to a point where disaster is just around the corner and then pull it back when it seems to be on the point of escaping him. There is the dramatic touch there certainly.

TENNIS AND DRAMA: TILDEN THINKS COURT GAME STAGE AID

It developed also that Mr. Tilden's place in tennis this year is more or less bound up with the stage venture in which he is now engaged. If the production succeeds Mr. Tilden will not withdraw from the cast until about a month before the more important matches, such as the Davis cup and national championships. But, in considering this contingency, it is well to remember the words of Mr. Daly that as an actor Mr. Tilden is a remarkable tennis player.

Because of the disclosure that footballs are really made of cowhide the transition from the gridiron to the diamond may not be so hard for Ernie Nevers, even though he may still be wearing his moleskin togs when he reports for spring practice.

Wonder if some ground for criticism cannot be found in the decision of Hinky Haines, professional football and baseball player, to retire from all sports and enter business? What bad effect will that have on college athletics?

WILLIAM H. ROCAP, chairman of the Pennsylvania Boxing commission, is a serious-minded individual. In some respects he regards the prize-ring industry in almost as serious a light as the members of the New York commission.

Rocap showed the serious side of his nature last week when he sent a telegram to Jack Dempsey, calling on the heavyweight champion to fight Harry Wills for "patriotic" reasons at the sesquicentennial exposition, which is to be held in Philadelphia next year. Coming from most persons, a call on Dempsey's patriotism might be considered a joke, but Bill Rocap undoubtedly meant it.

Dempsey, too, is a serious-minded individual. According to all reports from Los Angeles he did not crack a smile on the receipt of Rocap's telegram. Patriotism is spelled in dollars and cents in the mind of the heavyweight titleholder, so that the prize-ring industry's leading financier will be unable to decide whether he will lay his life down for the sesquicentennial exposition until he gets blue prints of the proposed arena with the scale of prices attached.

A SERIOUS THOUGHT: DEMPSEY MIGHT HEAR PATRIOTIC DOLLAR CALL

The sesquicentennial exposition is still in the stage where it is easy to talk of a stadium seating 100,000 persons. At the prices that prevail in the prize ring industry these days that might be a sufficiently large corral for the cash customer to induce Dempsey to place his synthetic proboscis inside the ring. One condition probably will be that the promoters of the exposition take nothing for their end.

Dempsey, it may be recalled, is not in the habit of letting the other fellow have much, even in the name of patriotism. Some seven years ago, when the call in the name of patriotism was issued in behalf of the United States, Dempsey sacrificed a few minutes of his time and had his picture taken as a shipyard worker. Having done his duty, he continued to do his fighting in the prize ring in preference to the training camps and the trenches.

Judging from some of the golf stories which this column has heard broadcasting, the doings of the United States Golf association must have been quite a strain on an honest microphone.

A lot of the Hot Stove league stories are so dried out by the heat that they turn into ashes before spring.

TORONTO AFTER CONACHER.

Toronto, of the International league, is reported to be trying to get Lionel Conacher, star of the Pittsburgh hockey team, to sign a contract. Conacher is a native of Toronto and has made quite a reputation as a baseball player.

OFFICIAL DELEGATED.

Blake Harper, president of the Fort Smith club, has been delegated by league President Seabough to represent the Western association at the minor league convention at Catalina. Harper is vice president of the league.

42-FOOT PUTT WINS PRO MATCH

Compston Sinks Ball, Barnes-Farrell Lose on Fortieth Hole.

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—When Archie Compston, British pro golf champion, sank a 42-foot putt on the fortieth green at Temple terrace late this afternoon he brought to a close one of the most sensational golf matches ever played in Florida. On the strength of the wizardry of the towing Briton's putter, Compston and Arnaud Massey, French open champion, defeated Jim Barnes and Johnny Farrell, American professionals, 1 up.

Inclement weather reduced the gallery to 2,000 persons.

Par for the difficult Temple terrace course is 72. The best eighteen-hole cards turned in today were Barnes and Compston's 74s for the afternoon round.

As the foursome teed off on the thirty-sixth hole Barnes and Farrell were 1 down. Farrell was on the edge of the green in three and sank a 20-foot putt that sent the match into extra holes.

BARNES and Compston registered par 4's on the thirty-seventh, halving the hole, and duplicated on the thirty-eighth. The thirty-ninth saw all four going at top clip and registering par 4's. On the fortieth, however, Compston was on in 2, and sank his putt for a birdie 3, ending the match as darkness was descending.

Barnes and Farrell ended the morning round 2 up, although Compston and Massey, on the average, had the better scores. For the regulation 36 holes Barnes was medalist for the day, with 149, while Compston registered a 150.

It was the second victory of the Europeans since their arrival in the United States about two weeks ago. Last Sunday Compston and Massey defeated two leading amateurs, Bobby Jones and Walt Gunn, at St. Augustine.

Ingram Not Sought By Navy, Is Assertion

Bloomington, Ind., Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—Zora G. Clevenger, athletic director of Indiana university, tonight gave a setback to reports that William ("Navy Bill") Ingram would become coach at the United States Naval Academy next season.

Clevenger arrived here today from the Pacific coast, where he had accompanied Ingram's all-Eastern team. "When I left California last Tuesday Ingram had received no offer from the navy," he said.

BRITISH GOLF YOKE'S END PLANNED

American Organization Own Leader, Says Fownes.

CHICAGO, Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—Asserting that America need no longer submit to any golf domination by Great Britain, William C. Fownes, of Pittsburgh, new president of the United States Golf association, today proposed to bring about annual international conferences on the conduct of the game. While no revolt was threatened, President Fownes said that the United States no longer found it necessary to sit by and have all the laws of the game dictated to it, for it had more golfers and players of prowess than Britain, as had been shown in international tournaments.

Previously about the only independent declarations on golf law were made by the Western Golf association, while it was dominated by Crafts W. Higgins, and at that time the U. S. G. A. stood stanchly for rule by St. Andrews. The Western association has gradually been submerged by interlocking directorates and officers, and now the U. S. G. A. is taking up the cudgel for betterment of the game.

There are no outstanding disputes and nothing to cause a breach, President Fownes said, but American golfers will take their place in the sun and insist on having a voice in future regulation of the game. The main subject now under discussion is a change in the weight and size of golf balls. The British last summer turned down an American proposal, but the subject will be pursued.

It is possible that the basic structure and even the name of the U. S. G. A. will be changed in the future to make it strictly a national organization, with State organizations acting regionally under its jurisdiction.

Thirteen Straight For Kanawha Five

The Kanawha A. C. showed no fear of the unlucky "13" and stepped out and won its thirteenth consecutive game of the season, defeating the Oxford A. C., 30 to 17. The game was featured by the beautiful shooting of Jack Goldblatt for the winners and Adair for the losers.

"Champions"—Past and Present

By JOE ARCHIBALD

TIME was when John Crimson Harvard, now kicked and otherwise manhandled by even lowly colleges, heretofore looked down upon, ruled the country's lime slatted battlefields. They were the halcyon days when the late Percy Haughton gripped the reins of the mighty Harvard teams. When a Brickley, a Casey, a Mahan, or an Owen ran wild through Princeton and Yale and all-American elevens were splashed with crimson.

Football scribes lauded the Haughton system from coast to coast. Harvard was the last word in football. The famous system was but a triple threat play, a superplayer placed in an attacking formation where he might kick, pass, or run the ball with equal skill. The opposing teams were only partially prepared to meet one of them and Crimson triumphs resulted. It was psychology, pure and simple. We cannot help but wonder if Harvard's success in those days would have been anything but mediocre if Haughton had not been blessed with such wonderful stars as Brickley, Mahan, Casey, Owen and Hardwick. Without Red Grange, Illinois would have been helpless. Zuppke used the red head much the same as Haughton used his great backs and with even greater success. Percy Haughton's success did not follow him to Columbia. Koppische, Columbia's, great halfback, was a great player but could scarcely be called a Mahan. Football players are born and not made and although Percy Haughton is considered one of the best coaches on record, he could do no more than the next man without material.

Knute Rockne, great mentor of Notre Dame, who has coached almost unbeatable South Bend elevens for years, perhaps developed the greatest team ever representing a college in 1924. They swept everything before them from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The last glorious ride of the four horsemen of Notre Dame over Leland Stanford on the coast will always be remembered as long as the game lasts. Experts of the sport have conceded that Crowley, Layden, Miller and Stuhldreher was the greatest backfield that ever ran a ball. Rockne's teams are light, but he instills such fire, fight and football into his teams each year that they are feared on every gridiron.

They are machines and not one-man aggregations. When Harvard uncovers another superman in moleskins, they may again rule the big three. They might again reach the heights if they could get a Knute Rockne.

OAKLAND GETS M'NALLY.

Los Angeles, Jan. 10 (By A. P.). Glenn McNally, Oklahoma City third baseman, has been sold to the Oakland club of the Pacific Coast league for $6,000, it was announced here today.

GRANGE RUNS PUNT BACK 51 YARDS

Bears Win, 14-0, Over Southern Stars on Muddy Field.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—Harold ("Red") Grange and his Chicago Bears exhibited their football skill before a crowd of 6,000 persons by defeating the Southern All-Stars, 14 to 0, here today. The contest, marked by numerous penalties, was played on muddy field.

Grange supplied the biggest thrill of the game in the last quarter, when he side-stepped a half dozen players and returned "Moon" Ducote's punt 51 yards to the 6-yard line. A 15-yard penalty was imposed on the Bears on that play for clipping. Line plays by Walquist and Knop gained 12 yards, and Grange plunged over the line for a touchdown.

E. Vick scored the Bears' first touchdown in the second quarter by a punt he had blocked behind the goal line. Sternaman drop-kicked goals for the 2 points after touchdown.

GRANGE'S runs almost always netted 5 yards. A 20-yard gain was the "Galloping Ghost's" best from scrimmage and 9 yards his next best. He carried the pigskin sixteen times from scrimmage for a total gain of 72 yards, an average of 4 1-2 yards per jaunt.

"Brother" Brown, Tulane star of other years, was the outstanding player of the All Stars, ripping around the Bears' right end in the first quarter for 36 yards. Lester Lautenschlaeger ran his team well and returned several punts from 10 to 30 yards.

Work and McPhilomy To Bowl Saturday

Earl McPhilomy, Harry Stanford's youthful protege, and Al Work, John Blick's veteran southpaw, will clash in the first half of their special 10-game match on the Coliseum alleys next Saturday night at 8 o'clock. The final half of the match, which is to be decided by total pinfall, will be staged on the Convention Hall drives Saturday, January 23.

McPhilomy, who is starring as a member of the Stanford Paper Co. five in both the District and Typothetae circuits and as a member of the Joseph Phillips club of the National Capital league, is making quite a name for himself with his general average above the 120 mark.

Despite Mc's good record, Work must also be reckoned with for his past performances. He was a member of Blick's club that so handily trimmed Pittsburgh in their recent match, while he annexed first place in the individual tournament at Convention hall during the holidays. It was in this event that he averaged better than 120 for his final 10 games, while his average for the 30 games rolled, including the qualifying round, was well over the 125-mark.

Four Quintets in Fight For Western Honors

Chicago, Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—The process of separating the wheat from the chaff in the Western conference basketball race, begun by nine Big Ten teams, has indicated that the first stages of the fight for the crown will be among four teams.

Ohio State, 1925 titlist, may have a strenuous time keeping its prize safe from the grabbing hands of Wisconsin, Indiana, Michigan and Iowa.

Wisconsin made the most pretentious showing in the opening games by downing Minnesota, 36 to 24, last Tuesday. The Gophers later fell again before Indiana, . . to 28.

Michigan worked its five-man defense to perfection when Northwestern threatened to grab the winning margin of the Wolverines' 32 to 30 victory. Iowa staged a last-period rally to down Chicago, last year's tail-ender, 18 to 13.

W.& L. Freshman Cage Squad to Be Pruned

Lexington, Va., Jan. 10.—With over 50 candidates reporting for freshman basketball, Coach "Cy" Twombley will have to use the knife very shortly, as the first game for the Little Generals is with Augusta Military Academy on the latter's home court next Wednesday.

In order to get his squad down to a workable number within the next few days so that he can present a fairly well organized team against the military lads next week, Coach Twombley will be forced to materially reduce his squad by the latter part of the week. Ebert, Smith, Fitzpatrick, White, Sprowl and Imhof are the most promising members who have been showing up well in the preliminary workouts.

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS

Be Better Looking—Take Olive Tablets

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 17 years of study.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. Take one or two nightly and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes are sold annually at 15c and 30c.

HEADS OF 14 PARISHES DEFY MODERNIST BISHOP

CLASH OVER RESERVATION

(Special Cable Dispatch.)

London, Jan. 10.—A serious split in the Church of England is feared as a result of a conflict at Birmingham. The Anglo-Catholic, or the high church faction has defied Dr. E. W. Barnes, bishop of Birmingham, who now threatens to remove fourteen clergy of his diocese who have led the revolt against his rulings.

The bishop, who is a noted modernist leader in the Church of England, has denounced the religious theories which declare the real presence of Christ found in the sacrament of the altar. He has forbidden the reservation of the host with the accompanying service of adoration.

This order has resulted in a breach between the high and low church members which is attracting the anxious attention of the churchmen throughout the country. Anglo-Catholics outside of Birmingham urged clergymen of the Birmingham diocese to defy the bishop, pledging the financial support of the English Church union. Consequently, Birmingham high church men in fourteen parochial councils withdrew their support of the diocesan board of finance and declared their churches financially independent.

Most of the revolting parishes are poor, but they have appealed for funds to make them self-supporting. About $18,000 already has been contributed. Financial independence, however, does not mean freedom from the bishop's ruling.

The bishop has refused to grant licenses to the assistant clergy in the parishes where the holy sacrament is publicy reserved. He also has refused to ordain two Anglo-Catholic candidates to holy orders.

MAN'S BACK BROKEN AT STUDENTS' PARTY

Philadelphia, Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—Charles Nicholas Kessler, jr., of Los Angeles, a University of Pennsylvania student, is in the Polyclinic hospital with a broken back, and believed to be dying as a result of a fight at a New Year's eve party, police have revealed.

The party, attended by university students, was said to have continued for two nights and a day, with considerable drinking. Police investigators have been unable to penetrate the veil of mystery which surrounds Kessler's injury, further than to learn that he was struck by a mahogany table thrown by another student during a fight, said to have been over a girl. They have not learned the name of the student who threw the table. The brawl is said to have occurred in a fraternity house, of whcih the students were members.

Young Kessler, who is 19, has refused to discuss his injury, as has his father, who came here from Los Angeles.

China Asks America For Movie Theaters

New York, Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—The Chinese government is sponsoring a movement for a wider distribution of American motion pictures in China and has sent a representative to this country to encourage American capital to build more movie theaters in the Celestial republic.

The representative, Sumnung Au-Young, of Peking, a former Columbia university student, now director of the Chinese government bureau of economic information and holder of other offices, is conferring with Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, and other movie men.

Naming of Portland Archbishop Delayed

Rome, Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—The appointment of a new archbishop for Portland, Oreg., is being considered by the consistorial congregation. No decision has yet been reached, and two months may elapse before a choice is made.

The Pope has decided that no cardinal will be sent to Chicago for the international eucharistic congress in June except a cardinal legate, who has not been selected. The name will probably not be announced until shortly before his departure for Chicago.

Use Jazz in Church, Is Pastor's Advice

New York, Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—"The church should take a lesson from jazz, and supplant its 'high-priced quartets singing over the heads of their congregations' with music that 'thrills and rests the weary,'" the Rev. Christian F. Reisner, of Chelsea Methodist Episcopal church, told his congregation today.

He asserted the church could utilize "jazz" to "exalt the spirits of thousands until fellowship with God will be easy and real."

"Jazz does thrill," he said, "and it brings a prompt reaction that relieves strained tension."

Chicago Fails to Provide the Easy Work and Money That Lured Them.

Special to The Washington Post.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—Zero weather and unemployment are driving back to the South thousands of negroes lured North in the last three years by hopes of easy work and big money. They have found neither. Instead they have found racial lines much closer drawn than in the South and have discovered they must pay high prices and pay cash for everything. Their food, clothing and housing requirements are much greater than in the South, so they are drifting back in large groups. Investigators say every train for the South carries a group of sadly disillusioned negroes, anxious to get back to the cotton fields, back where the people understand them and sympathize with them and where they are assured of something to eat and a roof over their heads.

LUDENDORFF IS LINKED WITH HUNGARIAN PLOT

CAREFUL PLAN BUNGLED

London, Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—The Westminster Gazette, claiming to give the inner history of the Hungarian note forgeries, says that but for bungling the plot might well have resulted in the open proclamation of a fascist monarchy in Hungary, with the crown upon the head of Archduke Albrecht.

It asserts that the legitimist adherents of the boy Archduke Otto, son of the late Emperor Carl, are not implicated. The arrests clearly indicate, adds the paper, "the most ambitious conspiracy yet attempted by the notorious 'awakening Magyars' aiming at the recovery under a monarchy of former Hungarian provinces now belonging to new entente states."

The Westminister Gazette connects Count Teleky, former premier, and two deputies, Eckhardt and Ulian, with the plot and declares that in 1923 Ulain signed a treaty with the German Gen. Ludendorff and Adolph Hitler, leader of the Bavarian Fascisti, in Munich, promising to supply the Bavarian nationalists with food in return for 10,000 Bavarians to help the Hungarian fascisti start a rising in Hungary simultaneously with that in Bavaria.

In connection with the foregoing, the Hungarian minister in London has issued a statement giving his government's version of the plot, in which he asserts that no evidence is forthcoming to prove that any political party or group had a hand in the plot and that the police investigations proved that Count Teleky, Baron Perenyi, Count Csaky and Maj. Magashazy, whose names rumor connected with the plot, were in no way implicated.

QUAKE HITS TUSCANY; HUNDREDS CAMP OUT

Eruption of Vesuvius Keeps Up; Flaming Lava River Approaches Village.

Rome, Jan. 10 (By A. P.).—Mount Vesuvius, which has been in a state of activity for several days, is continuing its magnificent and not altogether reassuring displays of fireworks, while the Tuscan countryside in the northern part of Italy has again been visited by a short trembling of the subsoil. The disturbance sent the population scurrying into the open spaces, but there was no loss of life and only slight damage. Because of the Tuscany quake, which was felt most at Piancas and Tagnaio, hundreds of families are camping outdoors despite the cold.

The constant belching from Vesuvius of green and yellow smoke, and explosive particles, is providing an exciting spectacle for tourists. It is not amusing the residents of Torre Annunciata, who notice that one of the several flaming lava streams is coming in their direction.

Most of the snow on the hills, the melting of which together with heavy rains for many days, caused the floods, has disappeared. Fear of any serious catastrophe is said to be definitely past.

LENROOT HAS PRAISE FOR LOCARNO TREATY

Calls Pact "Most Forward Step" of Nations in the Last 100 Years.

IS SPEAKER AT BANQUET

Calling the Locarno peace pact "the most forward step made for peace in the last 100 years," Senator Irvine L. Lenroot, speaking at the Delta Phi Epsilon banquet last night in the Lafayette hotel, predicted that "the next 25 years would be the most important in the Christian era, and would see greater advances to the cause of peace than have been made in all the years preceding that time."

The banquet was the annual initiatory banquet of the fraternity. Other speeches were made by James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor; Dr. Rufus B. Van Kleinsmid, president of the University of Southern California, and national president of the fraternity; Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, J. S. Regent, of the School of Foreign Service, and Henry Suydam, Washington correspondent of the Brooklyn Eagle.

Speaking of America's failure to recognize the Russian government, Mr. Lenroot said that "three things must be taken into consideration upon which recognition of a government is predicated. First, the country must have a stable government; second, it must recognize its international obligations, and third, it must not attempt to undermine or overthrow the country whose recognition it seeks.

"Our government has been criticized," the senator said, "for its part in the Lausanne treaty by which it recognized the Turkish government, but Turkey can answer these three qualifications, while Russia will not fulfill any but the first of the three requirements."

Advocating the thrusting aside of political differences, Senator Lenroot stated that "the foreign service was not for Democrats or Republicans, but for Americans, and foreign posts should be given to those men of most ability, not to those with the greatest political pull as has formerly been the practice."

Canada's Hangman Has 11 Engagements

Special to The Washington Post.

Montreal, Que., Jan. 10.—Executions in Canada are keeping Hangman Arthur Ellis on the jump these days. In the next 30 days he has seven engagements, from Halifax to Vancouver, and four more sheriffs have asked him to keep open dates later in the month of February.

Among the executions will be that of Joseph Mauro, known as the model death cell inmate. Last July Mauro killed Donald Carragher at the Dreamland cafe in Bordeaux, but now he is composed and obliging, spending much time over his prayer book. Although he can have whatever he pleases for meals, he always tells the guard, "I'll take whatever you have ready."

Slain Widow's Suitor Ends Life in Grief

Special to The Washington Post.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—Death obliterated the second member of a love triangle when Capt. Elmer Robert Plummer, former chief of police at La Grange, Ill., killed himself at Haines City, Fla.

The first of the triangle to die was Mrs. Julia Abt Douglas, a beautiful habitue of the bridle paths in and around Chicago. George Munding, master of a riding academy, became infatuated with her, and in a drunken frenzy slew her in jealous rage over the attentions Capt. Plummer was paying her.

Loss of his wife by divorce and the murder of Mrs. Douglas weighed heavily upon the mind of Capt. Plummer.

The board explained the order is not directed at the Charleston if demonstrated in the men's gymnasium, but it is now taboo in the student building. The State building inspector holds it would be unsafe to give it there.

PARK PLAN TO FORE TODAY IN DISTRICT'S PROGRAM IN HOUSE

$600,000 Project Is Expected to Revive Fight Over Fiscal Relations.

ZIHLMAN IS HOPEFUL FOR NONSUPPORT BILL

Transfer of Abandonment Cases to Juvenile Court Has Agencies' Backing.

With the $600,000 Rock Creek-Potomac parkway project uppermost on the calendar, the District will have its first day in the House today. Besides this measure, Representative Zihlman, chairman of the House District committee, hopes to get through the measure which would give the juvenile court jurisdiction over abandonment and nonsupport cases.

The parkway bill, however, promises an airing of the perennial question of fiscal relations between the District and Federal governments with consequent danger to the success of the first District legislation to be presented at this session.

As the bill awaits House consideration it is unopposed in that it provides that the $600,000 necessary to acquire lands to complete the system of parks should come from District appropriations. Local civic influences have entered the situation, however, to have the Federal government pay for half of the project, and these influences are expected to find expression in the consideration of the bill today at least to the extent of filling the record with words. Representative Blanton, of Texas, is prepared vigorously to combat any Federal support and in so doing to tell the new members of the House just how "well" Washington has fared in the past.

Arousing of Ill-will Feared.

There is a majority of the committee in favor of some Federal support in the project, but this same majority sees nothing but futility and possibility of engendering ill will between Congress and the District in pressing for it. Chairman Zihlman realizing as he sees it, the well nigh impossibility of having Congress go further in District fiscal affairs than the lump sum contribution, is outwardly displeased at the continued agitation on the subject.

It is his hope to get through a broad, progressive program for the District at this session and he feels that agitation for the return of the 60-40 fiscal relationship is doing nothing but spreading ill-will and jeopardizing the legislative program.

Those who have been most active, however, in continuing the agitation see in the passage of the parkway bill, as it now stands, the first writing of the lump sum principal into substantive law. In other words, adoption of the measure without provision for Federal support will be the first recognition in substantive law that the lump sum plan is in vogue.

Lump Sum Favored.

In this connection, however, Chairman Madden, of the House appropriations committee, made known as late as Saturday his firm conviction that a law would be enacted at this session prescribing a lump sum figure.

The indications are that the so-called nonsupport bill will go through virtually unchallenged, although it is noteworthy that the District commissioners in passing upon it did not expressly approve it, but concurred in the corporation counsel's report that it would be legal.

It is sought by social welfare agencies. At present fathers, failing to support their children or abandoning them, must be indicted. The bill seeks by reducing the nature of their offense to a misdemeanor to bring them within the jurisdiction of the juvenile court. The welfare agencies contend that they can get further with this lighter sentence in dealing with the abandonment and nonsupport cases.

Some new members of the committee were surprised when the plan was submitted to them, though, making the observation that it was unusual.

WOMEN WILL TELL COOLIDGE OF DESIRE TO WORK LIKE MEN

300 to March to White House Next Sunday After Belasco Theater Meeting.

WELFARE LEGISLATION IS CALLED HINDRANCE

Eight-Hour Law Is Said by Some to Have Cost Them Their Jobs.

Three hundred working women, representing all trades and professions, will form a deputation which will march to the White House at the conclusion of an equal rights mass meeting next Sunday afternoon in the Belasco theater, to leave with President Coolidge their petition for a "square deal and equal opportunity with men" in the industrial world, unhampered by so-called "welfare" laws for women.

Mrs. Maud Bradbury, of this city, a druggist, "whose work is hampered by the eight-hour law for women in the District," will be a member of the deputation, according to announcement from the National Women's party yesterday.

Challenging the whole theory of special legislation for "protection" of women, these women, several of whom declare they have lost good jobs through the operatoin of such laws and now are forced to engage in harder and more poorly paid work, are coming to Washington to ask President Coolidge to give consideration to their point of view, based on experience in the industrial world.

Object to Special Laws.

They will urge that women no longer be regarded as a class apart in industry, who can enter the industrial field only by permission of the government and under restrictions laid down by national and State government.

Mrs. Edith Houghton Hooker, Baltimore, chairman of the National Council of the Women's Party and a cousin of Alanson B. Houghton, American ambassador at London, will preside at the meeting. Speakers will include Josephine Casey, Chicago, member of and former organizer of the American Federation of Labor; Margaret Hinchey, Mary Murray, Sara Berinsky, Baltimore clothing worker, and Rheta Childe Dorr, author and war correspondent.

U. S. Finds Dependents Cause Women to Work

(By the Associated Press.)

Women who work generally do so because they have dependent relatives to support, the government has learned through a study undertaken in cooperation with the Bryn Mawr Summer School for Women in Industry.

The result of the inquiry as to 101 students in the institution, prepared by Prof. Amy Howes, and made public last night by the women's bureau of the Labor Department, showed that about half of the women so enrolled had to contribute to family support and that a fifth were the sole carriers of such a burden.

PLAN IS DISCUSSED TO INCREASE SERVICE OF CHURCH LAYMEN

SUGGESTION IS MADE TO UNIFY FORCES

150 Representatives of 28 Denominations at Luther Place Meeting.

Plans to enlarge activities of the laity in Protestant churches of America were discussed at yesterday afternoon's session of the United Stewardship conference at Luther Place Memorial church and action will probably be taken on it tonight. It calls for a unification of church forces, such as Sunday schools, women's groups, young peoples' societies, under definite leadership, and according to a general program, resulting in more efficient activity in all congregations concerned.

Need of such a plan was emphasized by speakers at the meeting, which was attended by 150 representatives of at least 28 denominations. Speakers at the forum, presided over by David McConaghy, New York, stewardship secretary for the Presbyterian Church, stressed the need of finding leaders for stewardship in each congregation, outlining their duties, using the Sunday school, the young people's societies and women's organizations and bringing all of them under single leadership.

Question of Stewardship.

The important question resulting was: "How to tie up forces now in the church into a definite plan for stewardship." Stewardship was definer as "Life, services, possessions consecrated to God, because we are only trustees of these."

Need of giving laymen more to do in church work was also emphasized, since they give liberally of their means, it was declared, and a great plan should be made for their service. The matter was discussed at a meeting of ministers yesterday morning, and one of church women in the afternoon.

MOTHERS' PENSION BILL AUTHOR WILL EXPLAIN FEATURES

Representative Keller to Address Social Agencies Council This Afternoon.

MRS. UFFORD, CHAIRMAN, PRAISES PROPOSED PLAN

Declares That Widows' Allowance Would Be Safeguarding of Citizenship.

Representative Oscar Keller, of Minnesota, will address members of the Washington Council of Social Agencies this afternoon at the Burlington hotel on the mothers' pension law bill introduced by him at this session of the House of Representatives.

The bill, which has the approval of the District commissioners and the public welfare code commission, provides for a pension for widows who would otherwise have to give up their children or bring them up under conditions of extreme poverty.

Declares Need of Pension.

According to Mrs. Walter S. Ufford, chairman of the committee on the family of the Washington Council of Social Agencies, this pension is one of the most needed things in the District. Heretofore there has been no public provision for the needy widows with children, who would have to part with their children, in many instances, were it not for private organizations.

Mrs. Ufford says that the pension is not a sentimental caring for the widows, but is a safeguarding of the future citizenship. Authorities on the subject all agree that the child is given a better training and development in the family circle than in an institution, she says. The necessary give and take of living with its own family develops qualities that can not be gained in an institution, according to Mrs. Ufford.

To Administer Bill

The administration of the law in Washington will rest in the hands of the Board of Charities until the creation of the public welfare commission, a bill for the formation of which is before Congress at present, according to Mrs. Ufford. She further says that the bill as prepared for the District is somewhat better than similar laws in the 40 other States that have such legislation, as no limit is set on the welfare worker.

This means that, after considering the actual resources of the family, such as aid from relatives, churches and organizations, the worker can fix a sum that will insure the proper care and education of the child, Mrs. Ufford states. This, according to her, is much better than the usual plan of setting a rate of so much per child and trusting to luck that the amount will be sufficient for the proper care of the child.

The bill provides for trained workers, with necessary qualifications, and for the supervision of the family so that failure to give proper care by the mother can be discerned and proper measures taken for correction.

Local Social Workers To Fight 'Model' Plan

The fight of District social welfare leaders to get a mothers' pensions fund of their choice will be taken before a Senate subcommittee headed by Senator Copeland, of New York, today. Besides Senator Copeland, the committee is composed of Senators Du Pont, McKinley, Sheppard and Glass.

A delegation of New York social workers headed by Miss Irene Loeb is expected to be on hand to insist that a so-called "model" plan of pensions be established here. This plan would involve the creation of a separate agency, while District leaders want the fund administered by the proposed child welfare board. As matters now stand, the New York lobbyists are victors, their plan having been reported out by a House subcommittee Saturday.

Rev. William Hoffman Talks on Soul's Thirst

"Allaying the Thirst" was the subject of the morning sermon of the Rev. William M. Hoffman, pastor of the Waugh Methodist Episcopal church, Third and A streets northeast, yesterday. The Rev. Mr. Hoffman declared that the thirst of man could not be allayed by the things of the world, nor by honors, money, nor even devotion to work. Music, art and literature might smooth and excite, he said, but the supreme allaying of the thirst was to be found in Christ.

In the evening address he chose for his subject "Three Tabernacles," one to Moses concerning the sanctity of law, to Elijah as the symbol of doctrine, and to Christ.

He will work in cooperation with Maj. Gen. Henry T. Allen, honorary chairman of the Washington general committee in charge of this campaign.
